H. P. DAVISON, BANKER, DIES FROM TUMOR

Partner of J. P. Morgan Fails to Regain Consciousness After Operation

8 DOCTORS ATTEND

Funeral Services for Noted Financier Will be Held Tuesday

NEW YORK—(United Press)—Henry P. Davison, banker and philanthropist, died at his Long Island home Saturday afternoon, following an operation for a tumor on his brain.

The prominent financier, who was a partner of J. P. Morgan, failed to recover consciousness after submitting to the delicate operation, which was performed by Dr. Charles E. Elberg, assisted by seven leading physicians.

Davison is survived by his widow, Kate Truhee Davison, and four children, Truhee, Henry Fomeroy Jr., Alvin and Francis.

He was 59 years old.

The surgeons realized as soon as Davison's skull had been opened that a successful operation was out of the question. The condition disclosed was far more serious than had been anticipated, according to one physician who spoke authoritatively. The filaments of the tumor, it was said, had involved the brain and a complete removal was impossible.

FUNERAL TUESDAY

News of Davison's death, flashed to all parts of the country promptly, brought in a flood of condolences in messages and calls.

J. P. Morgan, who spent the morning at Davison's home and left shortly before Davison's death to bring the Rev. Hinton, remained until late in the afternoon. Among those who called in the afternoon were George B. Coe, Edward R. Stettinius, Dwight Morrow, William H. Porter, Frank McKnight and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Coleman.

Funeral services for the banker will be held in St. John's chapel at Livingston, Locust Valley, at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Davison had his family frequently attended his church.

SERVICES WILL BE CONDUCTED BY THE

Rev. Charles Hinton, the pastor, assisted by the Rev. J. Endicott Pearson, of Cronon School. The pallbearers will be announced later.

Davison apparently realized the seriousness of the operation. Although a participant in no formal farewell, he expressed two wishes before the ether was administered.

The first was that he be buried in Locust Valley. The second was that his funeral be unostentatious.

THE DARKER

When word of his death was issued by special wire to the J. P. Morgan offices in Wall-st, the building was immediately darkened.

The five partners who received news at the office were William H. Porter, Dwight Morrow, E. Stettinius, George Whitney and Mr. Bacon.

The operation performed Saturday was the second attempt by leading surgeons of the country to save the life of the wealthy banker.

Every act of science and the greatest medical skill were represented in an improved operating room on a second floor of Davison's Long Island mansion. The trained hands of eight great doctors were there during the hour of the operation.

Dr. Charles E. Elberg performed the operation. His seven assistants were Doctors Riker, Kennedy, Stockey, New York, and Dr. Evan Evans, John E. Weeks, and Dr. Edwin J. H.

NEITHER WOUNDED NOR AGITATED

John Dodge Must Work, Court Edict

Millionaire Accepts Condition Imposed in Probation of One Year

KALAMAZOO, Mich.—(United Press)—John Duval Dodge, Detroit millionaire, who admits never having labored, except once in his 24 years, left here Saturday night with his mind made up for him to go to work.

Judge G. W. Weimer, in the circuit court, in pronouncing sentence following the recent conviction of Dodge and a friend, Rex Earl, of this city, of violating the state liquor laws, placed the millionaire on probation for one year and fined him $1,000.

The probation, conditional that Dodge immediately return to his home and engage in useful occupation, was readily accepted and the millionnaire family paid his fine and left.

He must report with his friend, Earl, on probation also, monthly, to the circuit court here. Earl received a $100 fine.

Dodge refused to discuss the nature of the work he intended engaging in. It will be his first, with the exception of a part of the five days he spent in Detroit house of correction recently serving a sentence for speeding.

SENATE DEMANDS GUARANTEES

Ford Must Produce Complete Fertilizer at Muscle Shoals.

WASHINGTON—(United Press)—Henry Ford must guarantee not only the production of nitrates at Muscle Shoals, but of complete fertilizers before he will be allowed to obtain the lease of the Alabama project from the government.

That was the verdict of the senate agriculture committee, which after a close scrutiny of the Ford offer at Saturday's hearing, decided that as drawn the Ford contract is not sufficient guarantee to the government that Ford can produce complete fertilizer at Muscle Shoals. The question of phosphates and potash, essential ingredients of fertilizer, has not received sufficient consideration on the contract, according to views of the committee.

The committee Saturday endeavored to eliminate all weak spots in the Ford offer and make it a "business man's contract." Discovery by the committee that under the terms of the present contract, Ford's lease on the dams at the project would not expire simultaneously, prompted the committee to this action.

According to the contract, Ford would have a lease on Dam Number 3 for a period of years after his other leases expired and the government's hands would be tied if it sought to lease the project to another person after 100 years.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, chairman of the committee, declared that the inability of those who would lease the Muscle Shoals to give any definite guarantees about production led him to believe that the only way the government could safeguard itself and farmers would be to complete and operate the project itself as provided for in a bill which has been introduced in the senate to that effect.

J. W. Worthington, Ford's representative at the committee hearings, declared that Ford could be relied on as a man of public spirit and honor and that any difficulties that might develop could be safely left to Ford to settle to the satisfaction of congress.

STEAMER AGROUND

MINIMUM TRAFFIC FINE

IS GIVEN BOOST TO $5

Bargain days are over! Traffic fines have gone to higher levels and are due to stick!

Judge Emmet J. Jackson closed up shop on the numerous visitors who kow-tow to him each morning for the privilege of plunking down one solitary iron man for traffic offenses by announcing Saturday that hereafter the minimum fine in all cases will be $5.

"I'm getting tired of this dollar stuff," Judge Jackson said Saturday. "Some people have the idea that they can come in here, plead guilty to what they term a measly little traffic case, make a huge joke out of it, get soaked $1 per, then go out and do the same thing over."

"There is no question," Jackson said, "but that motorists have failed utterly to profit by the lessons which have been taught at $1 per. Maybe if they face the music at $5 a fling they will more readily see the error of their way."

Plain disgust was written on the judge's features Saturday when a second large batch, surpassed in numbers only by Friday's record of 29, were brought in, making a total of 52 in two days.

CASES REQUIRE TIME

Attention to the details of the cases requires in some instances as much time as more serious offenses. Frequently persons whose machines have been decorated with the stickers fail to show up on schedule time. The court records are held up and lately it has been necessary to go out and bring some of the violators in, Jackson declared.

The $5 limit applies to all cases which have been drawing $1 hectorfore. There will be no change in the manner of disposing of speeders, and they will be summarily dealt with by the application of fines and sentences as in the past, said the arbiter of criminal court.

PROFESSOR RUNS AMUCK WITH GUN

Kills University Marshal and Commits Suicide.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(United Press.)—Ben Haile, University of South Carolina marshal, shot and killed M. Goode Homes, professor of engineering and widely known in his profession throughout the country, in the office of the university treasurer Saturday.

He fired at Dean L. T. Baker, but missed his mark; threatened Dr. W. S. Currell, at the point of his pistol; set down and wrote a note addressed to President Currell explaining his action and ended his own life by firing two bullet into his chest.

These facts were established at a coroner's inquest held here Saturday night. The jury included in the verdict a statement to the effect that Marshal Haile was temporarily insane at the time of the deed.

The letter, produced at the inquest, referred to charges that had been made against Haile, in connection with his duties as marshal and declared they were inspired by an attorney of Columbia and a member of the University board of trustees.

WILL DIE TUESDAY

Purpera Goes to Chair as Reprieve is Withdrawn.

COLUMBUS—(United Press)—All avenues of escape from the electric chair where Sam Purpera is scheduled to pay the death penalty for participation in the Sis-Panner murders, more than a year ago, appeared closed Saturday night.

Thrice postponed, the execution is now inevitable, following action of the court of appeals in upholding the conviction and death sentence of Dominic Benigno. Had a new trial been granted Benigno, Purpera's electrocution would have been postponed to allow him to testify at the new hearing.

Governor Davis had ordered a 60-day stay of execution on the ground that Purpera's testimony would be wanted, but withdrew the order following denial of new trial by the court here.

Unless Purpera's attorneys succeed in accomplishing an unlooked for coup he will go to the chair shortly after midnight next Tuesday.

CALLED TO DEFENSE OF TIEN TSIN

American Marines Ready for Action Against Mighty Manchurian Army

LINE ARE FORMED

British and French Troops Aiding in Protective Measures

SHANGHAI—(United Press)—American marines were ready at Tien Tsin Saturday night to go into action against a force of Fengtien troops, remnants of Chang's mighty Manchurian army, shattered in battle north of Peking by Wu Pei Fu.

The Fengtien stragglers, reported to be 10,000 strong, were said by scouts to be bent on looting Tien Tsin.

British and French Annamit troops have co-operated with the Americans in throwing out a first line of defense around the threatened city.

American Admiral Strauss arrived at Tien Tsin to take charge of the American marines, and confirmed the report that fully 10,000 former Chang troops were approaching the city from Luofa.

STREETS BARRICADED

The American volunteer corps has been ordered to stand by all night in case reinforcements are needed. Many of the Fengtien troops are in trains and will be prevented from leaving their box cars on the way thru Tien Tsin.

One train bringing hundreds of wounded already has arrived at Tien Tsin.

The Italian population is barricading the streets near its concession, and mounting machine guns on sand bag barriers.

Aeroplanes were active Saturday over what was recently a great battlefield, Chihlians using them, together with some naval guns in an attempt to block Chang Tso Lin's retreat to Lung Low.

WU CONTROLS PEKING

Wu Pei Fu, victorious central commander, issued his first instructions. They were that 100,000 pounds of rice should be purchased by the Peking government to provide food for 10,000 Chang Tso Lin prisoners.

Meanwhile Wu Pei Fu controls Peking. The victorious central commander called upon President Hsu Shih-Chang. It is understood the latter, whose term expires a year from next October, will be permitted to remain in office. Premier Liang Shih-Yi, who is believed to have supported Chang Tso Lin, has been ousted.

Wu Pei Fu announces he will head every effort towards unifying China. He has invited Sun Yat Sen, head of the Canton government, to co-operate. Sun Yat Sen is considered the last obstacle to a united China.

CHANG TSO LIN HAS FLED

leaving remnants of his scattered army to shift for themselves. One report said the Japanese had aided his escape.

The situation at Tien Tsin is reported to be similar to that of the time of the Boxer uprising and siege. If the Fengtieners actually attempt to invade the city, the entire population will be called upon to take arms against them. This will include many Americans and Europeans.

As far as is known the available reliable military forces are a regiment of British troops and one of American marines, with a considerable number of French Annamites. While the number of troops is not given, it is not believed these regiments are anything like full strength.

HAYS TO REMOVE CENSOR NEED

Movies Will Meet Demand, Film Chief Says.

"CRITIC PLAN UN-AMERICAN"

Declares Right Kind of Shows Will be Given.

NEW YORK — (Special.)—"The demand for censorship will be met by this organization and when it is met, then the issue of censorship will pass."

This is the declaration of Will Hays in his first interview since his election as president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

"The American people are just as much against censorship, because it is un-American, as they are against wrongdoing, because it is un-American. It is not so much the censorship that gives terror to the true American, as the principle involved."

"Censorship is contrary to the principles on which this government is founded, and I repeat, the demand for censorship will be met just as we accept the challenge of the American youth that its pictures shall give to it the right kind of entertainment and instruction."

"I'll give you my word that censorship was never mentioned in my negotiations with the producers before I accepted the position."

In a recent prepared statement Hays urged that special attention be given to pictures for boys, covering nature studies, physical training, hunting, fishing and camping, and that these pictures be shown free on Saturday mornings.

ON JOB 20 HOURS A DAY

Hays frequently works 20 hours a day on his new job. Conferences, callers and correspondence.

"I'm working harder than ever before in my life," he says. "I went to a theater one night at eight o'clock to study the exhibitors' business. I stayed until two in the morning."

"The most marvelous thing to me was the way the 'scorer' works. Most people, I suppose, imagine as I did that a film is merely sent from a distributor to a theater and turned over to the operator. Why, the scorer is the whole show. He fits the music to this or that bit of film, plans the color and lighting effects, to make the picture useful to you. The fellow who's responsible for putting new life into a motion picture audience is the scorer."

"I'm going to try to score the motion picture from beginning to end, to tone down and light up here and there, to 'act' and maintain to the highest possible moral and artistic standards the motion picture production. I like that phrase. It's my whole job in a breath. He thumped the table with clenched fist as he talked."

"GETTING TOGETHER"

"The job itself? Your job? Have you a program?" he was asked.

"I'm just going to work," Hays answered. "I'm going to work fast. I mean to get a lot of things to work out, the big thing, it seems to me, is this 'getting together.' Before the producers organized this association they were working independently and at cross purposes. They were quarreling and wrangling. There was not getting together on anything."

The film industry has grown to be the fourth largest in the nation. It must take its rightful place with steel and oil.

"Business reform, elimination of waste—there are a lot of things to be worked out. There will be no trouble in the future among the producers. They have confidence in each other. Each knows the other is playing square."

"Someone said I was to be the 'Lionel of the movies,' he went on. "Well, maybe I am. I don't know. I do know that my job is not to hire and fire stars, to discipline producers and exhibitors. My job—and I want you to emphasize that again—is to 'act' and maintain the highest possible moral and artistic standards."

"After all, we are dedicated to a great public service; the responsibilities and opportunities are great and wonderful, but they will be met."

FINDS MUCH WORK IN MOVIE JOB

J. CAILLAUX PLANS COME-BACK

Former Political Power Called Man With Nine Lives

ALSO MASTER OF FINANCE

Scathingly Attacks Present Rulers in New Book

(By N. E. A. SERVICE)

PARIS — "That man Caillaux,"

has written a book in which he says: "Out of the war there arose in France, in Europe, a base plutocracy made up of profiteers in metal, in food, in coal, in oil, in iron, in ships."

"Profiteers in their mad desire to secure the same kind of gains in peace times that they did in war, are knocking down the trees to gather the fruit."

"In France there is the same policy, the policy of a plutocracy, seated upon a lie."

"Governing those selected to govern, the captains of industry, the profiteers, the wolves or the jackals who returned from the fields of battle with their money-pots wet with blood, are the masters of Europe."

"Europe is on the eve of belonging to an anarchic feudal class. The chiefs and huge trusts are the dukes and counts."

CAILLAUX

There is no parallel to Joseph Caillaux in American public life. Many things have happened to him, any one of which would forever have killed his political chances in America. But in France he is the man with nine lives. Sooner or later he always comes back.

His master of finance, he has four times been minister of finance of his country and in 1911-12 was premier.

In 1914 when he was finance minister, the newspaper "Figaro" attacked him savagely, printing some letters of his wife Madame Caillaux, killed the editor and was acquitted. During the war he was arrested and thrown into prison on a charge of having relations with the enemy. He was tried by the French senate in 1920 and found guilty of a minor charge.

For this he was sentenced to three years imprisonment, and loss of civil rights for ten years. As he had been in jail for more than two years awaiting trial, his prison sentence was dropped.

Caillaux's friends said the charges were faked and that the reactionary and capitalist crowd who control the French Parliament wanted to break him.

FINANCING COMEBACK

Caillaux is living in retirement in the south of France awaiting the next election.

If a radical government comes to power, Caillaux is sure to have his civil rights restored and to be called back to public office.

In the meantime in his book, "Whither Goes France," he has whipped his enemies with whips of scorpions. He paints a black picture of France and one just as black of Europe as a whole. Of France he says its financial position is almost hopeless.

In Europe generally, with the exception of England, he sees a policy of madness.

In order to strangle the trust builders and speculators, Caillaux proposes that a common European debt be created and a common European money issued.

He visualizes parliamentary assemblies as now, but confining their job only to political rights. There would also be a new organization made up of employers, workmen and consumers which would control all economic matters.

ADD LODGE SOLDIER BONUS AGAIN THREATENS PARTY SPLIT

WASHINGTON—The soldier bonus bill, most troublesome political and legislative problem confronting the administration, will cause a definite break between President Harding and some of his party in the senate, unless Harding changes his position. Republican senators indicated Saturday night.

The question is all up to Harding now, having been laid before him again Saturday by Senators McCumber, Watson and Curtis, representing the Republican members of the finance committee.

FINGERPRINTS TO CLEAR MYSTERY

Police Seek to Fix Blame for Bank Robbery Here.

DEAD YEGG MAY BE MAN

Identification In Doubt, However — One Is Recognized.

Upon the comparison of the fingerprints of Eddie Stevenson, Cleveland gunman, slain in a battle with police near Canton late Thursday, and those left on the counter of the Lima Dime Savings Bank, depends the positive proof that the dead bandit is the man who robbed the bank here Tuesday.

Miss Pauline Hurt, employee of the bank, who was one of four persons present when the lone bandit held up the institution and escaped with $4,300 viewed the body at Canton Friday in company with Chief Thomas O. Lanker.

She believes that the dead man is the bandit whom she saw here. There is, however, still some doubt. His face is the same shape, she thinks, and he is about the same height and weight.

APPEARANCE IS CHANGED

The man she saw here was dark, swarthy and lanced. On Stevenson's face was set the white pallor of death. He had bled to death from many bullet wounds, fired from police automatics.

Miss Hurt had not seen any of the band who were supposed to be outside the bank. She therefore, was unable to identify either of the two surviving bandits, lying at death's door in a Canton hospital.

Neither of the two will admit being in Lima earlier in the week. Stevenson was with them, they say, but they will not tell where they were.

The only other point of proof that the gang broken up by Canton police is that which robbed the Lima bank is the similarity between heel prints left on the glass window ledge when the bandits climbed over, and the impressions of Stevenson's shoes.

Pictures of the finger prints have been sent to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Detroit and Chicago for reading. Some time will elapse before the result of the comparison is learned.

The band taken at Canton had a few hundred dollars among them. If they robbed the Lima bank, the remainder of the money has probably been hidden.

ONE IS IDENTIFIED

Pittsburgh detectives have identified Andrew Kippler, alias "Dutch" Hartman. They connect him with the robbery of the Crafston, Pa. bank January 28, 1922.

The other wounded bandit, who gave his name as George Brainer, had not been identified late Saturday. He is believed to have participated in the Crafston robbery, also.

From remarks made while in a delirium, police conclude that Brainer was the safe blow for the gang.

While sitting at his bedside Saturday an officer heard the wounded man mutter:

"Throw away the fuse, it's no good."

Prosecuting Attorney Eugene Lipincott, director of the local bank, is not thoroughly convinced that the Canton crowd is the same that visited Lima Tuesday.

BIRTHDAY PARTY HELD FOR UNCLE JOE CANNON

WASHINGTON — A notable party, including the cabinet and many members of the senate and house, paid tribute to the "grand old man of them all"—Uncle Joe Cannon—at a birthday party given him Saturday night at the home of Representative Madden, Illinois.

Uncle Joe, at 86, was the liveliest of the party.

Cannon was showered Saturday with birthday greetings. They came from coast to coast and from Michigan to Texas.

"Has any come from Chauncy Depner?" Uncle Joe asked his secretary Saturday night. "I want to see what the old codger has to say."

A district meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America will be held in the hall of Lima Camp No. 3290, the third floor of the Morris arena Monday. General De Long, national organizer will be present to address the members. A large attendance is expected. A. C. Fitter, clerk.

WORLD'S GREATEST WOMAN PREACHER

(By ALEXANDER HERMAN)

NEW YORK. — (Special.) — If Maude Royden had elected the stage or screen or politics for her career instead of the pulpit, she would have attained equal prominence.

For Miss Royden has a dynamic, dominant personality that commands recognition. Yet she is pleasant, attractive, congenial, of medium height and slender, with dark hair and dark eyes. She has come to America to attend a Y. W. C. A. convention.

She is one of the most eloquent speakers in Great Britain, wields a ready pen and is fearless in the causes and reforms she advocates.

Her 46 years have been packed with activities.

She is the youngest daughter of the late Sir Thomas Royden, a great shipowner of Birkenhead. She was graduated with honors from Cheltenham Ladies College and from Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford University.

For three years after that she worked in a settlement in Liverpool, lectured on English literature at Oxford and then threw herself into the suffrage cause.

"I spread my wings, so to speak, when the University of Oxford asked me to speak on 'Purity,'" she says. "That was my first real stepping out of the smaller circle in which my suffrage activities had confined me."

"Cannon Scott Holland was in the chair and my audience consisted of 1200 male undergraduates. It was the first time in 30 years that the university had been addressed by a woman."

Another chance invitation changed the entire course of her life.

"It was like a bolt from the blue," said she, "this invitation to preach. Rev. R. J. Campbell, the famous preacher of the equally famous City Temple, had to go away because he had worn himself out."

"Dr. Fort Newton had been called to succeed him. They wanted me to fill in for him on a prompt refusal, but they overpersuaded me. Before Dr. Newton arrived I preached 17 times. When Dr. Newton came he stipulated that he would preach only twice a week, so they asked me to occupy the pulpit on Sunday evenings."

Miss Royden won fame as a preacher at the City Temple. Some years later she withdrew and is now the main pulpit attraction at the Eccleston Square Guildhouse in London.

There is no subject she will not tackle. She preached a series of sermons, afterward printed in book form, on "Sex and Common Sense."

COMPLETE CURE FOR SHELL SHOCK CLAIMED

NEW YORK — A new and complete cure for shell shock was the claim made Saturday by Dr. E. B. Dunn, of the volunteer hospital here for an "electron emanator" which has been used with success upon thousands of patients, now being made public for the first time.

The machine, which has been perfected by Dr. William H. Woodin, Jr., emanates electrons of energy, and has proved an almost infallible eradicator of pain, according to the claims of leading physicians who have experimented with the machine. It has been tried out in private for three years.

Lima is to be visited by members of the "Flying Squadron," a party of law enforcement campaigners, on May 26, 27, and 28. They will speak in the Market-st Presbyterian church each afternoon and evening.

Frank S. Regan and Arthur E. Whitney will be heard the first day, James H. Woertendyke and D. Leigh Colvin the second day, and Oliver W. Stewart and Rev. Norma C. Brown, former chaplain of the Illinois senate, will be heard the third day.

Enforcement of the prohibition amendment and action against corporations who have shifted the burden of taxes upon the working and poorer classes of people are advocated by these speakers.

All six are well known throughout the United States. Local arrangements are being handled by Rev. D. N. Kelley, Rev. E. A. Watkins, Rev. Samuel Husker, Rev. W. D. Cole, Rev. J. A. Cantor, Louis C. Bradshaw and Mrs. Loretta Durbin.

Convention activities proper will start Tuesday morning with a regular high mass at St. Rose church. Delegates and visitors will attend in a body. Monsignor A. E. Manning will celebrate the mass, which will be for the deceased members of the order.

Following the high mass the delegates will return to the K. of C. recreation building for the sessions of the convention. They will be welcomed to the city by Mayor Harold Cunningham.

Sessions of the convention will continue through the morning and afternoon, the selection of state officers for the coming year and the choosing of the next convention city being the last events on the program.

In the evening the convention will be brought to a close with an informal ball for members of the Knights of Columbus. This event will take place in the hall room of the recreation building.

Convention headquarters will be at the K. of C. recreation building. Registration tables will be provided on both the first and third floors of the building.

On the third floor will be located the information and convention bureau. Meetings of committees and the sessions of the convention will be held on this floor in the large convention hall.

Other buildings and stores and display windows have been decorated and will be early Monday morning. The entire city is entering into the convention spirit.

This is one of the largest conventions that has ever been held in Lima and it is a tribute to this city's excellent hotel and transportation facilities that it is able to handle the large crowds expected.

GIRL, 11, WINS MUSIC HONORS

CLEVELAND — Altho Jennie Lieberman is only 11 years old, she is one of the prize students already at the Cleveland Institute of Music.

She holds a piano scholarship there, won in competition with aspirants from all parts of Ohio. "A natural pianist," says Mrs. Franklyn B. Sanders, executive director of the institute, "with wonderful possibilities."

Most little girls hate "practice," but Jennie spends three hours at the keyboard every day and loves it.

Music, however, does not monopolize all her study time. She is an honest student at Central Junior High School in Cleveland, with a standing above 90 in every branch of her work.

With so many activities, it wouldn't seem as if Jennie would have much time left, except for meals and sleep, but for four years, ever since her father died, she has been her mother's assistant as housekeeper, helping her before and after school. All this doesn't leave her much time for play, she says she likes to be usefully occupied instead.

WHITE AND DUFFY STILL UNDECIDED

ED MOORE JOINS IN PARLEY

His Late Arrival Delays Definite Announcement.

COLUMBUS—(United Press)—Conferences intended to settle the Democratic gubernatorial situation in Ohio were still in progress here Saturday night.

Decision as to whether George White, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, or Thomas J. Duffy, chairman of the state industrial commission, will oppose Vic Donahay of New Philadelphia, expected Saturday night, will not be made until Sunday, leaders said.

CAUSE OF DELAY

Delay was occasioned by the late arrival of Ed Moore, Youngstown campaign manager of Governor James M. Cox, who intended discussing the situation with Donahay, Duffy and White.

Conferences began immediately upon Moore's arrival Saturday evening, but no decision was believed possible Saturday night. Duffy had previously indicated he would announce his candidacy Saturday night, but he delayed, pending the outcome of the meeting.

White had determined not to make a "three-cornered" fight and will only enter the race if Duffy retires, he said.

Donahay, after numerous conferences with party leaders, refused to comment on whether White or Duffy would seek nominations. He confined his statements to predictions of a Democratic victory the coming year.

Meanwhile Republican centers were active with Congressman S. D. Fess and Carmel Thompson, Cleveland, who are both candidates for governor, attending meetings in Columbus.

INDIANA PRIMARY JARS G. O. P.

New, Administration Candidate,
Worsted by Beveridge.

DIRECT SLAP AT HARDING

Davis May Run for Renomination —Political Comment.

(By J. W. FISHER)

It isn't necessary to delve into story for the purpose of ascertaining just who it was coined the original phrase, "Off With the Old; On With the New."

Over in Indiana the Republican electorate have a way of saying it differently. During the past week, in the Senatorial preferential primary, they transposed the thing and made it read: "Off With New and On With Old."

Meaning just this: That United States Senator Harry New, the accredited administration candidate for renomination, was defeated by former Senator Albert Beveridge.

he of Bull Moose fame, to the merry little tune of something like 20,000 votes. Despite the fact that the word had gone out from Washington that President Harding would "keep hand off" in Indiana as well as in other states, in the nomination of candidates for United States Senator, the atmosphere refused to clear.

When the sentiment became rampant in Indiana that Harding wanted New returned and that New was conducting a campaign on "achievements" of the administration, came out and what the Republican party in the adjoining state did to the New candidacy caused a shiver of apprehension to chase up and down the spine of the President and of every Republican United States Senator who will be required to face the voters again this year.

As a matter of fact, there was a near-panic in administration circles when it became known that Beveridge was leading New in the vote count. When there was no longer any question about New's defeat, a mantle of gloom settled over the White House. While administration leaders are endeavoring to kid themselves into believing that the New turn down is in no manner a reflection on the national administration, deep down in their hearts they know it is one of the big signs of what is inevitably to come.

The feeling growing out of the Indiana contest is such that the cry is already heard from that state, "Beveridge for President in 1924." All of which is not conducive to aiding the sweet repose of one Warren G. Harding when he lays him down to slumber at night. Mr. Beveridge may fondly believe that "frictions and feuds in Indiana are buried forever," but he reckons without his host. The same feeling that pervaded the hearts of those who encompassed the defeat of New, will switch to those who hate Beveridge. He has yet to meet Samuel Ralston in the November election. The rule or rule policy of the old guard, horn in the flesh and bred in the bone, will assert itself later.

Farmers and laborers and their wives a unit in opposition to New for his position on national questions carried out at the behest of Harding, silently took up the club and battered their way into a majority for the once well hated Bull Moose Beveridge. Deflated prices of farm products and unemployment for labor brings its own reward to the administration. Readers of political barometers have little difficulty in sensing the fact that the Indiana situation is but the forerunner of the same sort of sentiment that will find an outbreak elsewhere—anywhere when the opportunity is afforded.

Any way you—or anybody else—looks at it, the Indiana result is a new blow at the Standpat, Old Guard element of the G. O. P. now in the saddle. Senator New was confident of renomination. Every ounce of energy of the administration backers was given to his candidacy. It is simply a demonstration that the people generally are ready and willing to rectify a few mistakes they made in 1920, under a misapprehension of facts. Senator New's campaign, from beginning to end, was a test of the Harding administration.

The effect of the New falldown is embarrassing to the administration to say the least and will also be humiliating, if not actually disastrous. The Newberry issue had some part in the campaign, to the detriment of New. The prediction is being freely made in Indiana that the voters in November will find it easier to make a choice between Beveridge and Samuel Ralston, the Democratic nominee for United States Senator, than it was for them to choose between Beveridge and New. Former Governor Ralston is as much more progressive than Beveridge as Beveridge is more progressive than Senator New. The sentiment is apparent that if the Republican voters of the country cannot stand for the Harding administration, it scarcely can be expected that Republican Congressmen who are candidates for re-election can be expected to remain loyal.

Trust the frightened G. O. P. leaders to find ways of endeavoring to explain the Indiana vote. But also trust the public to understand the subterfuge. Now that it's all over, it is predicted in many quarters that President Harding will sidetrack Postmaster General Hubert Work and place Senator New at the head of the postal department.

Beveridge, who proved New's necessity, was born in Ohio, in Highland, October 6, 1862. After being admitted to the bar, he took up the practice of law in Indiana. He was elected United States Senator from Indiana in 1899 and re-elected in 1905. A split in the G. O. P. in 1910, after the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act, resulted in his defeat that year as a Progressive. He has been frankly opposed to President Harding's Four-Power treaty and the Armament Limitation conference.

Indiana is again voting for "a change," as it did in 1920, but the attack is on the opposite side of the political house this time.

There is now little prospect of A. Victor Donahay, of New Philadelphia, former Auditor of State and the Democratic nominee for Governor in 1920, having serious opposition in the primary for preferment again this year as the party's choice for Governor.

This is manifest with the release of a positive announcement by Judge Hugh L. Nichols that he will not "born in" on the Ohio situation. Donahay had no comment to make when he was informed that Nichols had decided to remain outside the New Philadelphia. Nichols and Hugh have been close friends for many years.

While the Nichols announcement does not clear the field for Donahay, it is taken for granted up and down across the state that other possible contenders can be defeated handily by the New Philadelphia man if a contest should come. It is pointed out, for the benefit of "new timber," that Vic Donahay made a splendid race in 1920 and that he was defeated by only a small margin in the face of the landslide that swept Republicans into office everywhere. Party leaders generally feel that he is entitled to the 1922 nomination. Donahay is not surprised over the announcement made by Nichols, whose friends were endeavoring to persuade him to oppose the New Philadelphia.

Three, possibly four, other contenders for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination still remain. They are former National Chairman George White, of Marietta; Thomas J. Duffy, East Liverpool, chairman of the Ohio Industrial commission; A. P. Sandles of Ottawa, former Secretary of Agriculture, and H. Sage Valentine, Columbus, Auditor of Franklin county. Valentine has all but ceased activity as a candidate. His aspirations sprouted too early it is now believed and died for want of nourishment.

While there is probably no one able to state with certainty just where the Democratic leaders and the rank and file of the party in Allen county stand in the matter of preferment of a candidate for Governor, there appears to be little or no question but that Donahay is the favored one. He carried Allen county over Harry L. Davis in 1920. In the face of the landslide in the direction of the G. O. P. camp and under ordinary circumstances would doubtless have been elected by a vast majority.

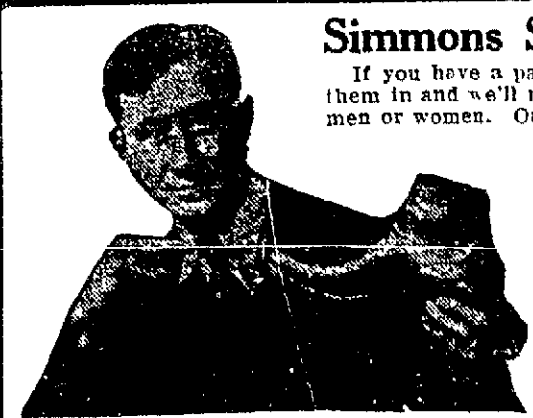

Straws show the trend of the wind. It cannot be denied that the indications point to Allen county Democrats strongly favoring Donahay, who it is taken for granted will be able to afford proof of a political assertion. Remembering the Donahay accomplishment in 1920 and the miserable failure of the present state administration, it is not difficult to foresee that Vic will not fare badly at the hands of the voters this year.

Surprise upon surprise grows out of the ruck and the muck of the tangle into which the G. O. P. of Ohio finds itself as a result of the effort to pick a successor to Governor Harry L. Davis. The number of candidates put forward has become so large that no one, save the political writers, have endeavored to remember the number. And there is prospect of others being added.

Despite the fact that weeks ago Governor Harry L. Davis announced that he would not be a candidate again, the statement was never taken seriously in some quarters. Events of the past few days tend to show that the doubt had some merit. Only one of the numerous candidates who seek to succeed Davis has come out.

wholeheartedly and unreservedly backer of the reorganization measure and its emergency clause, crammed down the throat of a Republican Legislature. Davis promised to lend his support to the candidate who would do that, but since Arthur Day took the cold plunge there hasn't been a chirp of commendation from the Davis quarters. In fact, he is right now wavering on the verge of a new announcement, this time that he will be a candidate. He is changing his mind again. And with this prospect there comes evidence of a new alignment. Ranting up and down the state, flaying Congress and smiting the Davis administration, Congressman Charles Landon Knight of Akron has suddenly changed his tactics, indicating in his latest pronouncement that it will not be "necessary" for him to become a candidate for the G. O. P. nomination for Governor.

Back of that lies this: Knight is quoted as having been assured that an "understanding" between Davis and Colonel Carmel A. Thompson is now a misunderstanding and that Davis will not carry out a purported deal made with the Euclid man. Thompson continues to refer occasionally to the ripper law and expresses his endorsement of the measure "in principle" but that doesn't satisfy Davis. It's a case of "whole hog or none." Hence, he may become a candidate for renomination. Knight now asserts that unless Davis is out of the race, he will not enter it. Changing front, the Akron man actually has nice things to say about the Governor, indicating positively and emphatically that there is a new political deal hatching. Watch Davis. Watch Knight.

The Democratic Congressional situation in the Fourth district is still a stalemate. The game that is being played is a waiting one. There is little or no change from the conditions that prevailed last week. In the office of J. H. Goeke, the Democratic candidate, at Marietta and West-Ohio, there is piled up a great stack of letters and telegrams, from party leaders all over the district, which tell the same story.

All of them are requests—or demands—that the Lima man become a candidate for Congress. The sentiment in Goeke's behalf has become so pronounced that he is wavering between his desire to remain out of it and a feeling of duty he owes to his party in the face of a demand that he lay aside his personal affairs and respond to the call that is being made upon him so insistently.

Should he decide to go in, or stay out, Mr. Goeke cannot feel otherwise than that he has been most flatteringly complimented by many of the leaders of the party of his faith. It is a call to duty, he feels, but still he hesitates to declare himself, knowing the sacrifice it will mean.

But should he decide to hearken to the call, there is every good reason to believe that he will enter into the campaign with that wholehearted and determined spirit which characterizes his every effort.

It appears to be patent that a nomination on the Democratic Congressional ticket in the Fourth district cannot be assured any one particular man without some opposition at least. While most every man mentioned as a possible candidate would cheerfully step aside in behalf of the Lima man, it is believed that there will still be one other candidate, in the southern part of the district.

Quite naturally, the Republican leaders are greatly interested in the turn events may take in the Democratic party in the district. Congressman Cable, very much disturbed over the trend of elections held in various parts of the country, followed by the upheaval in Indiana, sees no great amount of assurance that he will be able to land another election.

There comes a time every so often when it is necessary for strict partisan papers to "lean into" members of their own particular party, for the "good of the cause."

With such a purpose in mind, the esteemed editor of the Wapakoneta Daily News doffs his coat, rolls up his sleeves, and takes the old faithful typewriter and takes the political hide off J. Lendell Williams, of Darkeco, who is asking that the Democrats of the Fourth Congressional district accord him another term as a member of the State Central committee.

The Wapakoneta writer states that while the state committee recognizes Williams as a member of the body from this district, no other county in the district will agree with the state committee. The Wapakoneta paper charges that in 1920 Williams was caught by the chairman of the Darkeco Democratic committee carrying information to the Republican party in Greenville that was detrimental to the party's chances for Congress; that he is charged with conniving to defeat sundry candidates on the Democratic ticket in Darkeco.

A resolution leading Williams out of the party was adopted by the Democratic executive committee in Darkeco and a protest was sent to the state committee against him being recognized as the representative of this district.

The Wapakoneta paper asserts that a candidate will be selected in the near future to give Williams a run for his money.

Probably frightened over the trend of the voters away from support of the administration, Congressman John L. Cable is to hasten homeward the latter part of May, ostensibly for the purpose of taking a holiday and delivering a few speeches, but more pertinently for the reason that his political fences need mending.

With sundry postoffice fights having left his constituents in various sectors trying to spit out a bitter taste, the outlook isn't altogether rosy for the return of John L. to Congress. The New Bremen situation in itself is sufficient to give John a case of "jumps", as he contemplates Augulze-co shipping away from him so rapidly that it's becoming a riot.

John will take a hike over the district, armed with oratory in lieu of hammer and nails, to patch his fences wherever he can. Our Congressman are this time probably wishes that he had not turned tail on the naval bill, since he has heard from Indiana.

"Standing by the President" received a rude jolt in Indiana and is looked upon as a forerunner of similar upheavals elsewhere. With the approach of the 1922 Congressional elections, it became a pastime in the House for the members to meekly follow Harding's dictates. Republican members, including Cable and other Ohioans, who only a few weeks ago were boasting of their "independence" and complaining of "executive interference" whenever President Harding took it upon himself to tell Congress what he thought it ought to do, changed their ideas somewhat and began falling over themselves to get onto the Harding band wagon, which is now a dizzy vehicle.

The point is illustrated by the naval appropriations bill. At the start of the debate only six of the 22 Ohio members supported the proposed amendment increasing the appropriation committee's recommendation to provide for $8,000 instead of $7,000 enlisted men.

Some of the Buckeye Congressmen, including Simeon D. Fess, who has since become a candidate for United States Senator, gave out long interviews telling why they favored a "little navy." However, the President's program went thru, and Fess and Cable helped it. On the final vote only six Ohio Republican Congressmen stood pat against Harding's demand for a bigger navy. Then John had to dig up a new sort of explanation in "Flashes to the Fourth."

And by the way, Alfred P. Reck, secretary to Cable, has taken to writing poetry.

That a record vote may be cast in the coming August primary elections and also in the general elections in November, the old parties are making extraordinary effort to have every voter, men and women, go to the polls and exercise their rights on these occasions.

To vote, a person must have resided in the state for a period of one year and in the county in which the vote is cast, for a period of 30 days. The Ohio laws in this regard have not been changed.

Those who will become of age between the August primary and the November election are entitled to vote in the primary, aiding in the selection of candidates to be voted on in the election to follow.

William Randolph Hearst is a candidate for the Democratic nomination of Governor of New York state. Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Isn't the first time William Randolph has sought political honors and it won't be the last—if he lives long enough. Hearst is a persistent seeker. He goes into a campaign with his wings spread like a barnyard rooster. He never gets anywhere, but he is angry after he fails to realize his ambitions. Like a school boy, he goes off in a pout, fights those who have shelved him and then when the next election comes along is a candidate again.

William Randolph's measure has been taken. The party adherents in New York state know his breed. He'll likely not reach the quarter post.

"It's in the air." That was a favorite expression among Republicans in 1920. They were right. This year "it's in the air" again. But Democrats are saying it now. And they are right, unless indications are false.

The trend of elections is becoming more and more pronounced as time goes on. The swing has started in earnest and is being shown in many ways. The truth is that the people are turning against the Harding administration, because it has failed them.

Digest this: In 1920 Harding carried Hartford, Connecticut by 25,000. The Democratic ticket was elected there recently by 3,600. In Kansas City Harding won by 2,000 votes, but a Democrat now wins by 14,000. In Rhode Island a Harding majority of several hundred is turned into a Democratic one. It is the same everywhere.

Democrats are fighting for places on county and district tickets, while in many counties, although they are strongly Republican normally, there are few G. O. P. candidates. Now comes the word from Indiana. Verily the future isn't rosy for those who fooled the people in 1920.

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the arch conspirator in the crime committed in 1920 when President Wilson was malign ed in the mist cruel manner that has ever been the portion of a man honored by the people, is soon to face the voters of Massachusetts for reelection.

That eastern state is strongly Republican, or rather has been so in the past. Who knows, perhaps it may turn the tide on Henry and give him punishment for the part he played in so successfully fooling the people two years ago. The voters believed in Lodge. Their faith has been shattered; or it should be by this time, as the cruel and crafty and cunningly calculating easterner who supplanted Boies Penrose as the directing head of the Old Guard stands forth in his true light.

He is braided as the murderer of the League of Nations, so far as America's entry is concerned and then aided in foisting on the people in its stead the weak and puny child known as the Four-Power Pact. The defeat of Lodge in Massachusetts would indeed be good news.

Richland-up will have a second candidate for nomination for county commissioner on the Democratic ticket. Elmer Lauby has decided that he will offer himself before the electorate of his party for preferment, and has authorized the statement that his name will go on the primary ticket in August.

HOSPITAL DAY TO BE OBSERVED

PROGRAMS FOR THE DAY

Special Events at St. Rita's and City Hospital.

National hospital day Friday will mark the 102d anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, first nurse, who elevated the profession to the high standing of today and will be observed with elaborate plans by Lima hospitals.

Both St. Rita's and City hospital have arranged programs for its observance, based on the idea of getting the public better acquainted with the work and facilities to serve this community.

At St. Rita's hospital the lay board of the institution is working with Mother Margaret Mary superintendent for the success of a program. J. W. Halfhill is president of the lay board.

SERVICE IMPROVED
This board, in investigating of hospital statistics, discovered that the average sick person today spends less than one-third as much time in a hospital as did his father. In 1894 the stay of a patient in the hospital was nearly 40 days. Now the average time is 13 days. These figures show, members of the lay board estimate, in a graphic manner just how much the hospitals have improved the service they render the community.

Those who visit St. Rita's hospital on National hospital day Friday will learn many interesting things in connection with present day hospital service. St. Rita's is cooperating with other progressive institutions throughout the United States, Canada, England and Australia in a movement to acquaint the people with the real meaning of hospital service and to give them some idea of the great variety of equipment and the large personnel of highly-trained executives, scientists, medical men and nurses required to treat the sick and injured.

Visiting hours at St. Rita's will be dispensed with on Friday and the institution, from cellar to roof garden, will be open for the inspection of visitors. A program, in observance of the day, will begin at 2 p. m. If the weather is fair, the north side of the lawn surrounding the hospital will be utilized. Otherwise, the program will be transferred to the roof garden and visitors will be entertained in sun parlors and rest rooms.

SPEAKERS NAMED
Addresses will be delivered by J. W. Halfhill, chairman of the lay board; by J. H. Goeke, a member, and by C. A. Bingham, city manager. A nurses drill will be a pretty feature.

The lay board has arranged with Zellitz, florist, W. Market-st., where each woman who visits the hospital will be given a beautiful tulip. Porches of the nurse's home, adjoining St. Rita's will be at the disposal of mothers with small children, who wish to take them to the exercises. A baby show will be a feature of the festivities. More than 200 babies have been born at St. Rita's hospital in the last two years and the majority of these will be entered. Prizes will be given to the oldest and the youngest babies shown by their mothers.

N. L. Michael will present these gifts of which he is donor. He has also informed Mother Margaret Mary she will have a gift for each baby brought to the baby show. Mr. Michael is a member of the lay board of the hospital.

The interior of the hospital will be beautifully decorated with palms and potted plants by the Zellitz company, which they have donated free for use by the hospital.

The lay board of St. Rita's is composed of James W. Halfhill, president; W. H. Duffield, vice president; N. L. Michael, second vice president; Samuel Weinfeld, secretary; J. H. Goeke, J. L. Henry, Judge F. C. Becker, C. B. Selfridge, W. J. Reuz, C. F. Stolzenbach, Frank Collucci, H. F. Solomon, R. T. Gregg, A. D. Peters, William J. Wemmer and J. T. Kaufman.

AT CITY HOSPITAL.
City hospital, unable to observe the day with annual nurse graduation class exercises, will welcome all visitors who wish to inspect the institution and see the splendid work which is being carried on there.

Miss Ella Patterson, superintendent, especially invites young women who are desirous of taking up nurse training, to confer with her that day.

Hours for inspection of City hospital will be from two to four in the afternoon and from 10 to 12 in the morning, Friday. Miss Patterson will be present to welcome all callers.

LIMA COMPANY TO START MONDAY ON BRIDGE WORK AT BUCYRUS, CRAWFORD-CO

Work will begin Monday on grading and construction for bridges and culverts on the route of the six miles of highway improvement awarded the Scott Construction Co., Lima, at Chaffield, near Bucyrus, by the state highway department, Wednesday.

O. A. Scott, general manager of the company, said Saturday that two cars loaded with material are en route to Chaffield, headquarters of the company, with which to start the work.

Three miles of the improvement extends south of Chaffield and near to Bucyrus and the remaining three and a fraction miles extends thru Chaffield and north of that place. The south end of the highway, nearest Bucyrus, will be first completed.

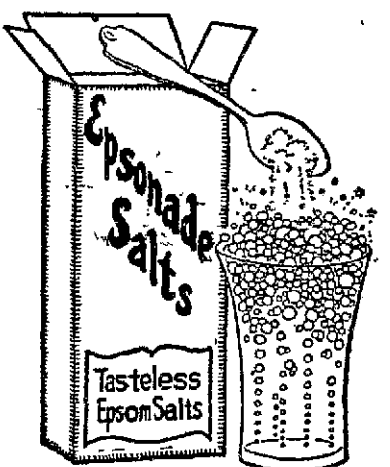

According to O. A. Scott, the contract is one of the largest improvements awarded by the state highway department this year. Other members of the Scott Construction company are: Frank H. Downing and R. A. Conway, both of Lima, and W. R. Robens and David Reader, both of Toledo.

Offices of the company are located at the home of Scott, 1007 Faurot-av.

CAMPAIGN IS AID IN POSTAL WORK

Public Cooperating in Improvements, Gale Says.

A decided improvement has been seen in the postal service in Lima as a result of "Postal Improvement Week", which closed Saturday night. Postmaster A. E. Gale has announced.

Citizens listened to the appeal made by the postoffice authorities and are taking more care in the preparation of letters and packages for the mail, Gale said.

Many firms are making it a point to tie the letters they send out into bundles, ready for the cancelling machine. This saves time and obtains better service.

Where letters are placed in the mail in an unbound condition, they must be sorted and prepared for the cancelling machine. This takes time and many times a mail train is missed, Gale says.

An increase in the number of letters placed in the mail in time to be sent out on trains between 1 and 5 p. m. is also seen by the postal officials.

Mail service between these hours is excellent and letters mailed in time for these trains will very often arrive at their destinations a day earlier than they would if mailed after 5 p. m., Gale says.

Pre-cancelled stamps for third and fourth class mail are also coming into favor as a result of the campaign during the week. Seven firms have signified their intention to use these stamps, Gale said.

A number of permits have been applied for also. It is said under the permit system no stamps are used, the permit stamp being printed on the envelop or mailing wrapper.

Education along postal improvement lines will not stop, now that the intensive campaign is over, Gale said. Many firms have not adopted the time saving practices and an attempt will be made to impress upon them the need for early mailing and better preparation.

Much interest was shown in the workings of the postoffice by the hundreds who attended the open house the past week and they obtained a better idea of how the mail was handled, Gale said.

The EDISON Turn-Table Test

The Edison Turn-Table Test is a device of Mr. Edison's to enable you to judge Phonographs side by side. On the Turn-Table are placed a new EDISON and three other high-grade Phonographs. You sit before the Turn-Table and listen to the EDISON Re-Creating any music that you desire—vocal, solo or operatic, instrumental, orchestral—and then to each of the other Phonographs in turn rendering its version of the same music.

Can you think of a more difficult test for a Phonograph to undergo?

By hearing the New EDISON side by side with other phonographs, you can accurately judge which gives you the full beauty of the artist's performance. The EDISON is the only way that you can take into your home all that the musician has to give in the operatic stage or concert hall.

KITE TOURNAMENT ATTRACTS BOYS

Many Entries Made for Kiwanis Event, Saturday.

CONTEST AT FAIR GROUNDS

Children's Home Kiddies to Be Special Guests.

Children from the Allen-co Children's Home will be the special guests of the Kiwanis club when it holds its first annual kite flying contest for Lima and Allen-co youths at the fair grounds Saturday.

Members of the Lima Automobile club are being lined up by J. C. Hartline, president, and a sufficient number of automobiles will be provided to carry the children to the fair grounds.

A special contest for the boys of the children's home has been provided by the committee in charge of the meet and 18 have signified their intention of preparing kites and competing.

This contest is in addition to the regular program as previously announced for boys of Lima and Allen-co and for which prizes valued at $135 have been offered.

Twelve classes of entries will be open for the boys of the county. Six of the classes are for those under the age of 15 and six for boys over that age.

Prizes will be given for the largest kite, smallest kite, prettiest kite, odd kite, highest flying kite and the strongest pulling kite. Separate contests and prizes will be given the juniors and seniors.

Each boy will be permitted to enter one kite in each of the six groups, but no more than six kites may be entered by any one boy. Each contestant must fly his own kite in the contests.

All entry blanks must be in the hands of Frank Pringle, chairman of the committee in charge, by May 10. They may be taken to the Lima Natural Gas Co. offices or mailed to Post-office Box No. 247, Lima.

Entry blanks may be obtained at the offices of the gas company or the coupon printed in The Lima News may be filled out and mailed to the committee. A large number of coupons from The Lima News have already been signed by boys of the county and intense interest is being shown in the kite tournament, Pringle said Saturday.

Observers say that hundreds of boys are flying kites in all parts of Lima and it is believed that as many as 500 will be entered in the meet at the fair grounds.

Any boy who will take the trouble to make six kites stands a very good chance to defeat competitors and win a number of handsome and useful articles, Pringle said.

Articles to be given as prizes are being shown in one of the East windows of the Deisel Store. The display will be continued until Friday, Pringle said.

All kites must be finished and in the hands of the committee at the fair grounds by 8 a. m. Saturday. The kites will be grouped and judged before the final test.

Decisions of the judges will be withheld, however, in the classes judged until it has been demonstrated that the kites will fly. Awards for the highest

CHARITY FUND TO BE SOUGHT

Fifteen Teams Will Make Campaign for Social Service.

Members of the 15 teams which will conduct an intensive campaign for funds for the Social Service bureau during the coming week will be announced early this week, J. W. Beall, chairman said Saturday.

Thirty men are to be selected, 10 each from the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs and are to be divided into 15 teams of two men each. These teams will call on business men for their subscriptions.

Each team will be given the names of two or three business men and it is expected that the campaign will be wound up in two or three hours at the most.

Subscriptions sufficient to pay the debts of the bureau have been received. Money for the necessary work of the bureau during the next three months must be raised.

It is the opinion of the committee in charge of the fund that many business men have failed to subscribe because the letters have been mislaid or the matter has slipped their minds.

The teams from the luncheon clubs are to remind business men of the need and collect their subscriptions "on the spot." The exact date of the campaign has not been set.

THE WAGES OF SIN

FOUR bandits, the last of perhaps the most notorious band of criminals that ever operated in Ohio, met their Waterloo at Canton late last Thursday. They are believed to have been responsible for the robbery of the Dime Savings bank of Lima, earlier in the week. If they were, it was the last to be staged by the Jiggs Losterneer clan of Cleveland, an organization of killers that stopped at nothing.

The battle at Canton in which two of the thugs were killed outright and two more believed fatally wounded marked the passing of this dangerous band of desperadoes who have terrorized the northern part of Ohio and other sections as well for the last several years.

Losterneer and John Grogan, former leaders, are in the Ohio penitentiary for life. The remainder of the clique carried on after their generals had fallen into the hands of the law with the same daring and utter disrespect for society until they dropped before the bullets of officers and private citizens at Canton. Practically all, if not all of the robbers and murderers of this outlaw band now have paid the penalty certain to those leading a life in violation of the laws of society.

Hundreds of young men—mere boys—have been attracted to a life of crime during the last few years, believing it offered an opportunity for an easy existence. The fate of the Losterneer outfit should be a lesson to all young men. You can't beat the game. Things may come easy for a time but not for long. And when the time to pay comes, a heavy toll is exacted.

THE KITE TOURNAMENT

LIMA'S Kiwanis club has inaugurated something new in the way of tournaments for the boys of this city in its kite contest to be held next Saturday afternoon. It will be open to every boy in the county and divisions for different ages have been arranged in order that all will have an equal chance.

This contest should create lively interest and appeal to the sporting blood of the grown-ups as well as juveniles. A fine program has been arranged and valuable prizes will be given winners in various divisions. Almost every kind of kite will have a place, giving boys a wide latitude for the exercise of their ingenuity in preparing their entries.

There are few tournaments in which both city and country boys may compete on equal terms and in a thing in which they are all interested. The kite contest should be assured of success for this if for no other reason. It costs nothing to enter, entry blank being printed in The Lima News for the convenience of the youngsters. All that's necessary is to fill out these blanks and mail them according to instructions.

This undertaking is entirely under the direction of the Lima Kiwanis club and was originated by that organization. It should be commended for the interest it is showing in the youth of Allen-co and both boys and their fathers should show their appreciation by turning out en masse next Saturday. We are poor judges of boys today and the men who found so much pleasure in their younger days in mixing paste from the flour they begged or "snatched" from their mothers and the shaping of new-fangled kites, if the Fair Grounds are not well filled when this event is staged.

WELCOME TO K. OF C.

LIMA'S gates of hospitality are wide open today in welcome to the members of Ohio councils of Knights of Columbus and will continue so in a special manner during Monday and Tuesday, the occasion of the state convention of the order.

Delegates and visitors from 120 councils of the Catholic organization in Ohio are pouring into Lima. Welcome awaits them on every hand. Other organizations of the city and citizens generally have joined hands with members of Lima Council No. 436 to make pleasant the stay of the visitors. Features have been planned that will make assured the knights and their ladies will be pleased they came to Lima and that they will be glad to come again.

As followers of the great Columbus, Genoa's illustrious son, whose indomitable courage and unflinching zeal carried him across trackless seas to an unknown and then undiscovered land, the spirit of the inspired mariner who found the way to a new world is implanted deeply in the hearts and minds of the Knights of Columbus.

They are good citizens of the best country on earth. They represent a great organization that is the child of a wonderful church society. With high ideals and sterling loyalty as Americans, their organization accomplished a great work in the world war, which is being carried on unflinchingly in peace.

Lima is proud to welcome the representatives of the great body of Knights of Columbus of Ohio. It is an honor to have them with us, if only for a brief sojourn. And may they carry away with them a good impression of Lima and her people.

A POLITICAL GRAVE

BURIED by his own party; cast into a political grave by incensed voters! Such was the fate the last week of Senator Harry S. New, of Indiana.

New voted to seat Senator Newberry, of Michigan. New is one of the administration's right hand men. The Indiana primary furnished the first opportunity for the Republican party to express its opinion about the Newberry case—and the performance of the Old Guard generally.

Fourteen Republican senators in other states, who must run soon fear the influence that so neatly removed New from his seat. Many political graves were dug by the Newberry deal. It is not unlikely that one at least is prepared in our own fair Buckeye state.

HEN-PECKED AND—

A SECRET organization of henpecked husbands has been in existence continuously since the year 3857 B. C., according to a claim set forth on this interesting fraternity's letterhead.

Any husband who feels that he picked a lemon in the garden of love, and wants to join, should write to the Ancient and Honorable International Order of Hen-pecked Husbands. Its headquarters are at Sowerby, near Bradford, England.

Applications are rigidly probed, to keep the organization exclusive for the superlatively hen-pecked.

Women might start a similar society. For every hen-pecked husband, there are at least two rooster-pecked wives. The joke writers, however, are quiet about that. They are mostly men.

ABE MARTIN

We've been many a day since anybody had nerve enough to name a
"Martin." I'm growing old, was a caption.

In discourse the night before, nobly decided.

So I out and across town, parking in the Astor to watch preparations against the Benefit of screen stars and society folk, for the poor.

It costs ten cents to vote, and I bought one for Leah Baird, thinking the multitudes would have forgotten her. And in a mercurious way starting her towards the Queen of the May. And came Will H. Hays, who is an executive committeeman of the Benefit. He full of pep and verve, as in his days of Postmaster.

To the wharf to see the crowds bld ben voyage to General Joffre, and the canaille and nieszchean mobs intermixed, but the Hero of the Marne well guarded. Thence thru the traffic to Washington Square, squinting at the old Beta house en passant. To lunch with a printing press salesman at the old Martiniere, which I didst once so love. And he paying the chit without inhibition on my humble part. A bunch of cold snakes from Princeton also at the beanyery, and they asking fair boarding school girls from Philadelphia suburbs. Tho I heard two of the sweetest speak of Kate and Vassar. Yet there was no high brow beneath their rapid and orchid features.

Down into Park Row, to drop in on the business manager of The World. Who always inquires after the health of the Badeau family, opposite our Y. M. C. A. Which recalls, I must look up Mr. Theodore Rassin, at 120 Broadway, who watches Laird Reid and Lew Larsen once a year, to see if they have a locomotive hidden in an inner vest pocket.

In the evening to a Realtors Banquet at The Ambassador. And carelessly glancing over the toast list, see my old college teacher from Ada, Senator Frank Barrittout Willis. So I sent him my card to the speakers' table, and he gave me a nonchalant nod of recognition. And then spoke in his softened esoteric, purtuous voice, that when thrown into high would reach back to Harrod. And on what topic? Finances of the government. And the millions, the Anti-Saloon League and His Excellency from Marion are saving the downtrodden taxpayer. Willis on Finance, (and he got away with it) is much like Frank Banta giving a golf lesson to Warren McLaughlin.

Also on the hot air menp was our old Rotary friend, Strickland Gilliland. So I gave him the high sign, and he came down from his high perch. And we chatted a half hour while the Senator was in conclusion Uncle Sam's savings fever. Gilliland inquired the health of Henry Wommer and Harry Bentley, under whose administration he spoke before Rotary. Made a breakfast engagement with him to meet his wife, on from Baltimore to get the ekirt lengths. Later to a smoker at the Ohio Society. So home to bed.

HEALTH TALKS

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well
A SOUND BODY

A healthy person is much better prepared to escape and to resist disease than a sickly person. Nor is it so difficult to be healthy if one is careful. Good air, good food, good water, good habits, a proper amount of exercise, sufficient rest and sleep, personal cleanliness and attention to the bowels are necessary.

Good air is required day and night. Keep out-of-doors as much as possible. In the house windows or doors should be partially opened.

Too little food results in dangerous weakness; too much, in the accumulation of fat. Neither is healthy. With light work and in hot weather less food is needed. There are various kinds of food. Meat is a good example of one kind. The others are fat, sugar, starch, and mineral matter, such as salt and water. All are needed. Too much fat, starch or sugar usually results in increase of weight; they should be avoided by persons inclined to grow stout. The plainer the food the better.

Bad water is one of the commonest carriers of disease. Don't drink any water unless you know it is good. Most cities now have good water supplies. Well water is often contaminated. That is why typhoid fever is commoner in the country.

Despite prohibition alcoholic liquors are yet one of the commonest causes of many serious diseases. Some patent medicines which contain morphine and cocaine are even worse than alcohol. While tobacco serves no good purpose, it is so generally used without apparent injury that it would be foolish to magnify its dangers. Growing boys should not smoke cigarettes. Excessive use of tea or coffee is bad.

Moderate exercise is good for every one. To keep well some exercise should be taken every day.

If one does not have enough rest and sleep, the tired body is less able to resist disease. Children require ten to twelve hours, youths eight to ten, and adults seven to eight.

If the body waste is not passed regularly from the bowels, weakness, weariness, low spirits, headache and loss of appetite will result.

A THOUGHT

For lo, the winter is past; the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come.—Canticles 2:11-12.

SWEET daughter of a rough and stormy sire, Hoar Winter's blooming child, delightful spring!
Whose unshorn locks with leaves
And swelling buds are crowned, Sweet is thy reign, but short—the red dog star Shall scotch thy tresses, and the mower's scythe
Thy green, thy flowrets all,
Remorseless shall destroy.

FLAPPER'S SPRING ODE
(With proper apologies)
Isn't spring perfectly precious
With all of the trees and the birds.
It's so—so romantic it quite drives me frantic,
It's simply too gorgeous for words.
Wherever I go in the springtime
I get a most wonderful thrill;
And anyone who doesn't feel as I do
Is no more or less than a "pill."
Oh, spring! Don't you honestly love it?
I think it's superb and sublime,
In weather like this I grow hectic with bliss,
I'm lit up with joy all the time
I'm simply demented with thinking
Of all the spring duds that I see, Oh, lovely old spring, you're the darlingest thing!
You make life seem perfect to me.

I'm mad about bushes of lilacs
And blossoms that grow on the trees,
And words can't explain how intensely insane.
I feel in the glorious breeze;
I'm jazy with pep and enjoyment;
I feel I must gambol and sing,
The air, soft and mild, makes me feel pretty wild;
I'm perfectly dippy on spring!

MAIL TEST SHOWS GOOD RESULTS

Letter Mailed Here Answered From New York in 48 Hours.

Thirty-eight hours from the time a special delivery letter left Lima, addressed to New York city, it was answered and the answer in the hands of the sender here.

This test, made by local postoffice officials, was designed to show that if care is taken by business men in timing the ending of letters, most of their troubles with delayed mail will vanish.

In the test a letter was mailed in time to make the Broadway Limited, the mail closing at 4:40 p. m. It reached New York at 9:40 a. m. the next day and was immediately delivered.

A relay was mailed in New York at 1 p. m. the same day and the answer arrived here in time for the early morning delivery next day. The total time consumed in the round trip was 38 hours, postal officials say.

Attention of business men has been directed by Postmaster A. E. Gale to the afternoon mails east on the Pennsylvania lines. One closes at 2:40 and one at 4:40 p. m.

Two trains are run by the B. & O. railroad each afternoon. Mail closing here at 3:15 p. m. makes very good connections with trains in the southern part of the state while the mail closing at 2:40 provides direct service to Detroit and Canada.

DITCHER ATTACHMENT TO BE TESTED HERE MONDAY

Test of a new appliance for digging machines will be made Monday by McHugh & Coon, contractors, on W. North-st. where they are laying a big sewer. The attachment is an invention of the concern and is expected to revolutionize the ditching machine business.

The attachment can be used on a digger with a capacity of a 40-inch ditch, increasing its capacity to a 60-inch ditch. The rotary auxiliary cutters slice down the sides to any desired width beyond 40 inches up to 60 inches and pour the dirt into the regular buckets on the machine.

"With this appliance a $10,000 machine can be made to do the work of a $25,000 or $30,000 machine," McHugh said yesterday. "The attachment will be manufactured at Findlay and will sell for around $1,500."

EARLY SCHEDULE IS TOO EARLY

Daylight Saving Route Out Patrons of Defiance Line.

Revised schedule established over the Defiance branch of the Indiana, Columbus & Eastern, is not making a hit with patrons, altho they were clamoring for early service a month ago.

And here is the reason.

When the time table reads "leave Defiance at 5:10 a. m." what it actually means to the patron is that the car will pull out of Defiance uptown depot at 4:10 a. m. central standard time.

In order to catch the first car out the traveling man or shopper must roll out of the "hay" about 3 o'clock in order to make it.

Adoption of eastern time by the Ohio Electric system, accounts for the necessity of early rising.

Nevertheless, revision of the schedule which was recommended in the hearing before the public utilities commission is bringing largest revenues to the line.

And in spite of the fact that passengers hate to get up so early in the morning, they appreciate being able to get into Lima early enough to connect with points south.

The early car also gives shoppers a chance to get into town early.

Cars now leave the up-town depot in Defiance. Formerly this was not the case.

ATTACK MADE ON MURPHY WILL

Instrument Probated Not Last Testament, Asserted.

Legal action calculated to set aside the last will and testament of Dr. John J. Murphy, who died at his residence, 619 N. Main-st. April 13, was instituted in common pleas court Saturday by Mary Murphy Edmunds. Her petition makes Julia R. Beckman and Mabel Dunn Murphy, widow and executrix of the estate, defendants in the action.

The paper filed in probate court as the purported last will and testament of the decedent is denounced as invalid.

The will was probated April 17, four days after Dr. Murphy's death and Mabel Dunn Murphy appointed to supervise disposal of the estate.

The will filed in court failed to make provision for the plaintiff.

Does Your Corset Mould You
—Or Do You Mould Your Corset?

You know how exasperating it is to get what you think is just the right corset—only to find after you have worn it a few times that it has lost its own lines and taken yours. And yet how many corsets do that very thing.

Binner Corsets will never lose their shape—no matter how long you wear them. They are so skillfully made and such fine materials go into their making that until the very end of their long life they will retain the graceful lines that they had when you first put them on.

JAKE GROSS WINS OVER AMES IN SECOND ON FOUL

MAY CAUSE HALT IN KOKOMO FIGHT

AKRON. — (United Press.) — Jake Gross, Lima featherweight, won from Willie Ames, Akron, on a foul in the second round of a scheduled 12-round bout here Saturday night.

Ames had all the best of the first round, punishing his opponent with short telling jabs to the stomach. Repeatedly he rushed the Lima flash to the ropes.

A left jab, aimed at the stomach, caught Gross at the top of a jump and landed three inches below the belt, just as the bell ended the second round.

BLOW HURT HIM
He curled up on the canvas, registering intense suffering. The Lima lad was out, but victorious.

Vicious charges from the Lima lad were fruitless against the strong defense effected by Ames during the two rounds.

Gross is not seriously injured, physicians said. Ralph Snyder, Bartlett, took an eighth round semi-final from Jack Humphrey, Akron middleweight.

KOKOMO GO UNCERTAIN
In conversation with the Lima News sports editor over the phone last night Earl Smith, Gross' manager, said it was impossible for him to say whether Jake would be in shape to make the jump to Kokomo for the purpose of meeting Eddie Ketchell of Cleveland, Monday night.

Two physicians were in attendance on Gross. "The not seriously hurt, it was doubtful if he would be in condition," Smith said. He said he would not make a decision until he saw what condition the featherweight was in this morning.

Re-matching negotiations are being opened, Smith declared.

TRAINING CAMP AT LAKEVIEW PLANNED FOR BOXERS

A training camp de luxe, with everything at the beck and call of the fighters, is planned by Ed Schiller, manager of Don Baxter and Jake Gross, both of whom have a hard schedule before them. With Light-eight Johnny Lundy and Young Joe Gans of Youngstown, several sparring partners and other retainers, the pair will be to Lakeview May 15.

Two cottages were secured and outfitted in the best possible shape with shower baths and a ring. The camp will be maintained for ten days.

RUTH STEPHAN TAKES FIRST HONORS IN FIELD MEET

Miss Ruth Stephan won individual honors in the annual V. V. C. A. track and field meet at Fairport park, Saturday. She scored 31 points. Miss Abel Cunningham was second with 9. Margaret Stelzer, third, 16 points, and Miss Catherine Wolf fourth, with a total of 13.

The time of Miss Stephan in the 100-yard dash was 23 seconds. She came near equaling the standard record of 12 seconds for that event.

Miss Cunningham outthrew five candidates in the baseball competition. Her first trial was 162.1 feet, the second 167.7 and the third 154.4. Ava Walker was second in the event with a throw of 78.1 feet. Margaret Stelzer finished third, throwing the ball 155.2 feet.

Bernadine Courtney made the best record in the running high jump with a jump of three feet, ten inches.

Miss Stephan hurled the shot a distance of 33 feet seven inches and was followed by Miss Walker, who put it for 23 feet. The third in this event went to Louise Smith.

The 50-yard dash was run by Miss Stephan in 6.5 seconds. Ethel Cunningham won the basketball throw, throwing it 61 feet and eight inches.

Ruth Stephan's distance in winning the running broad jump was 5 feet 8 inches.

In the javelin throw Miss Cunningham made a record of 48.3 feet, throwing first place.

The standing broad jump was won by Miss Stephan with a record of 4 feet and 10 inches.

He top-step-jump went to Margaret Stelzer, who won with a record of 25.10.

Miss Mary Garford officiated as referee. Leonard Brown was the starter, Bud Greenland timer and Miss Muriel Sargent chairman and judge.

BRITISH FLAG TO FIGURE IN RACE

INDIANAPOLIS—The British colors will figure in the parade before the tenth annual 500-mile race on the Indianapolis motor speedway May 30.

Secretary-Manager T. E. Meyers has received by cable a definite entry from W. Douglas Hawkes of a Bentley car. It is expected Louis Coatalen will make an eleven-hour entry of a team of Sunbeams, but this is not quite certain.

Jules Goux is in this country with two new Ballot mounts, but has not yet announced his teammate.

In the French Grand Prix last year Goux took one of his small two-litre (122 cubic inch) Ballots into third place. His car lacked the speed of some others, but Goux had the skill to outgeneral his swifter competitors.

The same pilot was the first foreigner to win at Indianapolis, taking the 1913 event with a Peugeot. He failed in his attempt to win the 1920 race, but he did win a brace that year and Mme. Goux is coming home for a visit while her husband tries his luck on the speedway.

In addition to the English and French flags it is expected the Italian colors will be seen in the contest. Only Germany and Belgium will be missing among all the countries which ever have entered cars in the 500-mile classic.

EAST ENDERS COP
East End Indians scored their fourth consecutive victory Saturday when they defeated the Wright All Stars 13 to 5. The East Enders were trailing until the final session, when they hit the ball to all parts of the field.

Osman was high scorer among the Redskins, chasing in a trio. B. Cochran and T. Cochran each scored a pair and Thompson, Hall, O. Turner and A. Turner one apiece.

Workman, pitcher, and McCurdy third base, scored two for the All Stars and H. Wright crossed the plate once.

WIN IN EIGHTH
Eight inning gave the Yankees a victory over the Athletics Saturday. Carl Mays was in performance and the Athletics down two hits, one of which was an old scratch by Miller. The score: Yankees, 9; Athletics, 2. The score: Yankees, 9; Athletics, 2. The score: Yankees, 9; Athletics, 2.

ICES CONCLUDED
bert Blair, 17, of 973 Arch-ave, Thomas White, 16, of 920 Arch-ave, were winners in the bicycle races acted at the R. S. Marshall and South Side stores for a while on the Saturday night.

Blair won at the South End corner by pedaling 5.1 1/2 miles in 14 minutes. Blair won at the other end with a record of 5.4 in ten minutes. Both lads get gold watches. Blair was awarded for positions up to eight.

Peculiar Play In Use By Detroit
THE Detroit club is using a play this year that looks good when it is successfully pulled, yet a great many experts question its logic.

It is the hit and run play with a runner on second and one out. The Tigers have tried it a number of times already, but haven't met with much success.

SLUGGING OUTFIELDER OF BROWNS

KENNETH WILLIAMS

BY BOB DORMAN
"GONE plumb crazy." That is the impression left on the average baseball fan by the fence-busting proclivities shown thus far this spring by Kenneth Williams, the tall outfielder of the St. Louis Browns.

When the big bambino, Ruth, returns to the game on May 20, he may find that he has lost not only a chance to break his home-run record of last year, but that a new home-run king has usurped his throne.

Records which have stood the test of years, and other records which Babe Ruth considered his sole privilege to tie last year, have been tied by the lanky Williams, in his mad outbreak.

On April 29, Williams hit his eighth and ninth home runs, just 11 days ahead of Ruth's record-breaking schedule of last year.

On April 23, he hit three home runs in one day, taking his place in baseball's hall of fame along with the other 10 players who have performed this feat.

Beckley of the Cincinnati Reds was the last player to hit three homers in a single game. That was on September 27, 1897.

Four home runs in two games have been made by only four players, O'Rourke, Boston, N. L., July 13-14, 1880; Connor, New York, N. L., May 8-9, 1888; LaJoie, Philadelphia, N. L., August 9-10, 1900; and Ruth, New York, A. L., June 13-14, 1921. Williams inserted his name in this record by hitting three homers on April 22, followed by another on April 23.

SHORT TALES OF THE RING

Kid Roux, Memphis welterweight, will meet Lil' Art Stigall, the boy whom Indian Horner defeated here in March, in Memphis, Monday night.

Two local featherweights, Jack Holland and Jack Verbyrke, will scrap two of Johnny Newton's boys in Mansfield, May 15. Holland will take on Eddie Leonard and Verbyrke is slated to battle Al Dundee.

Secretary Ochs of the Kenton American Legion and a squad of retainers were in Lima last week making arrangements to put on several fights on a card they will stage May 23. It is not known yet whom they will use.

Jack Holland's fight with Banta Hiatt of Marion, Ind., in Ft. Recovery has been postponed until the end of May.

White Sox No Joke Team, Says Kid Gleason

"Those people who are extending sympathy to me and picking a cellar berth for my ball club are wasting a lot of energy," says Kid Gleason, manager of the Chicago White Sox.

"The Sox are far from the joke team a lot of the experts are making them out."

"Tell me where there is a better catcher than Schalk, a better outfielder than Hooper, a greater infielder than Collins and a classier pitcher than Faber."

"Then I have a corking good shortstop in Johnson, who looks as if he was going to have one of the best years of his career. McClellan."

LIMA MAN LEADS TRAPSHOOTERS AT CENTRAL OHIO LEAGUE SHOOT

One hundred birds broken in 100 shots.

The first time in his life, John W. Reed, 136 S. Pine-st, former secretary of the Lima Gun club, achieved a perfect record at a tournament when he shot a flawless match at a meet of the Central Ohio Trapshooter's league, Friday in Columbus.

He won first place in the shoot, and C. A. Young, a noted trapshooter formerly with the Peters Cart-ridge company, took second with 99 broken.

The local man gets a handsome trophy.

Reed also commenced in the handicap match, but his chances for two perfect scores in succession were smashed when the 19th bird escaped his fire. In his first shooting all pigeons were broken cleanly with perfect hits, Reed relates.

One hundred and three shooters from all parts of the state were present. The shoot was held under the auspices of the Columbus Gun club.

QUESTIONNAIRE

By BILLY EVANS

Please explain the rule that governs how an umpire determines the legality of a home run. Is it decided on where the ball passes out of playing territory, or where the ball is when it finally passes from the view of the umpire? Has there not been some change in this rule made in recent years? So, please explain the nature of same.—U. A. C.

THE rule governing the legality of a home run says that the umpire shall rule a hit over the fence or into the stands fair or foul according to where he last sees the ball.

That means that if a ball was hit over the fence, and was 20 feet air when it passed out of playing territory, but curved into foul territory when it finally passed from the umpire's view, it would be a foul ball.

It is where the umpire last sees the ball rather than the fact it was fair when it passed out of playing territory.

The rule originally was that the umpire should decide the hit on where he last saw the ball. At a meeting of the rules committee three years ago a change was made in the rule. It was ruled a home run if the ball was fair when it passed out of playing territory, regardless of where it later went.

After two months of trial the major leagues went back to the old rule, believing that it was more difficult for the umpires to decide just where it was when it passed out of playing territory than to watch it until it passed from their view.

Davis Cup Meeting Called In London

The United States will be represented at a meeting of delegates of nations interested in the Davis Cup contest, which will take place in London on July 6. This conference is called to discuss the regulations for the contest, and particularly, to adopt a revision of the clause relating to expenses.

A similar meeting took place a year ago, when changes in the regulations were adopted, excepting only a few clauses that were approved in principle. Drafting of these clauses, including one to define expenses, was left to a committee representing England, France and the United States.

England and the United States approved a regulation, but France objected to it, so the meeting has been arranged for July to afford an opportunity for final discussion that will settle the matter.

EQUALS OWN MARK

HANOVER, N. H.—Earl Thompson, Dartmouth, holder of the world's record for the high hurdles, equalled the world's record here Saturday afternoon, when he won the 75-yard hurdles in 9 3/5 seconds.

The event was one of the features of the Dartmouth-Penn dual meet. The record was made in 1917 by Valdo Ames, of Illinois. Thompson tried to break the world's mark for the 70-yard high hurdles, but he fell short of it by one-fifth of a second, doing it in nine seconds.

Seven schools participated in the event. Miss Mary Frank of St. Marys starred among the girls, winning first in the 75-yard dash, the girls' relay and the 150-yard dash. Tcke was high individual scorer among the boys, winning the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes. How they finished:

More Deals Made in Past Week than for Some Time.

CRESCENT HOTEL LEASE SOLD

Many New Homes Are Projected for Building Season.

Real estate transactions in Lima during the past week showed more activity than has been seen for some time. Warmer weather and improved industrial conditions are given as reasons for the awakening.

A two-story business block at 209-11 South Union-st. was sold by the Elmer D. Webb Co. to F. H. Spitznagel, of Milan, Michigan. A consideration of $10,000 is reported.

This block contains business rooms on the first floor and three flats on the second floor. It was owned by the Webb Company. Spitznagel contemplates moving to Lima and engaging in business here. It is said.

CRESCENT HOTEL SOLD

All furnishings and the lease on the Crescent Hotel, 225 1-2 North Main-st., were sold to George Hooker by H. W. Russell, of Ada, thru the Webb company. Hooker is the proprietor of the Hotel Young at Ada.

There are 24 rooms in the hotel and it is a part of the building recently sold to D. H. Kivwan. Hooker took possession immediately.

An extensive house building program was announced Saturday by Frank H. Bentz. Several homes in the Emerald Park addition, Main-st. and O'Connor-ave., will be started immediately.

Bentz owns 27 lots in this addition and houses will be built as rapidly as possible. Each will have six rooms, modern, and will sell around $2,500, Bentz says.

Five houses are being started on Bentz-ave., west of Baxter-st., by Bentz. These will be six room modern homes, with hardwood floors downstairs, and will sell at prices between $3,000 and $6,000.

House building on Orena-ave. will be started by Bentz as soon as the street is improved. A total of 17 homes is contemplated in this group. A few will be built at a time.

Eight houses have just been completed on Scott-st. and seven of them have been sold, Bentz says. These sell at from $1,500 to $3,500. Several more will be started immediately.

Three six-room houses are under construction on Kene-ave., south of Third-st. at the present time by Bentz.

PERIOD OF IRISH TRUCE EXTENDED

More Time is Given for Peace Conferences.

DUBLIN — (United Press.) — The truce in southern Ireland was extended Saturday to cover the period of the free state and De Valera peace committees deliberations according to an official announcement.

At the same time word reached Dublin of insurgent depredations in County Cavan, where four Ulster banks were robbed by armed rebels in motor cars.

The truce in southern Ireland, where guerrilla warfare between free state and mutinous rebels has continued almost incessantly since the peace treaty with Great Britain was ratified by the Dail, was effected suddenly. After two attempts at direct peace negotiations between Michael Collins and Eamon De Valera failed, the Sinn Fein parliament unceremoniously succeeded.

Military leaders of both sides agreed to a truce until 1 p. m. Sunday. They met as a peace committee, under the auspices of the Dail Saturday, and after various proposals and counter-proposals had been discussed, arranged a proclamation of the armistice. The committee meets again Monday.

Although responsible leaders of the Irish republican army irregulars have kept their pledge regarding the truce, many armed bands of rebels refused to recognize it. Saturday's raids are in Cavan-co were typical of insurgent treachery since the peace negotiations began.

PLAY IS BIG HIT

"Oh, Oh Cindy" Scores Triumph on Second Night.

"Oh, Oh Cindy" scored a second triumph when it was presented Saturday night before a crowded house at the Fenner Opera house by the St. Martha's Guild, of Christ Episcopal church.

Clever costumes and settings and exceptionally good acting for amateurs marked the presentation of the musical farce. The production was a more finished piece of work than the first night.

Mrs. Ralph Leote was general chairman of the production; Mrs. Jack Sweeney, chairman of programs; Mrs. Ernest Brad, chairman of the cast; Mrs. Fred Ash, chairman of publicity; Mrs. Fred Tinker, chairman of groups and Mrs. Clarence A. Blumhagen, chairman of tickets.

NEED EXERCISE? CLIMB OFFICE STAIRS!

AL TREOLAR, ADVOCATE OF "INDOOR MOUNTAIN CLIMBING," DIAGRAM SHOWS HOW A STAIR CLIMBER CAN BEAT AN ELEVATOR, IN ACCORDANCE WITH TREOLAR'S EXPERIMENTS.

LOS ANGELES—Climb the stairs to your office in the morning instead of taking the elevator—that's the advice of Al Treolar, physical director of the Los Angeles Athletic club. It will not only reduce your girth and improve your lungs, heart and muscles, but it will get you to your office more quickly. Treolar has proved by experiment it takes 7 to 10 per cent less time to climb than ride the elevator.

Treolar calls stair climbing "indoor mountain climbing."

"By proving stair hiking is a lifesaver, I've eliminated the business man's only excuse for laziness—that he hasn't time," Treolar says.

WOMEN HELD THRU LEGAL TWISTS

Suspension of Sentences at Chicago Set Aside.

CHICAGO — (United Press) — Legal twists Saturday night balked efforts to free six women and their children in jail on contempt of court charges.

The women were among 52 persons sentenced to jail when they violated a court order restraining them from picketing or interfering with employees of the American Cigar Company.

The offenders immediately appealed their sentences to the appellate court and the decision of the lower court affecting the women was affirmed.

Saturday, following vigorous protests by women's organizations and a mass meeting at the Hull House, presided over by Jane Addams, Judge Dennis E. Sullivan, who sentenced the women originally, was prevailed upon for a suspension of the sentences.

Counsel for the American Cigar Company also appeared before Judge Sullivan with the committee representing the women's clubs and assured the court that the company did not desire to keep the women and their children in jail.

Then Paul Koenig, attorney for Sheriff Charles W. Peters, appeared and announced that Judge Sullivan had no power to suspend the sentences of the women.

"The mandates on which these women were placed in jail were issued by the appellate court," Koenig explained. "Judge Sullivan has no legal authority to set aside the judgment of the higher court. Besides, any ruling Judge Sullivan may make, the prisoners will be detained."

Attorneys stated late Saturday that the women's only hope is an appeal for executive clemency. Appeals for the release of the women will be made to Governor Small, it was said.

ALLIED DEMANDS UP TO RUSSIA

BELGIANS OBJECT TO NOTE

Final Efforts Made to Prevent Conclave Wreck.

GENOA—(United Press)—Lloyd George Saturday night announced the next move at Genoa is up to Russia.

The allied memorandum has been sent to the Soviet delegation without the French and Belgian signatures," the British premier told Louis Barthou, after a conference Saturday evening, "so we will await the Russian reply before taking further action."

Earlier in the afternoon, before Lloyd George saw the French leader, everything apparently hung upon the action of Belgium. But Lloyd George announced he would look to the Russians to reply instead of recalling the allied note in the hope of reconciling Belgium and France to its contents.

FRENCH READY TO SIGN
Lloyd George asked Barthou about France's attitude toward the Russian impasse.

Barthou, head of the French delegation, announced France is prepared to sign the disputed allied note to Russia, if Belgium will.

A final effort to save the conclave was made Saturday, in a search for a formula which would permit the Belgian delegation to accept the memorandum.

At a meeting of premiers at San Remo England and France divided up the oil fields of Asia Minor and agreed that all negotiations relative to oil fields of former Turkish provinces should be conducted jointly.

The French declare English oil companies have opened negotiations with the Soviet government separately, and that this constitutes violation of the agreement.

DELEGATE LEAVING
Many delegates are leaving Genoa. The German experts have departed. Some of the Russian advisors have gone, including Joffe, who negotiated for Russia at Brest-Litovsk, and who is now going to Moscow to report personally to Premier Lenin regarding the situation. Chancellor Schoeber of Austria, and Finance Minister Kundauf, of Jugoslavia, left Saturday.

The allied nations, who are not permitted participation in the main negotiations at Genoa, are complaining at the cost of maintaining delegates at the conference, especially in view of the adverse rate of exchange.

The neutrals who have been permitted two representatives on the political commission are better able to remain at Genoa than some of the former enemy states, but they are expressing keen disappointment that their part in the negotiations is so small.

Thru their spokesman, former President Motta, of Switzerland, they announced their intention of making their presence felt by joining the bolt of France and Belgium from the agreement upon the allied memorandum. This would further complicate matters and weaken Lloyd George's position.

EUGENE V. DEBS MAKES PLEA FOR PRISONERS
TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—Eugene V. Debs wants to finish his prison term if President Harding does not pardon other political prisoners, he said Saturday.

"I am as guilty or as innocent as others now in jail for violation of the espionage act," the Socialist leader, who was pardoned last Christmas, said. "I feel as tho I should be sent back to Atlanta if the others are not released."

Debs' statement backed up the one attributed to him by Kate Richards O'Hara, whose case of "childish crimes" was being taken up by the president to pardon their parents.

"President Harding spoke to me about the 'Christ spirit' when I was in Washington," Debs said. "I wonder if it was his conception of that spirit that gave the little children driven from the White House when they came to plead for their fathers' liberty." Debs, just recovering from a nervous breakdown, said.

PRINTS -- NOSE AND THUMB

HIS is a thumb print. The thumb print, as a means of identification, is well known.

To have his thumb print taken, in this country, is a thing the average man dislikes. Usually it is done by the police. Usually, too, it is done in the hope that a similar print may be found lying around somewhere that the printer would prefer not to have it known he had been.

It is useless for him, however, if the duplicate print is found, to pretend he wasn't there; for no two thumbs leave prints exactly alike.

But in some of the Latin American republics thumb prints are used to identify people who want to be identified.

The prints are taken at bureaus established by the government. The owner of a given thumb is provided with one of his prints attached to a certificate saying that the man who can duplicate that print has satisfied Prof. Peterson.

The individual he pretends to be, if these days of expensive experiments to determine which cows produce the most milk, it is highly important to know whether or not a cow which is represented to have been satisfactorily really is the same cow that passed the test. A comparison of nose prints will always tell.

This discovery was made by Prof. William E. Peterson, assistant to the chair of dairy husbandry at the University of Minnesota, college of agriculture. Also he is Minnesota superintendent of official testing of dairy cattle. His picture is shown here.

Professor Peterson elaborated his system in collaboration with Irving Jones, Bertillon expert of the Minneapolis police department. Minnesota adopted the official "No" every time a Minnesota cow is tested and registered a nose print goes with the registration.

In conclusion, a print of Minnabaha Majesty Gold Lass, a distinguished Jersey heifer's nose.

POLICEMAN HAS PERFECT SCORE ON HUMAN TARGETS
CINCINNATI—Fred Knips, 100 per cent patrolman, nips 'em.

Knips has a perfect score as a revolver shot, especially when a man is his target. So far he has never missed wounding a fugitive. He added his sixth victim to his list Saturday.

Henry Dunham, 22, levee negro, tried to escape after cutting another roustabout. Knips ordered him to halt. Dunham laughed at the officer. A shot whizzed over Dunham's head. Still he did not halt. Then Knips took aim at his legs. He dropped with a bullet thru the ankle.

All of Knips' victims have been shot in the legs.

OHIO K. OF C. WILL MEET IN LIMA THIS WEEK

K. C. HOME TO BE HEADQUARTERS

Delegates To State Convention Will Assemble There

AFFORDS GOOD FACILITIES

Erection of Building Is Evidence of Enterprise

The beautiful and commodious K. C. Recreation building on W. North-st. which will be official headquarters during the convention, was completed by Lima Council, No. 436 in 1920.

The club is one of the most complete and commodious of its kind in Ohio. Unlike many lodge homes, the recreation features of the building are open to the public. The entire third floor, however, is given over for lodge purposes.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

"Everybody Welcome," the slogan adopted for Knights of Columbus recreation hall in Army camps during the war, has been adopted by the Lima council.

The building occupies a wide frontage in W. North-st., opposite the Allen-co court house, and extends back half the depth of the lot into the alley. It has three floors and a basement.

The basement is occupied by a public dining room under the efficient management of Mrs. Carrie Wallace, whose fame as a stewardess is unexcelled in Lima. Bowling alleys are also in the basement. The third and billiard room on the first floor are managed by Bernie Halloran.

On the first floor is a cigar stand, pool and billiard room, barber shop and ice cream parlor.

On the second floor there are 30 commodious sleeping rooms. More than half of them have private baths.

LARGEST DANCE FLOOR

Lodge rooms, comprising the side offices, reception hall and the largest dancing floor in the city, are on the top floor of the building. There is night and day elevator service.

Enterprise of the lodge in erecting the building, with its many attractive features, has been highly praised by persons coming to Lima from other cities.

Bethany Lutheran Sunday school association will meet in the men's class room on Monday at 7:30 p. m. Matters of interest to the association and time of new plans will be discussed.

Many of the delegates and state officers are to be quartered at the Argonne, Elizabeth and High-sts., within easy walking distance of convention headquarters, in the Knights of Columbus building.

Others will be roomed at the Norval and the Barr. Still others will find quarters at the Lima House and Waldo during their three days' stay in the city.

AUTOS NEEDED TO BRING CHILDREN TO BIG KITE CONTEST NEXT SATURDAY

Members of the automobile club have been asked by the Kiwanis club to provide machines to bring children from the Allen-co home to the fair grounds next Saturday to witness the kite tournament.

Those who will furnish machines are being asked to communicate with O. L. DeWeese, chairman of the committee in charge, as soon as possible.

The Kiwanis club is desirous of having the wards of the county present at the big contest and transportation can be furnished only thru the benevolence of auto owners.

LODGE NOTICES

Members of Lincoln court, No. 23, Tribe of Ben Hur, are requested to be present at a card party to be held following lodge, next Wednesday evening. Refreshments.

Officers and team of Cedar Grove, No. 24, Woodmen circle, who will make the trip to Celina, are requested to meet Monday at 7 p. m. at Donze hall, for practice.

PARADE NOT PLANNED AS ONE OF FEATURES OF K. C. STATE CONVENTION

Contrary to past custom followed by state conventions of all sorts of organizations, there will be no parade during the Knights of Columbus state convention in Lima during the coming week.

"We decided not to have a parade," declared John P. Kaville, grand knight, "because a lot of time and effort is needed to stage one, if it is to be a success."

"Moreover, we felt that the delegates were coming here not to tire themselves out marching thru the streets, but to have an enjoyable time and transact necessary business." Besides, he added, "there is no particular reason for having one."

DANCE ARRANGED FOR TUESDAY

Grand Ball Closing Feature of K. C. Convention

The annual state convention of the Knights of Columbus, which is to be held in Lima this week, will be brought to a close with a ball at the K. of C. Recreation building Tuesday night.

Attendance will be limited, the committee announces, to members of the council, delegates and visitors. The ball will be appropriately decorated for the affair and it is anticipated that attendance will be sufficient to place dancing space at a premium, despite the fact that the dance hall is the largest in Lima.

Special decorations for both the dance and reception halls are to be arranged.

Regan's orchestra will furnish music during the evening.

Frank Schenk and William O'Connor constitute a committee in charge of arrangements for the dance.

MINERS' SIDE OF STRIKE TO BE PRESENTED HERE

Viewpoint of the mine workers regarding the present coal strike will be presented to the public in an open air meeting to be held in Fawcett park Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

State officers of the United Mine Workers of America will present the miners' side of the controversy. Lee Hall, president; William Roy, district organizer, and G. W. Savage, secretary and treasurer, will be present.

This meeting will be held under the auspices of the Lima Trades and Labor council. They invite all citizens to be present. W. S. Barringer is the secretary-treasurer of the Lima body.

BOYS' AUTHOR TO VISIT LIMA

Father Francis Finn Is State Chaplain of K. C.

WILL ATTEND CONVENTION

Is Author of "Tom Playfair" and Other Works.

Boys, and girls thruout the land have responded to the thrilling stories from the magic pen of one of the widest-read authors for young people—Rev. Father Francis J. Finn, of Cincinnati. Catholic and Protestants alike have enjoyed the works of the noted clergyman and it will be the good fortune of the youth of Lima to see him in person and shake his hand, perhaps.

HERE FOR K. OF C. MEET

Rev. Finn, state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, will be here during the K. of C. state convention and lead in the spiritual functions of the great assembly.

His engrossing stories of college life, the struggles of boys who have been required to make their own way in the world, humorous sketches of youngsters who were not bad at heart but merely mischievous, all interwoven with a sprinkling of pathos, are qualities which make them so universally read.

But few Catholic boys are unacquainted with Father Finn's limitable hero "Tom Playfair," who lives in the story of the same name, among the first of Rev. Finn's books.

Tom is a good example of the characters which have sprung out of the writer's mind. They are living characters, throbbing with life and love, created by Father Finn to teach the one thing that stands out paramount in his works—right always conquers wrong.

IS FAVORITE AUTHOR

His "Claude Lightfoot" is no less popular and hundreds of other books which the prolific priest-author penned stand as monuments to his ability. He is also the author of a large number of essays and papers on theological subjects. Among Catholic clergymen he is recognized as one of their most effective authors. Recognition in that respect is no less sweeping in the ranks of writers at large.

It will be a great occasion for the youth who admire his books. To grasp the hand that penned "Tom Playfair" will be a privilege long to be remembered by them.

LIMA COUNCIL IS FOSTER BODY

Many K. C. Councils Begun Under Local Auspices

OFFICERS OF LIMA COUNCIL

Many Visitors Expected for State Convention

Lima Council No. 426 Knights of Columbus was founded in June, 1899, with a charter membership of 30. Today it numbers more than 700. It has grown from a small organization to one of the strongest in the state and it was because of its efficient organization that the state convention of the Knights was brought to Lima this year.

IS PARENT COUNCIL
Many councils have been fostered by the Lima council until they were able to stand on their own feet. The continued success each of these councils has had shows that the start they received was in the right direction.

Councils at Wapakoneta, Ottawa, Findlay, Delphos, Colma and St. Marys have at one time been a part of the Lima organization and were separated from it when their membership grew and the council prospered.

Each of these councils is expected to join with the Lima council in making this convention the greatest success of any yet held in the state. Large delegations and many visitors have signified their intention of being present from these councils and are expected to swell the attendance records to a new high mark.

OFFICERS OF LIMA COUNCIL
Officers at the present time are: John Keville, Grand Knight; Clarence McCreary, deputy grand knight; Rev. A. B. Manning, chaplain; J. M. Madigan, treasurer; J. H. O'Connor, advocate; Michael Burke, warden; John Callahan, chancellor; P. J. O'Connor, financial secretary; T. J. Mulligan, recording secretary; E. J. Vessey, guard and William Tienan, outer guard.

Trustees for the ensuing year are A. C. Cadzow, James Duffield and George Shanahan.

DAMAGE SUIT OUTCOME OF CRASH OF AUTOS

Suit for $64.50 damages brought by the London Guarantee & Accident Co., London, England, against the Lima Yellow Taxi Co., and A. H. Miller, will be heard before Justice E. M. Botkin Monday.

The suit is brought on behalf of Norman O'Brien, whose Hudson super-six is said to have been damaged in a collision with a cab January 23. Witnesses summoned to testify regarding responsibility for the crash are: H. C. Rudy, 663 S. Union-st.; T. B. Holland, 856 Brice-av.; Norman O'Brien, 538 W. Spring-st.; A. B. Chamberlain, and Ed Wallace, police officer.

BOXING CARD TO BE FEATURE

Entertainment Planned for K. of C. Visitors, Monday

BRYAN DOWNEY TO REFEREE

Lions, Elks, Rotary, Kiwanis, Moose, Legion to Aid

Entertainment galore will await delegates to the 1934 state convention of the Knights of Columbus and Lima citizens when the curtain rings up at Memorial Hall, Monday night.

Not only will one of the best boxing bills ever offered in Lima be presented, but members of the various luncheon clubs and lodges will put on stunts for the entertainment of the delegates and visitors.

Elks will play a prominent part in the program with their male chorus. This chorus had attracted much favorable comment when it has appeared on other occasions and will have several new numbers ready for the Memorial Hall event.

LEGION TO AID
A patriotic number featuring the Legion Drum and Bugle corps will be staged by William Paul Gallagher Post No. 96, American Legion. Berda Ewing Fritz and Helen Bowers, soloists, will appear in a special number as the representatives of the Lions club. Special songs will be presented by these two popular singers.

Vaudeville sketches, the exact nature of which are being kept secret, will be presented by the Rotary club, the Kiwanis club and the Loyal Order of Moose. Snappy entertainment is promised by these organizations.

Prior to the program at Memorial Hall a special band will meet at the K. of C. recreation building and serenade the visitors at the various hotels of the city. It will return to the recreation building and escort the delegates and visitors in a body to Memorial Hall.

BRYAN DOWNEY COMING
An added feature of the program will be the appearance of Bryan Downey, champion middleweight boxer, as a referee in one of the boxing bouts. It is possible that Downey will referee the main go.

Sale of seats indicates that a crowded house will greet the local performers and the boxers when the curtain goes up. More than 500 delegates to the convention will receive tickets to the entertainment.

BAND IS ORGANIZED
Junior members of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Sunday school organized the Junior Mission Band at a meeting Saturday afternoon at the church parsonage. Mission work is the chief aim of the organization. Paul Peffy was elected president. Jacob Renz, secretary, and Eileen Wilson, treasurer. A social hour followed the meeting of the band.

ROYAL WELCOME FOR GUESTS

Welcome Sign Will Be Out for K. of C. Visitors

A tremendous task awaited the Lima Knights of Columbus when they started to prepare for the state convention which opens here today. Hundreds of details came up for attention and the task of arranging a program of entertainment and educational value required the undivided attention of the officers.

300 DELEGATES
Hundreds of visitors will be in Lima during the convention, as well as the 300 delegates and officers and plans had to be devised to care for them in a satisfactory way.

Hotel accommodation was a scarce article early last week and members of the committee in charge of the convention found it necessary to use their ingenuity to provide places for the delegates and visitors to stay while in the city.

All the work of the pre-convention program has been carried out by a small committee working under J. B. Dugan, general chairman. A small committee was considered to be the most efficient, Grand Knight Keville said.

CONVENTION COMMITTEE
Members of the committee and the work assigned to them are: James L. Henry, reception committee; L. J. Hanley, church ceremonies; P. J. O'Connor, general secretary; E. J. Weadock, treasurer; James Duffield, hotel accommodations; John Keville, publicity; Frank Colucci, automobile tour, and M. J. Mooney, chairman.

These eight men have handled all the details of the big convention and to them is due any credit for the smooth way in which everything is carried out. It is true that they have been aided by every member of Lima council, but it is in their heads that the various plans were evolved and thru their direction that the plans were carried out.

CUNNINGHAM WILL VOICE WELCOME

Mayor to Officially Open K. of C. Convention

CONTESTS ARE ANTICIPATED

Grand Ball Planned as Windup of Big Affair

Activities proper of the 1922 Knights of Columbus state convention will commence Tuesday morning. Monday will be the day for serious consideration of state council problems.

A requiem high mass at St. Rose church will open the convention proper. The mass will be for the deceased members of the council. It will be celebrated by Monsignor A. E. Manning, assisted by the clergy of St. Gerard's and St. John's churches.

Delegates and visitors to the convention will meet at the K. of C. recreation building at 8 a. m. and proceed to the church in a body. Hundreds of Knights from nearby towns are expected to be present at the celebration of the mass.

Immediately following the mass the delegates will return to the convention hall in the recreation building for the sessions of the convention.

Mayor Harold Cunningham will welcome the Knights on behalf of the city of Lima. Response will be given by one of the state officers.

No formal program for the convention has been prepared. Addresses by prominent Knights and resolutions presented by councils throughout the state will be a part of the business of the convention.

Grand Knight John Keville said in the afternoon of Tuesday the first contest will come. State officers will be elected and the convention closed for next year will be chosen.

Altogether several cities have signified their intention of fighting for the honor of welcoming the 1923 convention and considerable lobbying is expected by local Knights.

Selection of the state officers always brings interest to a white heat and the contest is expected to be especially warm and close this year.

Balloting on the officers will not come until late Tuesday afternoon.

and will be the last act of the 1922 convention, Grand Knight Keville believes.

A grand ball in the gayly decorated hall in the recreation building will wind up the convention. This will be open to Knights and their families and will be largely attended, it is believed.

Everything points to one of the most successful conventions ever seen in the state of Ohio. The local committee is doing everything in its power to make it so.

SPRING SOCIAL SEASON NOW AT ITS ZENITH

MAY'S ARRIVAL
GIVES IMPETUS TO GAY AFFAIRS

Society Women Plan Golf Activity—Musical Extravaganza Is Made a Success—Fine Arts Exhibition Feature of the Week Just Closed

(By ROSEMARY CHRISTEN)

LUNCHEONS, informal bridge-teas, luncheon-bridges, attractive but informal dinner parties, final benefits, the closing meetings of the various clubs—all tend to evidence that the spring social season is at its zenith.

With arrival of the month of May, the social calendar begins to assume more of its oldtime gayety. Each week announcements of engagements and weddings increase and it is now conceded that the crest of the bridal season in June, the month of brides, will exceed all previous experience.

During the past week the Women Golfers held an informal all-day gathering at the Shawnee Country club to organize and talk over plans for the golf season. Golf was the favorite diversion of many during the early spring and even during the winter months, but for those who were not able to withstand winter's rigors on the course, and the various difficult and unpleasant features, which arise when one indulges in this sport during the cold and disagreeable days, the warm sunshine and the delightful days are welcomed. Danger of the vandal foot of man injuring the tender grass is past, consequently, hopes ride high for the wielder of the driver, the brassie and putter.

During the past several weeks a number of the young matrons and young girls were engaged in lending their time and talent to the success of the musical extravaganza, "Oh, Oh, Cindy," which was so successfully presented Friday and Saturday evenings at Faurot Opera House, under the auspices of the St. Martha's Guild of Christ Episcopal church. The musical was a revelation of the splendid talent and artistic qualities which exist among residents of this city.

During the fore part of the past week students and lovers of art, music and literature were given a delightful treat in the Fine Arts Exhibition in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, under the auspices of the Fine Arts Department of the City Federation of Women's Clubs. The artists for the occasion were Paul Shivel, poet and reader; Archie A. Mumma, composer of bird music and songs and Robert Whitmore, painter and etcher, all of Dayton. The programs presented by these three interesting and inspiring men were very uplifting and worth while and the exhibition proved to be a splendid success. During their stay in this city the three artists were honored with several attractive informal social affairs.

Mrs. John Myers and Mrs. Ross Wolf welcomed the members of the Progressive Euchre club at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Myers' home on W. McKibben-st., Thursday.

A centerpiece of yellow roses adorned the table while white candles and yellow ribbons tied with yellow silk gave a pretty effect.

An afternoon of euchre followed the luncheon. Mrs. Ray Pangle and Mrs. Carl Mast holding high scores among the members and Mrs. Glenn Versole among the guests. Mrs. Versole was consoled. ## FASHION TURNS TO THE BRIDAL MODE (CENTER) JADE GREEN CREPE ROMAIN NEGLIGEE, FROM MILLER, PARIS, ORNAMENTED WITH STEEL NAIL HEADS. THE TWO SLIPS (ON EITHER SIDE) WHICH COMBINE ARE COMBINATIONS OF FILLET AND DUCHESS AND FILLET AND ROSE POINT.

By MARIAN HALE

Brides and an array of bridal finery. Such is the traditional combination. The approach of June would be quite as colorless without the flurry of wedding preparations as it would be without the promise of its roses.

The world of bridal appointment is a thrill and a flutter with new ideas, new fabrics, new designs. Lovelier than ever.

First, what of colors? Paris and America agree that the bridal negligee shall be as light in tint as it is in weight. Leave the deep, rich tones and black to the matrons.

Jade green, rose of a pale ash tint, mauve and white are good.

With trimming, the June bride may go as far as she likes; however, some of the cleverest of gowns designed for hours of rest are quite plain.

For the slips worn directly under the wedding gown fashion censors offer fillet combined with rose point or duchess lace.

With the demands which must be made upon it by the wearing of various types of gowns and suits the bride who cannot be lavish in her expenditures finds that part of her planning which deals with under-garments no simple thing.

Voile is an excellent fabric for the three combinations to be worn under fluffier frocks for afternoon and strictly summer wear. For the sixth suit, a part of the wedding outfit proper, the bride may let her fancy deal as it will with silks and ribbon.

There should be at least six cambriles, preferably white. One white silk crepe and one dark silk petticoat is plenty in this petticoated day.

Of stockings there should be a plentiful supply, at least a dozen pairs.

OHIO FEDERATION NEWS

(By Mrs. George Elliott McCormick)

Accepting the sentiment expressed at district conferences already held as indicative of what will be the action of the remaining spring meetings, Ohio club women are opposed to a memorial at this time for World War soldiers. The Central district, April 21 and 26 and the Southeast district April 27 and 28, both voiced protest against any movement of the kind, the proposition being voted upon at Westerville and Chillicothe.

Both the Westerville and Chillicothe conferences were unusually well attended. Mrs. William N. Harter, national vice president of the Central district, and Mrs. Edwin D. Sayer, Athens, vice president of the Southeast district, were both highly complimented because of that fact. The next meeting of the Central district will be held at Zanesville this fall and the 1922 conference will be conducted in Marion, resolutions being accepted from both districts at the Westerville convention.

Mrs. C. S. Selover, Cleveland, president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, addressed both conferences on federation work, emphasizing American citizenship. Other speakers included Mrs. James Fleming, Cleveland, state corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. R. Fox, Cincinnati, vice president at large; Mrs. William H. Sharp, Columbus, former state president and now Ohio secretary for the General Federation; Mrs. J. L. Selby, Greenville, loan scholarship secretary; and Mrs. John MacKee, Springfield, chairman of the state federation art committee.

The purchase of the General Federation home in Washington was approved by a vote of both districts. Mrs. Fleming urged the secretary of all clubs to send her the names of new officers for the new edition directory. In her address concerning loan scholarships, Mrs. Selby presented to the Westerville conference Miss Alice Knack, an, blind student at Otterbein University, who is being educated by the state federation.

OHIO FEDERATION NOTES

"Know Your Own Community," is the subject discussed at a quarterly meeting of the Willard Federation, April 24. Dr. Whisler, president of the Willard board of education, spoke on "Health." School Superintendent Kramer, talked on the community; Mrs. Louis Sinnermacher spoke on "Our Library and Its Benefits." and R. D. Jenkins, Willard, spoke on "The Future of the Federation." Mrs. Fleming, asking the federation to support the public library and aid in securing a public library, presented to the Willard Federation a letter from the Willard Federation, asking the federation to support the public library and aid in securing a public library.

On April 23, the Lima Federation adopted an open meeting. Miss Ruth, of the Toledo Art Museum, gave a lecture on "The Value of Art to the Community." Her lecture was very appropriately illustrated.

During the past year, Mrs. Beecher Moke, president of the Lima Federation, has had an uncommonly successful administration. During the past year twenty clubs have been admitted to the Lima Federation.

At a recent meeting of the Youngstown Federation, Mrs. J. T. Willard Ritter was reelected president of the federation for another two-year period. In the annual report of the Youngstown Federation, it is disclosed that work has been done in civic improvements, library offering, charity co-operation with the city, state and national problems discussed and endorsed, attending upon council and court proceeding and many other matters of extreme importance to club women. Six clubs were admitted to the Youngstown Federation during the year. The membership of the Youngstown Federation is now about 1,000.

MACARONI, SPAGHETTI

Sister Mary suggests some easy ways to prepare them

Macaroni and spaghetti have many possibilities for delicious main dishes. Careful seasoning always makes any dish, but macaroni or spaghetti demand the most particular attention in this respect.

Altho both macaroni and spaghetti are usually cooked before combining with seasonings this first cooking is one of great consideration. The macaroni and spaghetti should not be overcooked. Drop it into boiling salted water and boil not more than 15 minutes. This insures tenderness in the finished dish, but allows the cereals or vegetables, as you choose to designate them, to cook in the seasonings and blend into the other ingredients.

"MIXTURE"

Four tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons olive oil, 3 cloves, garlic, 1 cup dried mushrooms, 2 cups stewed veal, 2 cups tomatoes, 1-2 cups spaghetti, salt and pepper.

Cook garlic in butter and oil till garlic is brown. Soak mushrooms in water to cover till mushrooms are soft and add water and mushrooms to garlic.

Add meat, tomatoes, thyme and bay leaves. Simmer very slowly, stirring occasionally, till the meat is in shreds. It will take about two hours. Season with salt and pepper.

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and hold under cold running water.

Put a layer of spaghetti in a buttered baking dish, add a layer of meat and gravy. Continue layer for layer till all is used. Bake in a moderate oven for half an hour.

SPAGHETTI WITH TOMATO SAUCE

One-fourth pound unbroken spaghetti, 1 quart canned tomatoes, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup grated cheese, salt and pepper.

Cook the spaghetti in boiling salted water for 10 minutes. Rub the tomatoes thru a strainer and cook till reduced to two cups. Melt the butter in a smooth saucepan, but do not let it brown or bubble.

Add the partially cooked and drained spaghetti and lift with a fork until it has absorbed all the butter. Add tomatoes and simmer 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper and add cheese. Lift with forks till cheese is melted and thoroughly mixed with spaghetti.

Serve with more grated cheese.

STEAMED MACARONI AND CHEESE PUDDING

One-half pound cheese (grated), 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup broken macaroni, 2 eggs, salt and pepper, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, salt and pepper, 3 whole cloves, 1-2 teaspoon minced onion.

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and blanch. Mix cheese, two tablespoons butter, salt and pepper with macaroni. Add the eggs slightly beaten and beat the whole well. Turn into a buttered mold and steam 1-2 hours.

Turn out on a deep platter and surround with tomato sauce.

For the tomato sauce: Cook tomatoes, sugar, butter, salt and pepper, cloves and minced onion till a smooth thick sauce is formed.

Beat the tomatoes smooth with a fork while they are cooking. It will take about 20 minutes to make the sauce.

Valmalette and she did not write or think of poetry or song until her son was killed in the war.

And then another son was killed. And then her husband. And last of all her daughter died from an illness growing out of war service.

"I have suffered," says Madame Parigot, "and when one suffers one is forced to self-expression else the weight of the burden must destroy its bearer."

"I took a masculine name when I began writing because I did not want to create an atmosphere of cheap sentimentalism about myself and my songs and verses for soldiers."

HER FACE TRAGIC

"Bpt," and Madame smiled. Her smiles are rare. Her face is rather tragic, much of the time, an impression heightened by her unusual coloring.

"But," she repeated, "I should rather be a woman for one little day than be a man for a million years!"

"Ah, yes! Women suffer more because their sensibilities are finer, more delicate."

"But as they suffer more they come to know life better, they live more intensely. A woman lives more in one hour than a man lives in a day. That is why I should rather be a woman."

OUR FIRST YEAR

OUR FIRST QUARREL

I strung my beads on a stony thread while Jack finished his shaving. We hadn't expected to find each other perfect, I thought. I wasn't. But I did most things the best I could—here fell a few tears almost as large as my beads—and I believed that Jack had married me because he preferred me to all other women—more tears—but what Jack really wanted was to sit opposite Mrs. Herrod and make life one continual game of chess!

I tied the ends of my threads as neatly as possible. I heard my husband go to the closet for his coat. From my third story window, I saw the postman coming up the street, and without speaking to Jack, I started down stairs after the mail.

"Peggins!" I heard Jack call. I did not answer. "Peg! Come back here!"

My husband's voice was stern. Never had I heard him speak so. My prolonged silence of the morning had produced some reaction, I was pleased to note.

But if Jack was exasperated, at last, so was I! I proceeded on my errand down stairs and paid no attention whatever to Mr. John Cuthbert Madison.

"I'm ordered—by a husband—like that! Who would have dreamed that my considerate Jack could become so domineering? And what could a bride of spirit do but ignore a young husband's first harsh command?"

The postman had left nothing in our box. I gave it a swift glance, and rushed out of doors.

I had just enough common sense left to realize that Jack had not seen the postman, had not understood why I was going down stairs without him, had not asked why, wouldn't have let me go for the mail had he known, would have gone himself.

Moved I know not by what streak of stubbornness, I flew out of the house, hearing Jack on the stairs just before the door slammed behind me. A score of steps took me around the corner of the building.

I wanted to get away from Jack, wanted to think alone, wanted him to miss me.

How could I make him feel that he needed me, that already I had become indispensable as long as I stayed at home and made him comfortable, as long as I amused him? That had been woman's ancient way. What had it got for her? For my own mother it had ended in divorce.

Well, I had learned from mother's experience.

I would not forgive Jack too easily, that I decided, altho by this time I was not very clear about what Jack ought to be forgiven.

And how was I to guess that Jack imagined the impossible, that he had divined my hurt about Mrs. Herrod, and that when I left our suite, he believed I was leaving him, he knew not for how long!

'FLAPPERS DON'T EXIST,' SAYS ARTIST

MRS. AGNES E. MAYER SITTING BEFORE HER CANVAS, "YOUTH"

NEW YORK. — (Special)—Flappers don't exist! This is the opinion of Mrs. Agnes E. Mayer, artist distinctive for the spiritual and beauty of the faces and figures she creates on the canvas.

Mrs. Mayer's latest painting, "Youth," an exquisitely beautiful conception, has been the subject of widespread comment on account of its rare loveliness. The vital delicacy of the figure, that of a girl of about the flapper age, is magnetic and fascinating.

"The flapper, as we generally 'with hat and swagger, walk a swagger, soul-a-swagger, is a non-existent thing of her,' said Mrs. Mayer, as mermaids.

"There aren't any such souls!" she continued. "Every girl and every woman has a beautiful spiritual side, which is her real nature."

"I have found that true in every case. I have found some of my models I take from the streets and from prison. And I paint what I really see in their faces."

"I could remove the swagger drappings from almost any so-called flapper and find in her the soul of 'Youth.'"

Mrs. Mayer then told how she found the soul for one of her famous paintings, "Dour" (Giver), which Mrs. Oliver Hartman presented to the American Committee for Relief in the Near East and which sold for $150,000.

Searching for this face, to represent the spirit of 'Charity,' Mrs. Mayer found a youth on the city streets, ill-clothed and badly in need of help. But in his face she perceived something of what the spirit of Charity must have, so she asked him to pose for her.

The picture moved along with the lad as a model, until at a certain point the artist found that there was not the further quality in his face which she must have for her picture.

Seeking again for a model with which to complete the painting, Mrs. Mayer found a girl, a professional model, from whose face she completed the great work.

"Spiritual beauty," said Mrs. Mayer, "cannot be created, but it is to be found in every human being when one can touch the true vibration."

"I believe that a girl has the right to do anything which she feels will make her more beautiful," she continued, "but there is nothing which so destroys the spiritual as artifice. 'Beauty' is a wonderful introduction. It is nothing more."

"If a woman is ugly she should be proud of her ugliness and rise above it."

"Personally, mentally, and spiritually will hold interest."

The members of the Excelsior club entertained with a dinner party Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Bogart, of W. Wayne-st., for the pleasure of their husbands and a group of guests.

A color scheme of yellow and white was carried out in the appointments for the dinner. An evening of five hundred followed the dinner, high scores being held by Mrs. J. D. Ousley, Miss Lucie Phillips, Frank Clark and C. E. Umbaugh. Dancing and music were also enjoyed.

Those enjoying the affair included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thirkield, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ousley, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Rohn and son Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Cotterman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Welby, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Biewer, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Umbaugh, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heiser, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willower, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stacy, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Weigel, of Sidney, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark, of Palm Beach, Fla.; Mrs. Pearl Hayward, of Detroit; Mrs. A. L. Ransbottom, Miss Lucie Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Bogart.

May 19th Mrs. Roy Bower will open her home to the members for a covered dish dinner.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart: I am a man 35 years of age, and have been married 10 years. My wife's mother has separated us six times. Her mother puts silly notions in her head and then she runs off and leaves me. She is away now for a little while. I feel that for his sake we should live together and bring him up properly. I would do anything of bring my wife back. For several weeks I have been going with a very nice young girl. She is anxious to marry me as soon as I get a divorce. Don't you think that I should get a divorce and teach my wife a lesson?

A READER.
What a consistent man you are! You state that you think you and your wife should make an effort to live together for your child's sake and that you would do anything to bring her back, yet at the same time you are contemplating a divorce simply "to teach your wife a lesson." Lessons that hurt and destroy rather than improve and uplift should be avoided.

You are not sincere in your statement that your son needs both your protection and your wife's love and guidance if you do not exert every effort to persuade your wife to return and stay with you.

It seems very improbable that your wife's mother should attempt to break up your home unless she has some very good reason for doing so. Certainly you must have some serious faults or you do not try to make your wife happy. If you have been a good and kind husband and have done everything to make your wife happy and comfortable, certainly none of her relatives would have anything against you. The fact that you have been paying attention to this young girl whom you mention, proves that you have not been a faithful husband. As long as you are a married man, you are committed to the greatest of sins in offering attentions to any woman other than your wife. You have been unfair to your wife and to this young girl and have only cheated yourself.

Give up this other girl and in the future be manly and straightforward, conducting yourself in such a manner that you will merit and deserve the respect of right-thinking people. Prove to your wife by your conduct that you love her and want her to return to you. At the same time by rectifying your mistakes you will be hindering her mother from criticizing you. . . .

Dear Miss Smart: I am a young wife and I want to ask you for a little advice. I do not know a great deal about cooking and it is so difficult for me to know what to have for dinner all the time. Will you be good enough to offer me a few suggestions?

MRS. NEWLYWED.
A simple pudding or pie is the national dessert of our United States. An orange pudding always pleases and it is easily made. Boil a pint of sweet milk, pour it upon three eggs lightly beaten, mix in the grated peel of an orange and two ounces of loaf sugar. Beat it together for 10 minutes, then pour the custard into a pie dish, set it into another containing a little water and put in a moderate oven. When the custard is set, which generally takes about half an hour, take it out and let it get cold. Then sprinkle over rather thickly some fine sugar, and brown. This should be eaten cold.

A fruit surprise, consisting of oranges, eggs, bananas and pineapples cut in dice, set for hours in the ice box and served with whipped cream, is a great favorite. Rice and tapioca puddings never grow monotonous.

The Jitsu Tau club will meet with Mrs. Vernon Hosselmann, of W. Wayne-st., Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Norman Nunemaker, of W. Elm-st., will open her home to the members of the Social and Literary club, Friday afternoon.

Miss Leona Rosenheim, a student at Ypsilanti, is spending the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Rosenheim, of State-st.

The Community Service club will hold an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. E. W. McElvay, of 216 N. Jameson-av., Wednesday.

Mrs. E. W. Hiner, of the Thomas-av., is entertaining the members of her bridge club with a luncheon-bridge at the Hotel Norval, Wednesday.

The Pythian Sisters will entertain with an old fashioned square dance and cards Friday evening in Castle Hall. All K. of P.'s and friends are cordially welcome.

STUDENTS LEARN THRU CREATIVE EFFORTS

By ALEXANDER HERMAN
Dishwashing isn't exactly what the average individual considers a part of school life. There isn't any place on the majority of report cards for an E for excellent in dishwashing.

But such a condition is probably just in the offing, for already New York boasts of one school with such a report card — the Social Motive School.

Life, at Social Motive School, begins with a doll and the informing of boy students that dollie must have a bed to sleep in and a chair to sit on, while the girls are told that dollie needs dresses to wear and pretty covers for the bed.

TRACES SOURCE
The little folk are taught, then, to make the things which dollie needs.

"No longer," says Miss Bertha M. Bentley, principal, "is school life something separate from the outside world. Instead it is the means of understanding life. Every school activity should be an experience increasing the social efficiency of the child."

"The little girl knitting the sweater for the doll traces the wool back to the lamb. The boy building the house learns about lumbering. 'Before they are thru,' explains Miss Bentley, 'they all know about the necessities of life — food, shelter and clothing.'"

There is little discipline in the classrooms. The children are too busy to need it.

They soon learn that the best way to get along is to help each other," Miss Bentley says. "By approaching every problem in the school thru the real needs and situations of life."

STUDEBAKER SLOGAN NOT AN ADVERTISING PHRASE BUT A STATEMENT OF FACT

PLANTS WILL BE ENLARGED

Studebaker Corporation Announces Increase to Supply Demand.

LIMA MEN ATTEND MEET

Local Dealer Represented at Detroit Convention.

(BY R. E. ASHLEY)
Up to within the past week I had always considered the slogan used by the Hawisher Motor Car Company—"This is a Studebaker Year"—was just a clever bit of advertising promulgated by a hustling agency. But when I witnessed the clamor for cars at the district convention of Studebaker dealers in Detroit and heard the general sales manager apologize for not being able to build them fast enough to supply their orders, I changed my mind. I came to the conclusion that this was indeed a Studebaker year. Studebaker has come back and is hitting a big stride.
The Studebaker factories have been running at full capacity ever since last summer and there was hardly a dealer out of the three hundred that attended the meet that did not want more cars than they were able to secure. Detroit local agency reported they were three hundred cars behind their sales while word from New York stated that eleven hundred more Studebakers had been sold there than could be supplied.
They tell me that Studebaker is the only automobile concern that has been running full force for any length of time and as a result Studebaker has attained first place in this country, and of course in the world, in the production of motor cars. So again, I had bought to mind that this is a Studebaker year.
It was an enthusiastic bunch of dealers that met in the ball room of the Hotel Tuller in Detroit last Monday. Dealers from Ohio mingled with dealers from Michigan. Following a very excellent dinner, J. W. Neeley, Detroit branch manager; A. G. Rumph, secretary of the Studebaker Corporation at South Bend; Mr. Hedgecock of the Industrial acceptance Corporation; E. B. Wilson, retail sales manager of Detroit; and W. E. Betts, advertising manager of South Bend, gave some mighty interesting talks.

During these talks I had noticed J. A. Ferguson, sales manager of the Lima agency, getting uneasy, sitting on the edge of his chair and looking for all the world as if he had something on his mind and was in a hurry to get it off.
Finally when he could contain himself no longer he sprang to his feet and issued a challenge to dealers in cities any where near the size of Lima to equal him on the number of cars to be sold during May. When the roar subsided the chairman asked him how many that would be. It was characteristic of Ferguson to answer that the number he would sell would be limited by the number he could secure from the factory. His challenge was accepted by the largest agency in Michigan outside of Detroit. Then Ferguson sat back contented and told E. H. Hawisher how he was going to do it. Ed says it can be done too.
The big address of the day was by Harry P. Epper, general sales manager from South Bend. He told the dealers that the factory was doing everything they could to keep the production up with the demand and that shortly three million dollars would be spent to increase the capacity and to permit the adding of 25,000 more men.
I had ridden from Lima to Detroit in a Studebaker without having been passed by any other car, but passing everything we came to. Then I heard the inside story of officials. Next I went to the factory and witnessed the actual making of Studebakers. I was surprised to see the quantity production that was going on. The quality of the raw material made an impression on me and I realized then why Studebakers stood such long road mileage. And the care the workmen took with each operation indicated that they were as anxious as the owners to turn out good cars.
Two hundred thousand dollars worth of cars were driven away from the factory that day. It was an imposing array. Mr. Hawisher tried his best to get more than the nine allotted him but he had to be content with a promise of more next week.
It is indeed a Studebaker year.

APRIL SHOWS BIG NASH SALE

All Previous Records Are Broken For Any Month.

Nash Motors in April had the biggest month in the history of its business. Eighteen per cent more cars were shipped last month than were shipped in April, 1921. Even the previous record month, August 1920, was entirely eclipsed in point of shipments during the thirty days just past.
"The fact that all previous records in the history of our business were broken in April, in my opinion, is due to the soundness of the product and the value it represents at the price," said C. B. Voorhis, Vice-President and Director of Sales of The Nash Motors Company. "Every effort consistent with careful production is being made to meet as nearly as possible the demand for Nash cars in May. Frankly, tho, we will not be able to supply the full demand for we have faced an over-sold condition, now, for the past two months.

"When we brought out our new line of cars the first of the year there was no doubt in our mind as to the reception they would meet. That was apparent at the very outset. All previous records were broken at the New York and Chicago Shows as well as at most of the shows subsequently held in various cities throught the country. With the opening of the spring season the pressure of orders became stronger until finally, some weeks ago, we reached the point where we were oversold.
"The first quarter of 1922 shows an increase of nearly fifty-two per cent over the similar period a year ago. This demand for Nash cars seems a certain indication that the public has placed its unqualified indorsement on the product of The Nash Motors Company."

BIG ORGANIZATION FOR LEXINGTON

Cooperative Financing Plan by the Company Goes Fine

EXECUTIVE GIVES OPINION

Speaks of New Lexington Price as a Decided Sensation

In conjunction with the announcement of its new Series 22 five-passenger Touring Car at $1745, the Lexington Motor Company, of Connersville, Ind., is conducting a vigorous campaign among its dealers. A published offer has resulted in a flood of inquiries, according to factory officials.

C. C. Blanch, executive vice-president of the Lexington Motor Company and one of the dominant figures in the automotive industry, is authority for the following statement:

"A wide-spread dealer organization has a very important significance to the purchaser of any motor car, either present or prospective. For it insures the owner of nationwide service."

"The motor car is a factor in national transportation today—and its wide usefulness is continuing to gain in importance as time goes on."

"It is therefore gratifying to know that when you start out on a trip or a tour that service facilities are available for your make of car if occasion arises for taking advantage of same."

"Lexington Motor Cars are nationally distributed already, but with a view to offering better service to present owners, as well as attracting prospective purchasers, an augmented dealer organization was deemed advisable and steps have been taken accordingly."

"Naturally, the product itself is of prime importance. The Series 22 Lexington is the fruit borne by more than a decade of earnest effort. It is a sensational value at $1745!

"Lexington's financial resources and manufacturing facilities assure factory permanence, which is so vital to the dealer's sustained success."

"And to cap it all off we can now offer the new dealers who are taken on, active assistance in financing their business!"

"Our factory-community system of manufacturing enables us to effect economies that are impossible under any other method. By grouping numerous parts-making plants under one control we can control quality from blue-print to finished car."

MARMON-TEAR-DOWN TO BE GIVEN BEFORE COLLEGE

The recent showing of the Marmon Tear-Down Demonstration in the classrooms of the local distributor of the Marmon car in various cities of the country, is the opening gun in a campaign to place this remarkable display in all of the principal cities of the country and especially before the technical schools and colleges.

Nordyke & Marmon Company is anxious to co-operate with the schools and colleges, bringing this demonstration to the school and furnishing the mechanics and the lecturer. The demonstration has already been made before the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Columbia University. At both places it created a remarkable impression and the authorities were enthusiastic over the manner in which the entire affair had been handled.

Motor classes of technical schools and colleges have long been handicapped by lack of facilities and material with which to work and this opportunity to have the Marmon engine brought to the very classroom torn down and rebuilt by expert mechanics, is one that will be of great benefit to them.

IMPROVEMENTS IN FORD CARS

Body and Mechanical Refinements Meet With Approval

The Timmerman Motor Sales Co., agents for Ford cars in Lima and vicinity, has just made public a list of recent improvements in the mechanical features of Ford cars.

Asserting that Ford cars are better today than they ever have been before, the statement adds that fuel consumption is lower; the engine is even more efficient than formerly; improvements in the springs and steering apparatus insure easier riding and driving qualities; a new headlamp lens, which complies with all state laws, improves the road light; and that many other minor betterments have been made.

Ford pistons and connecting rods have been re-designed and are matched for weight before assembling into motors. This reduces vibration and gives the motor a quicker pick-up. The new pistons weigh three-quarters of a pound less than those formerly used. A highly polished crank shaft bearing surface also reduces wear and added to the piston and connecting rod improvements, insures smoother running and better balanced motor. The material used in the Ford crankshaft and the care and precision in its manufacture make it second to none.

The new Ford carburetor gives increased acceleration. The not radically different from the carburetor previously used the new construction improves the all-around performance of the motor, giving it a quicker pickup and a greater flexibility of action.

The wiring system has been completely re-designed, and while it costs more to install than the old system, is most efficient, proof of which is evidenced by the fact that it affords a fire insurance rate as low as the higher priced cars on the market.

Many other changes have been made; A 16 inch steering wheel is now standard equipment; Timken roller bearings are used in the front wheels; one-piece pressed steel running board brackets insure body rigidity and eliminate vibration and body noises; a dash weather-tough prevents rain from reaching coil terminals; dash wiring, the steering mechanism has also been improved; and the tools supplied to purchasers of Ford cars have also been improved in quality. Another important improvement in the truck chassis is the adoption of cord tires as standard equipment on the rear wheels.

The change made some time ago in the seating arrangement of the touring car has met with widespread approval. By lowering the seats and altering the seat backs, greater comfort was added.

It is pointed out that retail sales of a million cars and trucks yearly, and the consumption of raw and finished products, at a cost of approximately one million dollars a day makes it possible to sell Ford cars at their present low prices and at the same time to produce a car of exceptionally high quality.

HOW TO JUDGE AN AUTO TO LEARN GOOD POINTS

How should an automobilist judge a car today? "Get behind it and drive it," is the answer given by Manager Snearly, of the Colonial Auto Sales

Co., Lima agents for Oakland automobiles. He sums up the reasons for this answer as follows: "The public is accustomed to judge an automobile too much today by hearsay. Some of these opinions reflect an old judgment on a car and do not reflect the judgment that would be made on the car if the prospective purchaser actually got behind the car today and judged for himself."

Oldfield Cords have given evidence of uniformly big mileage that cannot fail to influence the buyer. In a recent test 41 Oldfield Cords averaged 14,000 miles.

Oldfield demand has passed all precedent as Oldfield performance has broken all records.

Buy Months—or Miles of Battery Service

There's no more sense in figuring batteries on a first-cost basis than there is in figuring tires that way. The man who tries too hard to save on price usually finds that he's cut off a dollar's worth of value to save a nickel's worth of first cost.

You can't judge battery value by the looks of the battery or even by the way it behaves when new, because like a new tire, almost any battery is good enough for as long as the first few weeks' performance goes. It's when battery middle-age comes along that the difference between a really good battery and a merely good enough battery begins to show up.

When you count battery cost put in on a by-the-mile or by-the-month basis. Then you'll see that the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery is the most economical. Or if you don't care for figures, why not follow the judgment of the builders of 195 makes of cars and trucks who pay more for the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery in order to give their users the additional months and miles of service.

By the mile or by the month the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery saves you money.

Willard Standards of Service

3 To maintain replenishment of broad experience, judgment, and mechanical and electrical ability, upon whom owners of all makes of batteries can depend for accurate reports and sound advice as to the condition of their batteries, as well as expert repair service when needed.

4 To remember that good-will is the most precious of commercial assets to each one of us; and that the battery owner who comes in for testing and water is as welcome and as fully entitled to prompt, cheerful, expert service as the owner who is in need of work that creates revenue.

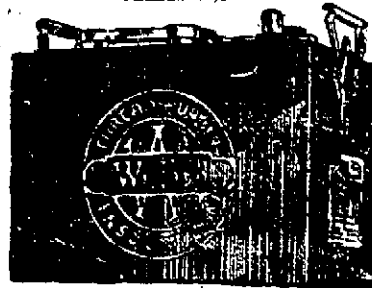

5 To manifest at all times, and to all visitors and customers, the same courtesy, interest, helpfulness, and good-will that we would like to receive if the position were reversed.

BUICK FAVORITE WITH MEMBERS

Detroit Auto Club Members Own More Buicks

More Buick cars are owned by members of the Detroit Automobile club, Detroit's representative car owners' organization, than any other make of car excepting Ford, according to L. B. Merritt, of the Sturtevant-Jones Co., local dealers. "Detroit knows automobiles—the world accepts that fact—and its keen discrimination for Buick is another and authoritative recognition of the hundred per cent performance Buick cars universally give.

While the qualities that combine to establish Buick in-built serviceability make the need for Buick service the exception rather than the rule, nation-wide authorized service is maintained as a part of the Buick plan to insure the owner uninterrupted transportation.

Authorized Buick service to owners everywhere is characterized by three things: promptness, efficiency and courtesy.

Promptness in serving Buick owners rests on the preparedness of the dealer and his close connection with the branch or distributor for his territory.

Efficiency in serving Buick owners from excellent equipment and genuine facilities to serve.

Courtesy is a characteristic of Buick service mainly because of the unusually high caliber of men in the sales and service organization.

These are the things that make "service" a word with a meaning significant to Buick owners.

As national as the distribution of Buick cars, authorized service stations are found wherever roads lead.

Authorized stations strengthen the security an owner naturally feels in driving a Buick, at home or on tour, and safeguard in the fullest measure an owner's investment in personal transportation.

Thousands of men and women in Lima and vicinity witnessed the automobile parade of used cars Saturday morning. This unique sales feature was instituted by Baxter Bros., who held a sale of these same cars immediately following the parade at their sales room, 123 W. Spring st.

Included in the list of used cars appearing in the parade, each of which was numbered in accordance with its position in line, were cars of prominent and popular manufacture. The sale was a decided success.

BUYIN A USED CAR? HERE'S HOW

Disappointment in a used car purchase may be averted by exercise of the following precautions:

ONE: The type of car, price limits and length of previous service should be decided so as to make the search for a used car easier.

TWO: Confronted by a possible purchase, the buyer should drain the radiator and look for radiator compound in the cooling system—sign of a temporary repair of a serious leak.

THREE: To tell the age of the car, approximate mileage and with what care it has been treated, jack up a rear wheel, engage low gear, release the brake and turn the raised wheel one way and the other. On a two-year-old car, the wheel should have about two or three inches of play to show the car has been treated with reasonable care.

FOUR: Note condition of paint work, upholstery and top.

FIVE: Examine the battery. Look for bulging of jar covers and dampness in the battery box which will indicate a serious battery fault.

SIX: Test the compression of the engine, by hand and while the engine is warm.

SEVEN: Test operation of the car. Do not mind engine missing while it is warming up, but the car should run smoothly and throttle down easily after it is warmed up.

EIGHT: Drive the car yourself, testing hill performance, pickup, various speeds and action of spark and throttle. Watch for jerky operation, knocks and other noises.

NINE: While driving, listen for rear axle and transmission noises. Test operation of the brakes.

TEN: Buck in the garage, test wheels for wobbling and trueness. Note condition of the tires.

Finally, test all equipment and accessories—horn, lights, dash instruments and other spare parts.

In addition if, the car selected is made by a reputable manufacturer, there is assurance of good service while the car is in use.

LIMA MOTORISTS TO COLUMBUS

State Association Meet to be Held There May 15 and 16

Lima delegates attending the annual convention of the Ohio State Automobile association to be held at the new Southern hotel, Columbus, May 15 and 16, will be entertained by the Columbus Automobile association. Being the convention host, the club thru various committees, is working out a number of features. The club rooms in the hotel building will be used as headquarters for the delegates.

Secretary-Manager Arthur C. Rodrian plans to have the club rooms attractively decorated and will arrange for the comfort and convenience of the visitors. Any information desired by the visitors concerning Columbus during their stay will also be furnished.

From all indications, many of the motorists who go to the convention will be accompanied by their wives and the ladies' committee will provide entertainment while the husbands are attending the sessions of the convention.

The banquet which will be held at the Deshler on Monday night, May 15, will be the most important entertainment feature planned by the club. Arrangements are being made to take care of about 500 persons.

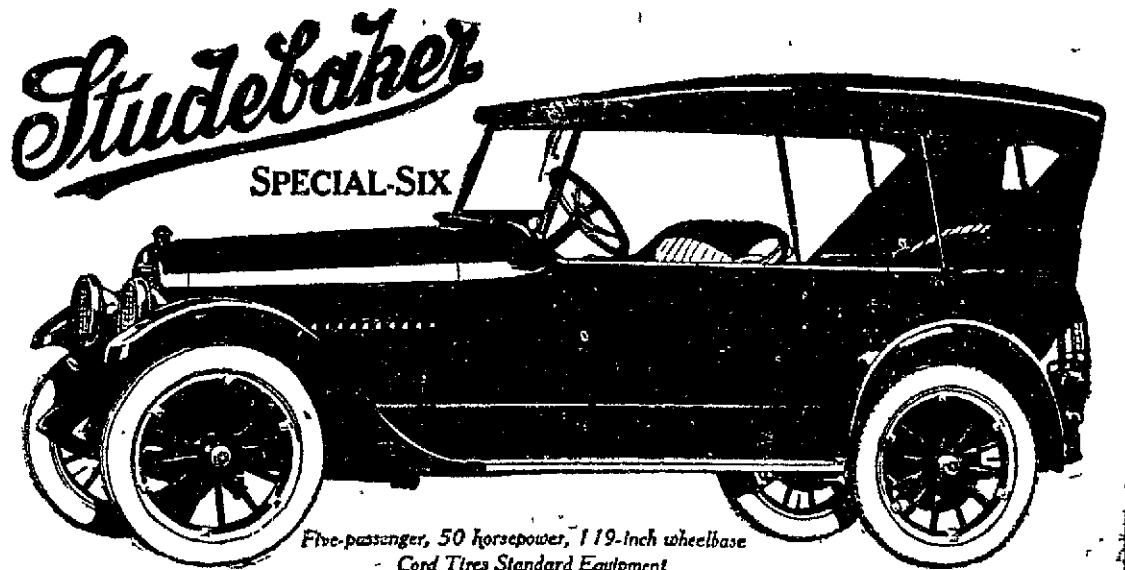

As reports indicate that many of the delegates and others who will attend the convention plan to motor to Columbus and since this will probably tax the accommodations of the public garages, the club is arranging with city officials to designate streets where the overflow cars can be parked and police protection given. The committee in charge of the parking plans is composed of three police officers who are also members of the club.

TO TIGHTEN TERMINALS

Loose battery terminals can be tightened by the application of thin sheets of tin foil. If the foil is wrapped around the cable end the terminal can be plugged in tightly. When the retaining nut is drawn tight perfect contact will be made.

BROADCASTING MICROPHONE LOOKS LIKE MIRROR

Radio Tubes Differ In Vacuum

(By R. L. DUNCAN)
Director, Radio Institute of America

WHY is it that some tubes are called detector tubes and some amplifying tubes and that the plate of the amplifier must have more "B" battery voltage than the plate of the detector, altho both seem to be alike?

Both tubes are constructed of the same quality of materials. Their chief difference lies in their vacuum.

A detector tube has a small amount of gas left inside while the amplifier is highly vacuumed — all oxygen and other gases being withdrawn.

It is this difference of vacuity that makes one tube a detector and the other an amplifier.

A detector tube is known as a "soft" tube and the amplifier as "hard." Frequently an amplifier becomes soft after consistent use. Don't throw it away. It may be used satisfactorily as a detector.

TRANSFORMERS
There are two classes of transformers used in radio reception—one in audio-frequency and the other in one or two-step amplification. Both have primary and secondary windings with an open or closed iron core.

These transformers are used in circuits where long receiving distance is desired. They are also efficient on an indoor loop antenna.

While it is possible for a skilled mechanic with a proper machine shop at his disposal to make these transformers, it will be found much cheaper to purchase them.

The ratio of the windings ranges from 2-1-2 to 1 to 6 to 1—that is, an audio-frequency transformer with a secondary of 27,500 turns of wire has a primary of 5500 turns.

Another make of transformer has 12,000 turns in the secondary and 3900 in the primary. The number of turns depends on the size of wire.

IT'S NOT A MIRROR, THIS TIME

Looks as tho Mme. Lydia Lypkowska, famous Russian singer, could never do without a mirror, even when her make-up is perfect. But you're wrong if you guess that thing at the right is a mirror. It's a highly sensitive microphone, thru which Mme. Lypkowska is sending her soprano voice from a central broadcasting station by radio to the fans who are "listening in."

which generally runs from No. 32 to No. 24—too fine for the average individual to use in experimenting.

CARE OF BATTERY AND ITS USE

What Constitutes Life of Average Battery on Automobile?

A FEW THOUGHTS ABOUT YOUR BATTERY

Asking how many months a battery will last is like asking how many months a pair of shoes will last. The maker, or his agent can only answer that it is "Wear, tear and care" that count, but at the same time he will lay special stress on the "care." Manufacturers of the Willard storage battery have figured as a matter of fact, that there are just four things that determine the life of a battery. These are use, time, care, and the quality of the battery itself.

If a person makes unusual demands upon a battery he will probably reduce its life by a few months, but with all other things equal he will have attained a satisfactory mileage. Consequently cost per mile in such a case is as fair a basis for comparison as cost per month.

The battery is something not only to use, but to use up. You provide your car with electricity for starting, lighting and ignition by using up the battery. The battery is not an inexhaustible supply of electricity, but it is a boxful of electricity making ingredients and these ingredients must be restored as used or the supply will give out. The best protection is to refill the cells with water, recharge the battery regularly, preferably at a service station, and make tests of the battery every two weeks. Such care will guard against a sudden and perhaps costly breakdown.

A new form of balancing machine has been invented to test crankshafts for vibration.

SET FOR DISTANCE AND POWER

One of the best radio receiving sets obtainable is the short wave regenerative set with a two-step amplifier.

With this set greater distance can be covered in receiving, and greater signal strength obtained. Its cost ranges from $160 up. But any amateur can assemble the set himself by purchasing the parts, if he doesn't want to make them, at a cost less than $80. This includes the price of batteries, tubes, phones and everything from the antenna down to the ground.

THE HOOK-UP

Rig up, according to the diagram follows:

No. 1 — Primary of the variocoupler.
No. 2 — Secondary.
No. 3 — Variable condenser in series with the antenna.
No. 4 — Grid variometer.
No. 5 — Grid condenser and grid leak.

No. 6 — Detector tube.
No. 7 — Plate variometer or tickler.

No. 8 — "A" battery rheostat controlling current flowing to the filament.

No. 9 and No. 12 — Audio frequency transformers.

No. 10 and No. 13 — Amplifying vacuum tubes.

No. 11 and No. 14 — Rheostats controlling filament current in amplifying tubes.

No. 15 — Head phones shunted by fixed condenser.

No. 16 and No. 17 — 22 1-2 volt "B" batteries.

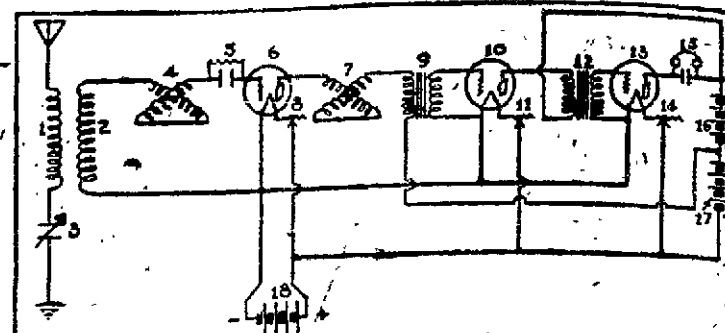

No. 18 — A six-volt storage or "A" battery.

This receiving set with vacuum tube detector and two-step amplifier should be mounted in a cabinet about eight inches high, 24 inches long and seven inches deep.

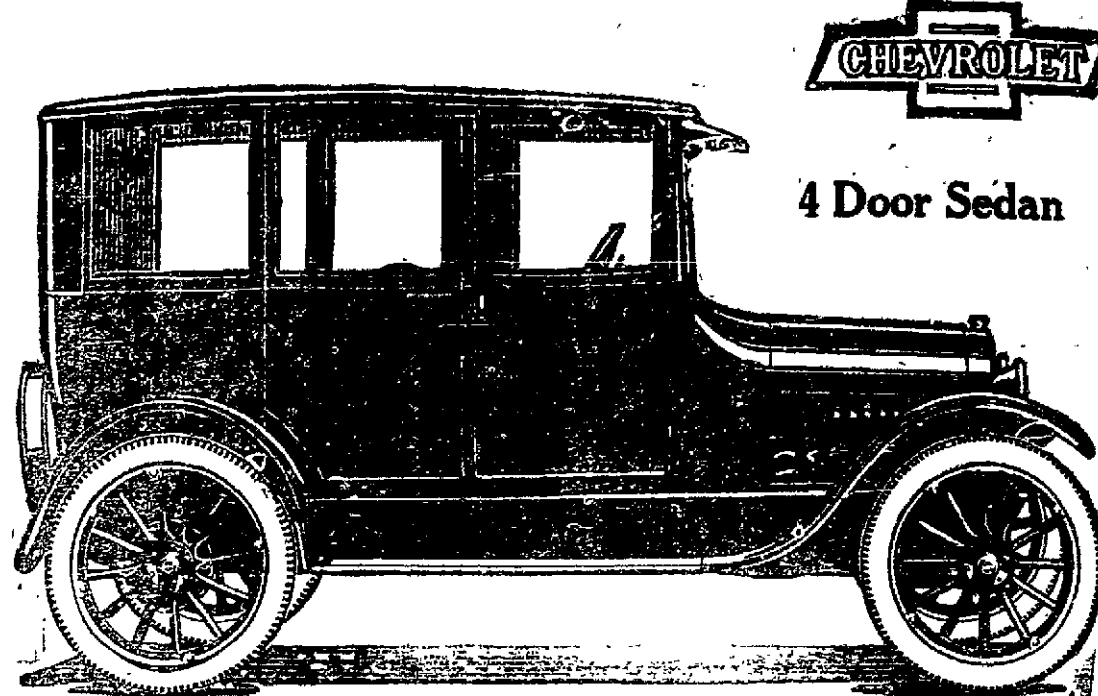

Even if you build part of this set yourself, do not try to construct the transformers, tubes, tube sockets, head phones or rheostat. It is cheaper to buy these parts.

The transformers are similar in construction to the large power

KEROSENE INEFFICIENT CLEANSER, SAY ENGINEERS

A light propeller produces the power which runs the latest form of automobile made in Germany. The car weighs 500 pounds and is driven by a four-cylinder motor of 25 horsepower. It costs less than a motorcycle with side car, its manufacturers say.

KEROSENE used to be a good standby on which motorists depended for cleaning their engines.

Now come oil engineers with the declaration that kerosene causes a loss of 18 per cent of the total lubricating capacity of an automobile.

PREFERS JAIL TO FATHER'S HOME

Girl Imprisoned in Smoke House Breaks Silence.

Menges, 20, Saturday night broke the silence maintained since she was released from two years' imprisonment, at the home of her father near here.

"No, no," she cried, when county officials asked her if she desired to leave the county jail and return to her parents.

The outbreak followed a steady stream of questions directed by county officials in an effort to determine the cause for her delicate condition and her long imprisonment. Further attempts, however, to cause the girl to speak were rebuffed.

One had her eyes closed and only smiles and twitching eyelids gave indication she realized she was the subject of examination during the questioning.

The questioning followed a physical examination in which physicians said the girl was in a delicate condition.

Authorities immediately left for the father's farm to again question Mrs. Jacob Menges and two children. The father, considered wealthy, was still detained in jail here and will be re-examined later Saturday night.

The girl was locked in an abandoned smoke house on the Menges farm when discovered by county officials Friday night. An oil lamp furnished heat and

DIES IN HOSPITAL

Marion Sanford, Mechanicsburg, brother of M. J. Sanford, 516 W. Market-st., died at a Columbus hospital Saturday, a message from Columbus stated. The funeral will be held at Mechanicsburg Monday at 10 a. m.

So, instead of using kerosene to flush out the crank case, those who have studied this phase of motoring say the drained case should be cleaned with fresh engine oil.

That costs more money and arouses a bit of suspicion, when it is known that this advice comes from the oil companies. But their engineers have the figures to prove that, in the long run, the new method is the more economical.

Engines that have any form of splash lubrication have oil troughs and pockets in which part of the kerosene used for flushing is sure to remain. In some cases, say the oil engineers, the kerosene retained in this way represents 18 per cent of the total lubricating capacity of the car.

It is safer, therefore, to use the regular kind of engine oil. The crank case should be drained about every 1000 miles in summer, and every 500 miles in winter. Every time the change is made, the case should be flushed with engine oil instead of kerosene.

NO WASTE

The oil used for this purpose can be put to other lubricating uses. Regular cleaning of the crank case means longer life for the engine. The carbon that accumulates there in a season's run is enough to wear down the bearings, pistons and cylinder walls in a short time.

Chooses Hollywood's Movie "Fast Set" as a Background for His Newest Mystery Novel

HERE'S WHAT VANCE HIMSELF SAYS ABOUT HIS LATEST ROMANCE

"Linda Lee, Inc."

While the first purpose of the book is to entertain, I have endeavored to record certain aspects of life in the Hollywood film colony in a phase which will come to be recognized as a parallel in motion picture history to that feverish era of "The Days of '49."

Within limitations of its single volume "Linda Lee, Inc." paints a true picture colored only by the author's vision. It pretends neither to expose nor to palliate. It is merely a plain presentation of conditions with which I became conversant in the course of nine years of dabbling in picture making.

Curiously enough, "Linda Lee, Inc." was written in every detail before the occurrence of that tragedy in real life which focused the attention of the United States on Hollywood—and was inspired by the author's memory of a conversation with a famous star and her husband, in which we agreed that, providing means were not found to stem the excesses of a certain element more conspicuous than representative of Hollywood, some such tragedy was inevitably to be expected.

—LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE.

A thrilling romance of a Fifth Avenue society beauty who finds life with her husband impossible. She flees to California and plunges into the alluring vortex of the motion picture world. Then comes a tragedy—

Gentlemen:

It affords me great pleasure to be allowed this opportunity of expressing my sentiments in behalf of the LIGHT SIX Studebaker Roadster that I purchased from you April 1, 1922.

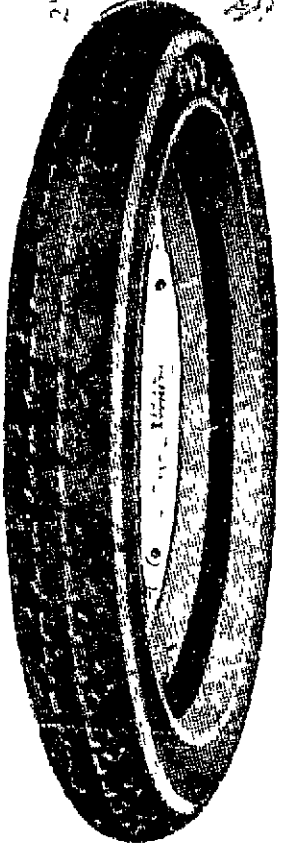

Will say that I kept an accurate account of the Gasoline and will say that the first 1094 miles that I drove the car I consumed just exactly 63 1/4 gallons of gas and no oil. And in this test will say that I have been over roads that were terrible having been pulled out of mud on several occasions and was my opportunity to be allowed to pull a disabled car of much heavier type almost 8 miles to the nearest garage.

I have driven a great many medium priced cars and will say that this car is in a class to itself. It seems to be geared to the road better than any other of my experience, and its pulling power and pickup seems far beyond comprehension.

My car has had 15 days of actual service and the Speedometer registers exactly 1386 miles and that will give you some idea of my extensive travel. I am perfectly satisfied from every angle, and should I like to register a complaint, I would not know what to say.

Again assuring you of my appreciation and satisfaction, I remain, A STUDEBAKER BOOSTER.

HIGH CLASS FILMDOM STORIES AND ARRAY OF STARS SCHEDULED HERE

Scintillating Stars of the Movie Firmament Featured in High Class Plays

All Lima Theatres Present Programs of Exceptional Merit This Week

(By ESTHER WAGNER)
A PROMISING array of film stories and film stars will greet theatre-goers today. In fact, the weekly list is more complete and thoroughly first-rate than it has been for some time. Every Lima theatre, without exception, has a splendid vehicle for your enjoyment today, as a quick survey of the calendar will prove.

Feminine stars will hold honors all thru the week. There's Gloria Swanson, Viola Dana, Priscilla Dean, Doris May and many others of equal prominence, all tarrying here in their very newest photodramas.

Today also marks the opening of Keith's summer policy at the Faurot Opera House, together with a clever little comedy-drama, "Boy Crazy," starring Doris May. Harry Myers plays opposite and the two should prove an interesting combination.

One of the week's brightest features is the showing at the Quilna of Elinor Glyn's "Beyond the Rocks." Gloria Swanson is the star, Rodolph Valentino her leading man. The combination—Gloria, Rodolph and the famous author, should about fill the bill for screen entertainment of the finest quality.

At the Lyric today, Cynthia Stockley's well known novel, "Wild Honey," is the feature attraction. Priscilla Dean, she of the magnetic personality, is in the stellar role and has the able support of Robert Ellis. The picture, they tell me, is quite a thriller.

"The Child Thou Gavest Me," besides having a most interesting theme, has such a splendid cast that it cannot be overlooked. There's Barbara Castleton, Lewis Stone, William Desmond and little Richard Headrick, than whom there is no more appealing figure in the movies. The Sigma offers this First National attraction as the feature today and for four days.

The week-end, too, will bring a host of charming satellites in various impersonations. The Sigma will present on Thursday, "There Are No Villains," a catchy, peppy little offering starring Miss Viola Dana. Gaston Glass plays opposite.

Then at the Lyric, for Friday and Saturday only, we will have "Don't Neglect Your Wife," in which Mabel Julienne Scott, the quiet, lovely heroine of many a past success, has the leading role.

As the second attraction this week at the Faurot, to be effected on Thursday, the management has secured "Silent Years," with an unusually strong cast, including Tully Marshall and Pauline Starke. With the picture, of course, is an entirely new program of Keith vaudeville acts.

The Majestic presents "To Please One Woman," as the Sunday attraction, while the Rialto announces "The Fox" as its feature picture today.

The Lyric Pictures

A excellent array of program features have been arranged for presentation during the forthcoming week at the Lyric theatre, opening today with an adaptation of Cynthia Stockley's thrilling drama "Wild Honey," starring Miss Priscilla Dean.

There's a delightful thread of romance which weaves itself through the whole story, but most of the story's appeal lies in the number of realistic and dashing thrills which follow each other in logical sequence. Miss Dean has a splendid role, and is said to outdo her former successes in "Outside the Law," "Reputation" and "Conflict."

Lady Vivienne, a beautiful and polished English peeress, is the heroine of Miss Stockley's novel, and the hands of Miss Dean, she becomes a wonderful personality. During the course of the picture she passes thru a number of adventures, finally finding her heart's desire on the wilds of South Africa. Robert Ellis, it may be herein stated, was the director's choice for the "heart's desire" and is said to be splendid.

He's the husband of May Allison, you know, and is decidedly good-looking, besides being an actor of note.

The biggest thrill of any in "Wild Honey" is the flood scene, where a pentup river is unleashed, to sweep down a narrow canyon and thru a valley filled with settlers. The turbulence of the water and its destructive power are shown with a realism seldom achieved on the screen. Miss Dean is, of course, in the midst of it, battling her way to safety and happiness with her usual courage and determination.

The cast is an excellent one with Wallace and Noah Beery in the heavy roles, and Lloyd Whitlock, Helen Raymond and Percy Challenger in important parts.

For the last two days of the week, the Lyric announces Goldwyn's "Don't Neglect Your Wife," an entertaining little screen drama with a remarkable cast of players.

The Quilna Pictures

THE patron of motion pictures, both regular and occasional, cannot fail to be impressed by the Quilna's announcements for this week. During the short period this theatre has been opened we have grown to expect much in the way of film entertainment and this week will surely not disappoint for it presents a unit program of genius in every department, and if the seating capacity of the theatre is not tested at every performance it will be a wonder.

The headliner is the new Paramount production, "Beyond the Rocks," which has its premiere today in all the principal theatres of the country. Elinor Glyn wrote the story. Gloria Swanson is the star. Rodolph Valentino is leading man and the cast contains many names prominent in screen annals. But to make local interest more intense the production marks the first appearance of a talented Lima girl in Paramount pictures. This is Miss Gertrude Eyster, whose nom de theatre is Gertrude Astor. She is a daughter of Assistant Chief Eyster, of the Lima Fire Department, and also identified with motion pictures for a comparatively short time, has been climbing steadily toward the top. Her selection as a member of the notable cast chosen for "Beyond the Rocks" and addition to the Paramount forces is a positive recognition of her talent and presages further preferment in her profession. Others in the cast are Robert Bolander, Alec B. Francis, Mabel Van Buren, June Elvidge, Edythe Chapman, Raymond Blaythmayt and Helen Dunbar.

You will naturally expect exciting action, thrilling episodes and intense love interest in "Beyond the Rocks" and you will not be disappointed. You will also expect much in the way of sartorial embellishment. The screen's greatest and most graceful display of gorgeous gowns and the undoubted fashion plate of the silent art is Gloria Swanson. In this picture she wears a score of the most gorgeous creations of the fashionable modiste's art.

The picture is also a veritable Cook's tour of the most interesting places in Europe. The famous gardens at Versailles, other scenes in Paris, the Alps of Switzerland, Alpine interiors and scenes in London, with a mirror of English social life all serve as backgrounds for this tremendous romance.

Added features of today's program are of diverting and varied quality. They include a fresh edition of the Quilna News, the latest and best of the news films that come to town;

PRISCILLA DEAN in "WILD HONEY"
A UNIVERSAL-JEWEL

At the Lyric for five days, starting today.

Paul Terry's inimitable Aesop Fables and a new Toonerville comedy, "The Skipper's Policy". The management urges you to attend the matinees and avoid the night crowds, and it is wise advice.

The Rialto Pictures

WHAT is promised as the greatest Western photodrama ever made, has been produced by Universal with Harry Carey in the starring role. Believing in the widespread appeal of the west of today, with its thrilling romance and picturesque realism, Universal decided to make a "Super Western" picture. It is "The Fox," which comes to the Rialto theatre today, and which is the first super-production to be made by the long popular "Western" star, Harry Carey.

In recognition of his long list of successful photodramas and of the place which Carey holds in the affection of the American public, Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, recently cited the Ace of the Saddle and awarded him a place among the Universal-Jewel stars, who make Universal's most elaborate pictures. That means that he is to appear in photodramas for which there is no time or economic limit in production and that he is to rank with the foremost stars of the world in the elaborateness of his starring vehicles. "The Fox" is said to have cost nearly a quarter of a million dollars in production.

The Majestic Picture

THE new program as announced by Manager Michael of the Majestic theatre, embraces a number of splendid features. For today and Tuesday, the main attraction will be Lois Weber's story "To Please One Woman," in which Clara Windsor and Mona Lisa have the leading feminine roles.

"To Please One Woman" is the work of Miss Weber, and is a delightful dramatic episode, with the scenes laid in a country village near the sea, and portrays the shadow cast upon two romances by the whims of a selfish woman. To satisfy her capricious wants, her husband goes to ruin and a young doctor is lured from his small-town sweetheart. However, matters adjust themselves satisfactorily in the end, and the selfish one learns a lesson.

The story will have a particular appeal to all women, but it will also hold the interest of every man and child who goes to see it.

As a special added attraction on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the Majestic has secured Alla Rappa, crystal gazer and seer, who will appear in conjunction with the regular program of pictures. On Wednesday, a special matinee for ladies will be given, at which time all questions of a private nature will be answered.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE OPENS SUMMER SEASON AT FAUROT THEATRE SUNDAY

ARTISTS OF MERIT ARE SCHEDULED

Long Felt Desire of Lima Theatregoers Becomes a State of Reality

Keith Offerings for First Time in Historic Playhouse—The Program

A LONG felt desire in the hearts of the Lima theatregoers will become a reality today when Keith Vaudeville will be introduced at the Faurot theater.

Lovers of stage art who revel in watching high-class stunts back of the footlights, have been demanding Keith big time vaudeville acts for the last three years.

When rumors were floating around Lima over a year ago that Maie Bros intended bringing the highest type of vaudeville acts to this city, they were flooded with congratulations and hundreds of local persons have been keenly anticipating the debut of a reality.

Promptly at 1:45 o'clock the curtain at the Faurot theater will rise, presenting the first Keith vaudeville act ever to visit Lima. A prelude musical program will be given by the new orchestra, directed by Mrs. Ben Flynn, prominent local pianist, starting at 1:35.

Title and Teds open the program with a novel novelty act, introducing excitingly funny acrobatic stunts in "The Moonshine Parlor." Title, a red headed comedian, uncovers a world of fresh comedy that is stimulating in the extreme. He shows extraordinary and beguiling ingenuity in thinking up new ways to fall and new ideas to make his audiences laugh.

The act opens in a setting descriptive of a basement in an apartment building, showing Title as the editor making his own special brand of moonshine. A phone call from one of the apartments, which is answered by the janitor with the words, "Sure, come on down," is his cue for Title's appearance whom, after taking a drink of moonshine, starts acting in the strangest manner.

From this time until the closing of the act, laughs are fairly provoked from the most realistic spectators.

Next come Nevins and Guhl, black-re comedians, who are considered the only logical successors to Maie and Heath, the famous team of the burnt cork type, who held American audiences at their command for 50 years.

This pair is slated as "The Gloom Busters," and, according to a report received yesterday by W. D. Clark, manager at the Faurot, from the city house at Dayton, this act is one of the biggest attractions witnessed in the Gem City this season.

Brown, Gardner and Trahane, a trio of merry-makers, come direct from Pittsburgh to present a fast passing revue of songs and stunts. This act is jammed full of mirth and frivolity, with plenty of pep and speed. Just the kind of performance guaranteed as a sure cure for the blues.

Besides this vaudeville program a feature picture "Boy Crazy," starring Maie and Harry Myers, who won me as the Yankee in "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" will be shown. It is a picture full of vigor which will mix it with such a breezy program of vaudeville acts.

Final touches were added to the interior last night, and today the entire house at Dayton, this act is one of the biggest attractions witnessed in the Gem City this season.

VODVIL BILL AT ORPHEUM

Today Manager Shaw of the Orpheum theater, offers Lima theatergoers a rare treat in the way of a three week combination show, introducing acts of vaudeville on a par with any vaudeville playing the circuits today, a full fledged musical comedy, entitled "The Golden Girl," by the Henry Roquemore Co., and comic opera, introducing all the principal members of this clever company.

The admission prices have been reduced to the regular winter policy, of 22c, 33c, 44c. Seats will be reserved for all three performances today and can be ordered by calling Main 5560.

The vaudeville end of this program will consist of the following acts: Fred Faurey, called the boy with a dozen talents, who is a super headline feature, with his orthodox musical instruments and his superior imitations. The second act, Brandeaux and Smith, in a series of fanciful dance hits; beautiful Grace Robertson, billed as the piano accordion girl, will play everything from ragtime to grand opera and then back again; the supreme feature, "Three Harmony Girls" and Fern Emmet, comedienne.

Now comes the musical comedy, dy-drama about two kinds of rings wedding and opium—adapted from Frank R. Adams' story. Miss Dana has the capable support of Gaston Glass and Edward Cecil, and makes of "There Are No Villains" a delightful program offering.

all his offerings. He will be seen to good advantage today when he offers "The Golden Girl," with his Ziegfeld looking adorable chorus, dainty Violet Culver, handsome Lawrence Bringham and Ted Gardner, the matinee idol supporting, a clever talented aggregation of musical comedy stars will all be seen in sparkling roles. Mr. Roquemore takes personal pride in the production, both from a scenic and costumery standpoint. Without a doubt the classiest looking show seen in Lima for many moons at any price. It is that clean, wholesome comedy Mr. Roquemore offers that makes him a favorite with theater goers. Mr. Shaw personally guarantees this show to be just what he says it is.

The Sigma Pictures

An unusually striking drama, one that is highly dramatic, opens an extended engagement today at the Sigma theatre. It is the John M. Stahl production "The Child Thou Gavest Me" from the novel by Percy N. Winkoff, and features a strong cast composed of Barbara Castleton, Lewis Stone, William Desmond and Little Richard Headrick, the child whose portrayal in "The Woman in His House," made him famous.

"The Child Thou Gavest Me," unlike most pictures, opens with the ringing of wedding bells, and a magnificently appointed wedding is in progress. Following the ceremony, the groom happens upon his bride, holding a little child closely to her.

"I thought he was dead," sobs the girl, too happy to shield the secret from her husband any longer. Then begins a search, desperate and unflinching, for the one whom the husband has sworn to kill. He suspects even his most intimate friends, including his closest companion, whom he shoots. The man he is seeking is the last one on earth he would have suspected, and when he finds him—he doesn't kill him—for sufficient reasons.

The plaintive little figure of Dicky Headrick who lives in the house divided by distrust and hatred, will be remembered long after the picture is forgotten. He doesn't act his role—he lives it. The others in the cast are capable players, and do their part to make of "The Child Thou Gavest Me" a stirring and interesting drama, well acted, magnificently staged and produced.

As the week-end attraction, starting on Thursday, the Sigma offers

ALMOST

We've all met the man who "almost" bought a piece of real estate when it was cheap, that has doubled in value now.

That same man is likely at this time "almost" determined to buy a home now.

But he fears, as he did then, that values have reached their maximum.

Don't be in the "almost" class. Have decision. Back your faith in Lima's future by buying a home within your means and you will come out a winner.

Lima is going to grow, and real estate here will increase in value as long as you live.

Have you seen our new Scott Street Homes? We have one left at $4500.00. It has 6-rooms with hardwood floors, full basement, hot air furnace, sanitary bath room with gas grate built in, house beautifully decorated, window shades and curtain rods installed, in fact already to move into, located between Kibby and Eureka.

We are also starting construction in the following locations:
Ewing Avenue, west of Metcalf. Five strictly modern homes. They will have full basements, hot air heating plants, hardwood floors throughout, pressed back fireplace in living rooms, gas grate in bath rooms, finished attics, beautifully decorated inside and out. Ready to move into. The lots have plenty of shade and the location is ideal.

Roose Avenue, south of Third. Three strictly modern 6-room homes with a small amount down, balance monthly. If you are contemplating a home, come up and talk it over with us for our policy is to give you value received for every dollar you spend.

WIFE FREE WITH HER KISSES

Kissed Family Lodger Good Night; Husband Objected.

SAYS BUSINESS WAS RUINED

Three Divorces Are Granted By Judge Becker.

Kisses alleged to have been exchanged between his wife Anna, and a man lodger in his home, blighted the three months romance of Y. M. C. A., he told Judge Fred C. Becker in common pleas court, Saturday.

After learning of the nightly osculatory pleasures Judge Becker granted Nunamaker a divorce.

Nunamaker testified that his matrimonial tribulations had disrupted his home and ruined his business, compelling him late in life to seek employment as a janitor.

The couple was married in 1918, but parted in three months. Nunamaker was then owner of a prosperous grocery store in Marion, he said.

OSCULATION CHARGED
He told the court it was a nightly occurrence for his wife to enter the room of a lodger, attired in her night robe and kiss him good night. The lodger was young and had curly hair. Mrs. Nunamaker is 65.

"What did you think about that?" inquired the court.

"Well, I told her it wasn't right," said Nunamaker, "but she said it was none of my business."

Nunamaker told of coming to Lima for a trip, and on his return home found that his wife had removed large quantities of provisions from his store, giving them to her father.

That night when he went home she locked him out. Later he closed his store, auctioned the stock and came to Lima. When they were first married, he testified that they had trouble when he discovered that his wife was giving large sums of money to her daughter.

OTHER DECREES
David H. Myers obtained a divorce from Nora Myers, when it was shown that the defendant was guilty of gross neglect.

A settlement of $1,150 was awarded the wife by the court, but she was barred in the plaintiff's property rights.

Constantine F. Wallace was granted a decree of divorce from J. J. Wallace, after testimony in the case was heard by Judge Becker. They were married in 1919 and have no children. She was granted the right to resume her maiden name.

AID PLANNED FOR OHIO CRIPPLES

"Rehabilitation Week" Open Monday in State.

LIONS TAKE UP WORK HERE

Chairmen Named to Seek Those in Need of Training.

"Rehabilitation Week" for Ohio cripples starts Monday and continues thru Saturday.

A survey of Allen Co. will be started by the committee from the Lions club, which, with the Red Cross, has been placed in charge of the work in this county. Allen N. Wiseley is chairman of the committee.

It is desired to learn the names and addresses of every man and woman in the county who have been crippled in accidents or who have been born with natural handicaps.

TRAINING IS FREE
This list will be investigated and those who can be taught a more useful occupation than they are now engaged in or who do not have vocational training free of all cost to them.

All expense of the training, including tuition, tools, books and supplies will be paid from funds available for the purpose. It is not charity, but an opportunity for those afflicted to help themselves.

Any person knowing of a crippled person, who in their opinion could be helped by the training, is asked to send the name to the Lions' Rehabilitation committee, 709 Citizens building.

Allen Co. has been subdivided into sections for the purpose of the survey and the following chairmen have been placed in charge of the various townships:

Addressing the third yearly convention of the League, Sir Claude Hull, director-general, declared 85

MINERS JOLTED IN COURT RULING

Conspiracy Shown in Treason Trial, Judge Holds.

DEFENSE HOPES CRUMBLING

Accuseds' Attorneys Expected to Have Case Thrown Out.

(By PAUL R. MAILLON)
CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., (United Press.) — A decisive blow to the defense was struck in the trial of William H. Hazzard, youthful miner's leader charged with treason, when Judge Wood, in ruling here Saturday on a point of order, held that a conspiracy on the part of the miners had been established by the prosecution.

This action crushed the hopes of the defense for having the case thrown out of court after the prosecution concluded its testimony on the grounds that the prosecution had failed to show high treason against the government of West Virginia.

The court's ruling came on testimony of J. F. Stuart, a miner of Dry Branch, W. Va.

TESTIMONY INVOLVED
He had given some minor testimony. He was recalled to the stand and asked concerning some trivial evidence which had been excluded earlier, on the grounds that Hazzard's name had not been connected with the alleged conspiracy. This time the evidence was admitted when Wood ruled that a conspiracy had been established by the prosecution.

The testimony on which the ruling was made concerned a speech made by Savory Holt, a mine leader, to an assembly near Harmel, Holt, so the witness said, declared:

"Moses led the children of Israel out of bondage. You shall find your leader. We are here on a peaceable mission as long as we are allowed to."

MUST PRESENT CASE
The clear indication from admission of this hearsay testimony is that the defense will have to present its case to the court. Previously it held high hopes that the indictment might be dismissed because it did not believe any high treason against the government had been shown.

A second, lesser blow was dealt the defense when the court held that so far as evidence had been introduced to connect the killings at Sharpless with the armed march on Logan-co and refused to allow the defense to cross-examine witnesses concerning this point. Wood held that the defense must prove a connection in direct evidence between the Sharpless shooting and the armed march.

COLLEGE GIRL, 1922 MODEL, IMPROVEMENT ON 1890

By DR. EUGENE J. FISK
Medical Director, Life Extension Institute.

NEW YORK — (Special) — The college girl of 1922 physically is miles ahead of the girl of 1890. She is healthier, stronger, taller, heavier, wider in the waistline, and more muscular.

Sports are making women better physically. Short skirts and sensible shoes are helping. Jazz dancing is the only bad influence. It is a menace to physical health, entirely aside from morals.

Dancing is an aid to health—if it's real dancing. Jazz is not exercise; there is nothing in it to improve the health. It is a mere walk, with gyrations that are primitive, barbaric and monotonous.

Jazz is not so vigorous as the waltz or the Virginia reel. A revival of the old-fashioned barn dances would help health. Jazz, I think is fading before it has had time seriously to injure the health of young people.

Girls in high schools and colleges have attained a higher physical standard that could be duplicated among girls in factory and commercial life if they would adopt, with fidelity, regular forms of exercise.

Compare the average college girl of today with the girl of yesterday, as shown in Vassar statistics:

	1890	1922
Height	5 ft. 3.1 in.	5 ft. 4.6 in.
Weight	118.2 lbs.	124.7 lbs.
Waist	23.6 in.	25.6 in.

Abolishing tight waist lines in new styles of dress alone has improved health. The short skirt, which doesn't sweep up germs, is sensible because it is healthy. Take a census of feet on the street and you will find most women wearing sensible shoes, without high heels and pointed toes.

Thirty years ago girls were in for only two sports on the average, usually tennis and croquet. Today they are in a dozen or more—basketball, tennis, hockey, volleyball, swimming, rowing, golf, soccer, riding, skating, and even baseball and track athletics.

The girl of 1922 is healthier than the man. She is sick oftener—in a minor way—but her death rate is lower than man's.

Girls formerly were puny, anemic and undersized. The modern girl is reaching normal—but she shouldn't get reckless about it. Jazz dancing is the worst form of recklessness. Try the waltz, and especially the rhythmic dances.

Just as football is better exercise for men than baseball, so tennis and golf are better for women than basketball and hockey. Soccer, swim-

DR. FISK SAYS:

Girls in factory and commercial life, who haven't the time or opportunity for sports college girls have, can attain a high physical standard.

Adopt a daily program of exercise and use holidays healthfully.

Go to bed by 10 every night. Get 5 hours sleep, preferably 8.

Take a hot and cold spray in the morning.

Do 10 minutes setting up exercises night and morning.

Join some club and play tennis in the evening.

Walk outdoors.

Take long hikes holidays and week-ends.

Take gymnastic exercise—moderately.

rowing, volleyball, riding and skating are ideal for women. Basketball and hockey are a bit too vigorous for the average girl.

Girls are growing healthier because of outdoor sports, say medical authorities. Here's four who are champions, too—Glenna Collett, 18-

ROBBER GANG IS WIPED OUT

Notorious Organization of Killers Dealt Death Blow.

LAST JOB PULLED IN LIMA

Losteiner Outlaws Blamed for Robbery of Bank.

Robbery of the Dime Savings bank here last Tuesday was the last job to be pulled by one of the most notorious bands of criminals that ever operated in Ohio. Soon after the holdup here a crushing blow was dealt the organization in a desperate gun battle at Canton.

Strong belief exists that one of the men killed in the Canton fight staged the robbery in this city. It is definitely known that the two men who were killed and the two who were wounded were among the last of the Jiggs Losteiner outfit with headquarters in Cleveland.

At its height, this band numbered at least 50 members and extended to a number of large cities. Lima's first introduction to it came a year ago when affiliated crooks engaged police in a running street battle. At that time Raleigh Townsend was killed. He was the pal and credited with being the "brains" of the George McGinnis band. Townsend was a member of the bandit clique that attempted to rob a bank at Bedford, Ohio, in October, 1920. It was at that time that Losteiner was captured.

SERVING LIFE TERM
He was wanted on a charge of killing a Cleveland policeman and was convicted and now is serving a life term in the Ohio penitentiary.

At Bedford, near Cleveland, the thugs had secured $51,000 of the bank funds and were starting for the door. Then the burglar alarm rang and citizens and officers attacked the bandits from every side.

The driver of their car crumpled down with a bullet thru his body. The yepps then started a running fight thru the streets. Some escaped; others were captured.

The notorious Cowboy Hill gang was affiliated with the Losteiner clan. At that time they presented the most dangerous band of crooks this section of the country has ever known.

Only a very few, if any, of the original outfit are at large. The battle at Canton late Thursday was the crushing blow. The gang ran true to form until the last man fell.

year-old golfing phenomenon; Ethelda Bleibry (left), still in her teens, yet an Olympic team veteran and holder of many swimming records; Eileen Riggan (upper right), who at 14 won the Olympic fancy diving championship; and Helen Wainwright, who at 15 finished second to Miss Riggan at Antwerp and is now pressing Miss Bleibry for championship honors.

before the bullets of officers and citizens. They had been killers in their avocation and killers they were until two had been killed and the other two probably mortally wounded.

WOULD FIGHT TO END
If bank employees and police are correct in their belief that it was one of the dead bandits who clambered over the counter at the Dime Savings bank, herded the employees into the vault and escaped with about $4,300, Lima probably escaped a memorable street battle by the thugs not being interrupted in their work. The Losteiner gangsters would fight to the end. So long are the records of all of its members that to be taken would mean either death sentences or long imprisonment. They would choose to die fighting as they did at Canton rather than fall into the hands of the law.

BALL GAME PART OF PROGRAM

Independents to Play Columbus K. C. Team, Sunday

One of the first big events of the 1922 Knights of Columbus state convention, which opens here today and runs thru Tuesday, will be a baseball game at the Murphy-st park Sunday afternoon.

A team representing the Columbus Council K. of C. will meet the Lima Independents and the delegates to the convention will be guests at the game.

It is said that the Columbus team is one of the strongest in the state and that many former professional and college stars will be in the lineup.

A large number of the delegates will come a day early in order to attend this game. John Keville, grand knight, has been notified and a special section of the stands will be reserved for them.

Following the ball game, the delegates will gather in a number of groups to renew old acquaintanceships and form new ones. A number of small dinners in the local hotels are being planned.

It is at these informal dinners Sunday night that boosters of the various cities as convention possibilities will launch their campaign and booms for state officers will be started, it is believed.

PROSECUTOR RECEIVES THREATENING LETTER

CINCINNATI — Charles W. Smedley, prosecutor of North Bend, a village near here, received a letter Saturday threatening him if he does not drop prosecution in liquor cases. Recently violators of the liquor laws in Cincinnati and Hamilton-co have been tried at North Bend.

The letter read:

"Unless you stop prosecution of liquor cases at North Bend, you will be sorry. You have received one warning. This one is final."

Smedley also has received threats by telephone.

SCORE SUMMONED IN WILL CASE

Witnesses Called in Rebuttal for Monday Session.

RESUME FIGHT FOR ESTATE

Perry Collins May Go on Stand Again Tomorrow.

More than a score of witnesses who knew Samuel Collins, nonagenarian, during the last years of his life, are to be subpoenaed Monday, to be used in rebuttal by attorneys for Dorothy Collins, plaintiff in the quarter million dollar will contest, it was announced Saturday.

These witnesses will probably testify regarding their opinion of Samuel Collins' mental condition during 1918 and 1919.

RECALLS EMPIRE HOTEL
Among them may be former residents at the Empire Hotel, where Samuel Collins and his son Perry resided up to within a few years of the aged man's death.

The old hotel was up-stairs over the present First National Bank and Samuel Collins, according to old residents, formerly conducted a store on the lower floor of the building.

The structure, and site, now among the most valuable in the city, is said to have been taken over to satisfy a bad debt.

Hearing in the case is to be resumed Monday, following a recess over Saturday and Sunday. The jury hearing the case was excused by Judge Becker, who cautioned them to be very particular not to discuss the case with anyone.

As the case is a civil suit, nine jurors must concur to reach a verdict. Perry Collins, who was among the last witnesses to testify for the defense Saturday, may be recalled to the stand Monday for further examination.

MANY WITNESSES CALLED
More than two dozen witnesses all told were placed on the stand by the defense during the five days' hearing last week. The defense concentrated its efforts to show that Samuel Collins was incompetent to transact business in his last years.

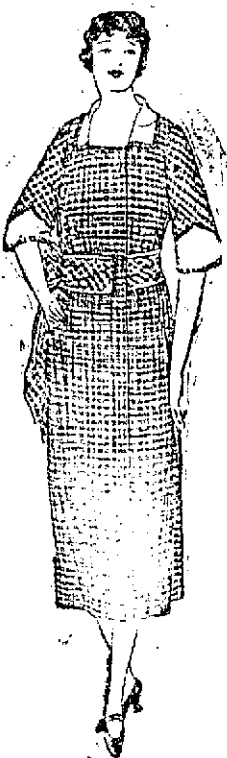

All of the coming week may be consumed in hearing the remainder of the case, attorneys predict.

Dorothy Collins, plaintiff in the case, is a great granddaughter of Samuel Collins. She is fighting to win one-third of his $250,000 estate awarded her by virtue of a codicil executed in 1919 and later destroyed, it is stated.

If successful, she will obtain property the estimated worth of which is $33,000.

LABOR BOARD APPEALS
CHICAGO — The United States railroad labor board late Saturday appealed the case in which it was prohibited by an order of the federal court from publishing a report finding the Pennsylvania railroad guilty of violating the board's rules.

The first principle of Maisonette—is to be different—and individual. They are not fashioned as are the average house garments—their making is as unique and interesting as it is popular. Sample frocks having been designed and made are shown on living models—regular girls who work in the factory. They are worn in the presence of all their fellow workers—who are the judges. If a model does not receive a satisfactory number of votes—the garment is rejected. Thus only tried styles are placed on the market. All seams are well stitched, the materials are of the very best as is the workmanship also. THESE ARE ONLY A FEW OF THE HUNDRED REASONS WHY MAISONNETTES ARE DIFFERENT—and better.

Smart Paris Women Have Discovered That Dancing with Stranglers and ex-Convicts at 100 Francs Per Hour Meets Their Primitive Craving for Abysmal Sensations

female Apache for himself. But, if he does, he only yawns at the notion. By and by bright-eyes and the bear will return. Bright-eyes, boredom drugged temporarily, is willing to go home.

"Thank heaven!" yawns friend husband. "Hope you'll be satisfied for a week now, anyway. Come on—I've paid your Apache."

At the Cafe of the Green Snake the Apaches go the Dead Man's Thumb one better. Their star performer is Therese, a black-haired firebrand. She is the toll by which many a Louis and Pierre boosts his nightly income.

Her role is that of the jealous grisette, for the Apaches have learned that nothing increases their desirability in the eyes of dainty visitors so much as to be desired also by another woman. To dance with an Apache who a moment before has flung his sweetheart into a corner, is to enhance the thrill of the experience two-fold.

Madame has selected her partner and is just about to yield herself to his arms. They start for the dance floor. That is Therese's cue. Up from her settee she leaps like a wildcat, brandishing her fists and lashing her "homme" with all the bitter adjectives at her command.

There is a scene. Therese, confronting visitor and Apache, threatens to put a knife in his back if he dares a step with the woman who has charmed him. He snarls back at her, if she doesn't keep quiet, he will cut her heart out then and there. Madame trembles. She is shaken by mixed emotions of fear and delight. Perhaps it would be better if she picked out a bruiser who wasn't mortgaged already by some other woman.

But, before she can change her mind, Tough Jules has acted. One hairy hand shoots out and grips the blazing Therese by her throat. He shakes her just enough to make her teeth rattle and, with one thrust, slams her hence. In the same instant he turns, sweeps Madame off her feet and is away with her.

This scene is repeated perhaps a dozen times a night at the Green Snake. And for each shake, Therese gets her commission from the shaker. He, in turn, has profited accordingly. For is not an Apache who risks a knife-blade in his shoulders worth twice as many francs as one who merely killed a gendarme last week? He is—take it from the ladies. And from their husbands, who foot the bills.

rendezvous of the notorious Chicotte gang which disposed of the bodies of its victims by running them through a huge sausage grinder. He hints that the cellar might reveal strange secrets even today. He forgets to mention, what is well known among old Montmartreans, that until last Summer the basement was the site of a barber-shop.

The door of the cafe opens into a spacious room decorated as sumptuously as many of the boulevard cabarets. On a dais at one end, six jazz musicians are heroes of the popular novels were sheiks who dragged heroines around by the hair, and the heroines themselves liked nothing better than a good clubbing. It became fashionable for Paris smart setters to "adore" crime.

That part of Paris which makes a living by the fads of the rich, was quick to catch on to the new opportunity in thrills. The taxis had put the "guiding" business on the blink. Nobody, it seemed, wanted to visit gilded haunts of peacock pleasure any more. So the guides and the personal conductors harkened attentively to the cry of the pretty ladies: "We want a tough guy! We want an Apache!"

They got him—at 100 francs an hour. That is the standard price in Montmartre cafes which make a specialty of Apaches for hire. In the case of particularly tough Apaches, however, or an Apache with an especially bloody record of crime, the price is higher. The Cafe of the Dead Man's Thumb and the Cafe of the Green Snake are typical examples of the many where thrills are sold like so much caviare.

Here, any night from ten to two, the thrill-hunters come for contact with the raw, rough, red-blooded side of life, as personified in Tough Jules, Jacques the Tiger, Little Scarpin, Louis the Strangler, Raoul the Butcher, and a dozen other sinister highlanders who have learned that slitting throats is not nearly so profitable as, describing throat-slitting to wide-eyed neurotics with a passion for vicarious second-hand blood-letting.

These women themselves are the incarnation of beauty and refinement. They rustle out of limousines like so many delicate butterflies—velvet gowned and silk shod, shimmering with jewels and radiating the faint breath of perfume. Only their eyes, burning with excitement, betray the primitive craving for abysmal sensation beneath the shell of luxury.

A row of six basement windows blinks level with the sidewalk. Across one of them stretches the black silhouette of a skeleton fist gripping a knife. Stone stairs lead downward to a massive door. This is the Cafe of the Dead Man's Thumb. The guide will tell you it was formerly the

She is a blue-eyed little exquisite of the baby doll type. He is fat, wealthy, bald-headed—and resigned. His face seems to say, "Well, here we are. I hope you're satisfied. Bring on the Apache!" And the Apaches, possibly six or more of them, surround the table.

Here is one burly fellow with a face like a gorilla. His wrists stick out like hairy iron pipes from the sleeves of his blue sweater, and he has a horrible trick of squinting. It has won him many partners and a tidy sum in fees. He boasts that he was just released from prison last week and is on the police records for a dozen crimes. If Mademoiselle is wise, she will choose him for a partner. Price—120 francs an hour.

Here is another, a rakish youth of nineteen or twenty, who would be handsome were it not for a ragged red slash running from ear to chin across one cheek. He wears a red silk handkerchief knotted about his neck and a cap pulled down over his left eye. He announces that he is a "terrorist" and dances the can-can like a demon. He, too, has been in prison numerous times and is a blood brother to Landru.

Above, One of the Apache Dances, as Interpreted by Mallaso and Cario, Which May Have Incited the New Craving for Cave-Men Dancing Partners.

A third candidate presents his card. It bears his official rogue's gallery photograph and a list of his sentences and the crimes he has committed. He hints strongly that the card doesn't tell the half of it. For instance, behind—ah, well, if Mademoiselle only knew! And he smiles fiendishly and spits out a few picturesque swears.

And Mademoiselle—who likes to be called that instead of Madame—shivers with delightful dread, fastens her baby stare on the unholiest and ugliest brute of the lot, and coos, "Isn't he just wonderful, cherie? I want him for mine! Do you fox-trot, my big bear?"

Her big bear does. The losers retire, growling huskily. They will practise up a few more arts such as squinting, biting a deck of cards in half and crumbling bricks between their hands. They will go over their crime records again and brush up the bloodstain.

Little bright-eyes and her grizzly vanish among the whirling dancers while friend husband settles down to his bottle of wine. He seems not to care that bright-eyes and the bear are putting on a shimmy that would make Mallaso and Cario, original Apache dancers, look like partners in an old-fashioned minuet.

Perhaps friend husband is wishing for a

Treasured as Souvenirs by Their Thrill-Hunting Patrons. This Card Reads: "At Large Temporarily. Louis Le Balle (The Strangler); Escort Cafe Green Snake; Late of the Santa Prison; One and One-Half Years on Devil's Island."

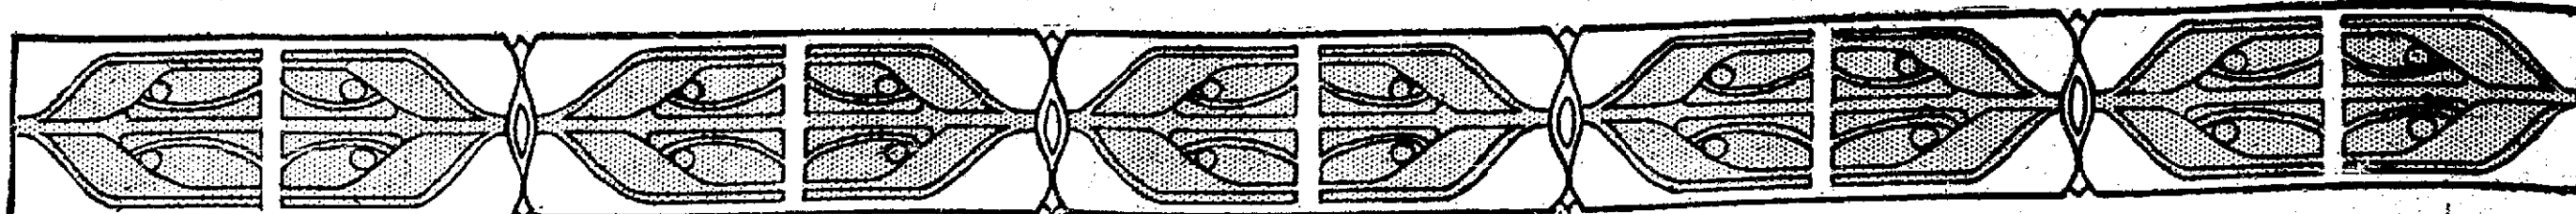

PARIS. How would you like to dance with Tough Jules at the Cafe of the Dead Man's Thumb? How would you like to trot and toddle in the grip of a genuine Apache? A dred-in-the-blood thug—a stabber—a garrotter—a real mean ruffian! He's got notches on his gun and blue welts on his jaw where his grisette tried to murder him with a hatchet. In a rusty, husky whisper he'll tell you about it. How would you like an hour's tete-a-tete with this fascinating devil from the Clichy underworld? Say, dainty ladies, would it thrill you?

It's thrilling the smart women of Paris—that is, the women who find the ordinary thrills of life too passe for words. They are the rich aristocrats who have kicked over their heritage of convention, the restless wives of money-mad husbands, the high-steppers of upper Bohemia, the spendthrift American visitors, all the fragile and discontented feminine crew who have only one occupation—thrill-hunting.

They were tired of gambling. They were tired of the gay boulevard cafes and lost its kick. Everybody was "on" to the many stage settings. The fight between the two abominable fiends was just hocus-focus. The women with the pungent purple past no longer found a listener. It was getting so that sin, viewed from the side-lines, was as dull as Notre Dame or the Louvre.

"How uninteresting!" complained all the pretty ladies. "We could see all that stuff in the movies. We want some real rough stuff. We want to have it—not just look at it. We want to be thrilled!" And, to don't you do something to amuse us?" Enter then—the Apache. He rode in on the crest of a season distinguished for its "cave lore" atmosphere. The music shows leaden underworld dances. strange experience, cannot tell her own story. But the mute evidence that revealed the crime when her body, stripped of clothing and marked with knife slashes, was found under the stairway of the tenement house, is sufficient to warrant the autopsy verdict of Dr. Charles Norris that the crime was the work of a "ripper."

Following immediately upon the "clipper" and "ripper" cases in New York, dispatches from Los Angeles reported similar attacks in that section of the country. Women complained to the police that a dark-complexioned, heavy set man has been making a practise of slashing their gowns. In one instance, oddly enough, the assailant was a girl, according to Mrs. George H. Rogers, of Los Angeles, whose dress was slashed with a knife.

TO the crime wave that has enveloped the country, there is now added another strange and baffling outrage, "Jack the Clipper" and "Jack the Ripper," two criminal types of mental defectives, have been born in on the crest. Police headquarters in every city are taking precautions against this moron type of criminal in the hopes of preventing a country-wide outbreak of their atrocious attacks. The "clipper" and "ripper" epidemics in the past always have followed close upon similar isolated instances of violence.

Helen Becker, a school girl of Belvedere, New Jersey, is one of the latest victims of "Jack the Clipper."

Ellen Tracey, of New York, housekeeper in a boarding house at No. 16½ Hamilton street, is dead—a victim of "Jack the Ripper."

Eleven-year-old Helen Becker was on her way home from school when suddenly she felt a hand at her back. Her head was quickly jerked backward, the cold steel of shears touched her neck for the fraction of a second, and she turned to see a short, dark man fleeing in the opposite direction, her luxuriant braid of blond hair waving from his hand.

The girl had not followed her usual course from the school to the little yellow house on the outskirts of the town where she lives with her mother and stepfather. She had taken a lonely path to shorten her daily milk delivery route. One of her chores was to deliver milk in the morning on her way to school, and to collect the empty pails on her return at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The child dropped her pails with a clatter, and began to feel at the back of her sweater for the braid that had been her pride. The cold touch of steel had not been an illusion! That short, dark man actually had clipped off her braid! She screamed and ran.

Ellen Tracey, the forty-year-old housekeeper who lost her life in the "Jack the Ripper" attack within a week after Helen Becker's

"I boarded a car downtown," Mrs. Rogers told Detective Sergeant George E. Smith. "I was standing in the crowded aisle when I felt something sharp cut across my back. The thought came to me that the horrible man who has lately been ripping so many women's dresses was attacking me. I turned around quickly. As I did so I saw a young woman make a vicious lunge at my dress with a large knife that she held in her hand. She cut a gap in my dress about a foot long. Then she began to edge down the aisle."

In Paris, a few years ago, the police did succeed in capturing a man who had long been suspected as a hair despoiler. When they searched his room, they found 65 switches of human hair, ranging from light blond to black and all assorted into color groups as they hung from the walls. He later confessed to the crimes.

Contrary to general belief, the man who goes about clipping braids does not do so for commercial purpose. Many people have naturally concluded that the hair thief gathers his loot to sell to hairdressers. If this were his purpose, he might be readily detected when he attempted to dispose of his stock. Science has shown, however, that in most instances, the hair clipper is a mental defective. The "clipper" is in fact a mild form of the "ripper" type.

Dr. Herbert C. de V. Cornwell, who for many years was Chief Medical Examiner of the clearing house for mental defectives at Randall's Island, New York, and who was assigned to this specialization at Camp Meade during the draft days, has drawn some interesting conclusions on these types.

"The malady is not always confined to the European," says Dr. Cornwell, "although most of these 'clipper' and 'ripper' morons who come to the attention of the police are found to be foreigners. There is obsession of this sort in our own United States as in Europe. The difference lies in the fact that our mental defectives of this class are so cautiously secretive about it, they are not often detected. The man of Latin blood forms a conspicuous percentage of the cases that come to public attention, not because it is a malady peculiar to his race, but because the code of morals in some parts of Europe is so vastly different to our code that he proceeds more openly and is more often caught."

In ancient Rome, this obsession so demoralized the Roman army that it was legislated against, not because it was considered immoral, but because it weakened the efficiency of the troops.

Dr. Cornwell was asked if the malady was a curable one.

"There are two distinct types of the 'clipper' and 'ripper.' The cure differs gressions from the moral code.

"Out of 12,000 men I examined while in charge of sorting mental defectives at Camp Meade during draft days, only three men were discovered to have been suffering from an affliction of this kind."

Can the malady be cured? Dr. Cornwell says it can. But the treatment is long and tedious. It requires education, not in the ordinary sense of book learning, but the re-education of the viewpoint. The psychiatrist who treats a case of this kind must trace back, using the method of psycho-analysis.

The great medium-class of people, concludes Dr. Cornwell, "are rarely affected with a malady of this kind. In fact, the medium class of American men and women have the soundest, clearest minds of any nation, even though we are termed the 'nervous Americans.'" for each. The strange obliquity is found in the man of low intellect or in the man of very superior intellect, such as the genius. Oscar Wilde is an example of the latter. Despite the man's marvelous intellect, he was always getting into trouble because of unaccountable weaknesses.

"In the person of low intellect, it is sometimes an inherited weakness. Where an ancestry on either side of the parentage shows a taint in the blood, the weakness may show up in the person of inferior intellect."

"The other type of superior intellect is often affected by an early impression that buries itself in the unconscious mind and later shows up as this sort of obsession."

One of the most baffling problems police and medical authorities have to cope with in detecting criminals of this order, is the lack of symptoms while they are in the normal state.

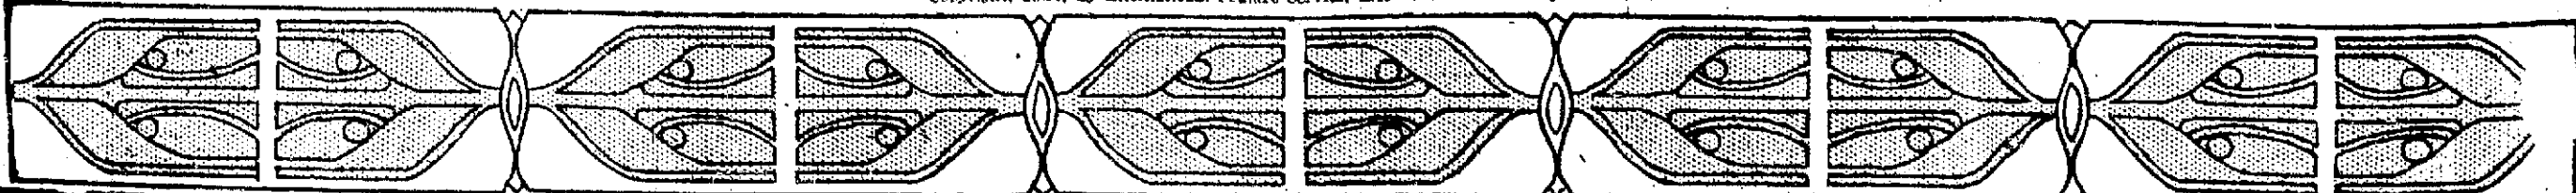

"Well-dressed, respectable business men who lead an otherwise normal life," says Dr. Cornwell, "may turn 'clipper' or 'ripper' at any moment, if the strange malady is lying dormant within them."

Just what has caused this recent prevalence of the "clipper" is arousing much discussion in medical circles. Some psychiatrists are of the opinion that the moral code being weakened, individuals of this type place less restraint upon themselves.

"Public faith in moral tradition was lost when war came on," Dr. Cornwell believes. "Now persons are not so secretive about di-

GERALDINE CALDWELL 7300

Photographic Copy of a Telegram Mrs. Thorne Received from Geraldine Caldwell.

PRETTY and petite Mrs. Virginia Milner Thorne, divorced wife of the millionaire Chicago clubman, Gordon C. Thorne, clicked her latchkey in the lock of her dainty apartment at No. 20 West Sixty-ninth street, New York. She was tired after her long day's ride from Chicago. She was glad to be home again—back to the cozy suite where she has lived comfortably but quietly since she received her freedom and $750 a month alimony in a court decree a year ago.

"Gerry!" called Mrs. Thorne, switching on the electric. There was no answer. She had left her apartment in possession of a girl friend, Geraldine Caldwell, who was temporarily "down on her luck," pending the fulfillment of stage ambitions. Mrs. Thorne had hospitably taken her in.

"I guess Gerry's out," remarked Mrs. Thorne to her maid. "As soon as you unpack, Marie, fix a bath. I'm simply perishing! And get out some fresh lingerie, please."

Mrs. Thorne entered her boudoir—and stopped. Her jewel box, which she generally kept in the drawer of the dressing table, was lying open on its top. Three of her rings were gone. So was her black onyx plaque with the Russian wolfhound studded in diamonds and the bow-knot jeweled pin she particularly prized for its memories. Mrs. Thorne, momentarily resentful, laughed. Gerry, she thought, had indeed "made herself at home."

She walked to the closet, unhooking her cape. The accustomed row of cloaks and gowns seemed depleted. Yes, at least one gown was missing and her beautiful wrap of black canton crepe. Still Mrs. Thorne preserved her good humor.

Marie, the maid, was standing before the chiffonier, pulling out drawer after drawer. Suddenly she swung about to Mrs. Thorne with a single expressive French gesture.

"Madame, your lingerie is gone!"

Amazement was Mrs. Thorne's first emotion. She couldn't believe it. Why, she'd left stacks and stacks of chiffon and crepe de chine smuggled into their proper receptacle!

It was too much! Jewelry—she didn't mind. Her black wrap—all right. Even a frock or two she could forgive. But to borrow under any circumstances, let alone to grab without any "by-your-leave" at all, the soft and silken pretties, foamy with lace and ribbons, which every woman cherishes as she does beauty itself—that was beyond endurance!

Mrs. Thorne summoned the superintendent of the apartment, Milton Whitley. He said he helped Mrs. Caldwell pack two bags just the day before—that Mrs. Caldwell called him to the apartment and had him hand, cove the suit cases from a shelf. He said he watched her opening the bureau, chiffonier, desk and closets, piling her selection on the bed. Whitley stated in the affidavit he later made for Mrs. Thorne: "Said Geraldine Caldwell directed him to pack those things into bags, and deponent, thinking it unusual, remarked to said Geraldine Caldwell, 'That's Mrs. Thorne's!' and she replied, 'Pack!' Deponent states that he did as he was told, closed the bags and subsequently deposited them, at her request, in a taxicab."

Right on top of her interview with the superintendent, Mrs. Thorne got a telephone call. It was from Miss Alice King, an old Chicago friend, manager of the Curtis-Bell Studios, smart Fifth avenue photographers, and what Miss King had to tell Mrs. Thorne was an earful.

"That Mrs. Caldwell was in here the other day. She had her picture taken. And what do you think, Virginia? She was wearing your rings and your onyx plaque and your monkey fur cape and heaven knows what else that belongs to you!"

Mrs. Thorne's last hope that "Gerry" had merely gone out for a stroll and would return shortly had been dispelled by the superintendent's story of the bags and the taxicab. Burning with the thought of her "borrowed" lingerie, she telephoned the "Travelers' Insurance Company. To a representative of the company, who called an hour later, she explained the condition of affairs.

"Who is this girl? How long have you known her?"

Mrs. Thorne hesitated. She had met Mrs. Caldwell last year in Chicago. They had a number of mutual friends among the young married set. Then, when they met again at a tea in New York recently, she had sympathized with Mrs. Caldwell's efforts to return to the stage. It was only a short step to inviting her home for a few days. That was all, except—oh, yes: Mrs. Caldwell had said she was born in Johannesburg, South Africa, and she had an aunt in Toronto.

Armed with this slender information, the insurance company's representative sought Mrs. Caldwell's ex-roommate, Gladys Jordan, a chorus girl in "The Blue Kitten" company. Miss Jordan chuckled a chuck or two about South Africa. She said it was more likely South Halsted street. The aunt? Sure, she had the address and, come to think of it, Gerry had said she was going to visit her.

Mrs. Thorne wired Canada. Three telegrams got no answer. Then came a long distance call. Mrs. Caldwell didn't understand what her friend meant by such sharp telegrams. What if she had borrowed a suit case and one or two unimportant things? Lingerie? How absurd!

"Go up there and get your stuff," advised the representative of the insurance company. Mrs. Thorne went. She was accompanied by Miss King. They had affidavits—Miss King's own and the superintendent's. In Toronto they got a search warrant. Two detectives, the Toronto agent of the insurance company and an adjuster went with Mrs. Thorne and her friend to the home of Mrs. Caldwell's aunt.

There the sad little comedy had its climax. Threats and pleadings, tears and reproaches: "You gave them to me!" from Gerry. "I did not!" from Mrs. Thorne. "Oh, Virginia, you've ruined my chances to get a millionaire husband!" "Well, I only hope you haven't ruined my lingerie!"

The detectives insisted on taking Mrs. Caldwell to the police station, but Mrs. Thorne refused to bring formal charges.

So far as Mrs. Thorne is concerned the incident is closed, but from her former friend she has received three telegrams. One read:

"Have said nothing about you yet, also have witnesses to this effect, but unless you stop talking and have others stop until you receive letter I am writing I shall not be responsible for anything that happens."

Another said in part: "Have been interviewed by reporters who request story in reference to your alimony and conduct since divorce, but have remained silent. I am doing this on assumption you are doing likewise. You are aware of what I absolutely know about your affairs, but neither of us are after unpleasant notoriety."

Presumably Mrs. Caldwell refers to what happened at Mrs. Thorne's divorce trial, when Judge Henry Lewis, after granting her $750 a month alimony, said: "You must remember that if you do anything wrong or your conduct is not that of a good woman at any time, he can come in here and have this order changed so as to reduce this alimony."

"He" is Gordon Thorne, who was sued by Mary Lygo, Ziegfeld Follies beauty, after she twice tried to kill herself for love of him. If Thorne is worrying either about this or his alimony payments, however, the latest photographs from Palm Beach, showing him lolling on the sands with Corinne Barker and other beauties, do not indicate it, and certainly Mrs. Thorne herself isn't worrying.

"Let Gerry threaten all she wants to," she says. "My friends know that since my divorce I have lived in New York very quietly. I do not go out much. I have refused many invitations to dances and dinner parties. The loss of my clothes and jewels is the first unpleasantness I have had. As for Gerry talking—tut-tut! To show you what I think of her telegrams—here they are. Publish them!"

all, except—oh, yes: Mrs. Caldwell had said she was born in Johannesburg, South Africa, and she had an aunt in Toronto.

Armed with this slender information, the insurance company's representative sought Mrs. Caldwell's ex-roommate, Gladys Jordan, a chorus girl in "The Blue Kitten" company. Miss Jordan chuckled a chuck or two about South Africa. She said it was more likely South Halsted street. The aunt? Sure, she had the address and, come to think of it, Gerry had said she was going to visit her.

Mrs. Thorne wired Canada. Three telegrams got no answer. Then came a long distance call. Mrs. Caldwell didn't understand what her friend meant by such sharp telegrams. What if she had borrowed a suit case and one or two unimportant things? Lingerie? How absurd!

"Go up there and get your stuff," advised the representative of the insurance company. Mrs. Thorne went. She was accompanied by Miss King. They had affidavits—Miss King's own and the superintendent's. In Toronto they got a search warrant. Two detectives, the Toronto agent of the insurance company and an adjuster went with Mrs. Thorne and her friend to the home of Mrs. Caldwell's aunt.

There the sad little comedy had its climax. Threats and pleadings, tears and reproaches: "You gave them to me!" from Gerry. "I did not!" from Mrs. Thorne. "Oh, Virginia, you've ruined my chances to get a millionaire husband!" "Well, I only hope you haven't ruined my lingerie!"

The detectives insisted on taking Mrs. Caldwell to the police station, but Mrs. Thorne refused to bring formal charges.

So far as Mrs. Thorne is concerned the incident is closed, but from her former friend she has received three telegrams. One read:

"Have said nothing about you yet, also have witnesses to this effect, but unless you stop talking and have others stop until you receive letter I am writing I shall not be responsible for anything that happens."

Another said in part: "Have been interviewed by reporters who request story in reference to your alimony and conduct since divorce, but have remained silent. I am doing this on assumption you are doing likewise. You are aware of what I absolutely know about your affairs, but neither of us are after unpleasant notoriety."

Presumably Mrs. Caldwell refers to what happened at Mrs. Thorne's divorce trial, when Judge Henry Lewis, after granting her $750 a month alimony, said: "You must remember that if you do anything wrong or your conduct is not that of a good woman at any time, he can come in here and have this order changed so as to reduce this alimony."

"He" is Gordon Thorne, who was sued by Mary Lygo, Ziegfeld Follies beauty, after she twice tried to kill herself for love of him. If Thorne is worrying either about this or his alimony payments, however, the latest photographs from Palm Beach, showing him lolling on the sands with Corinne Barker and other beauties, do not indicate it, and certainly Mrs. Thorne herself isn't worrying.

"Let Gerry threaten all she wants to," she says. "My friends know that since my divorce I have lived in New York very quietly. I do not go out much. I have refused many invitations to dances and dinner parties. The loss of my clothes and jewels is the first unpleasantness I have had. As for Gerry talking—tut-tut! To show you what I think of her telegrams—here they are. Publish them!"

At Left, Geraldine Caldwell, photographed in the Clothing and Jewels of Mrs. Virginia Thorne, According to Miss King's Affidavit.

At Right, Mrs. Thorne, who is now in Canada, after reading this telegram.

ter, she explained the condition of affairs.

"Who is this girl? How long have you known her?"

Mrs. Thorne hesitated. She had met Mrs. Caldwell last year in Chicago. They had a number of mutual friends among the young married set. Then, when they met again at a tea in New York recently, she had sympathized with Mrs. Caldwell's efforts to return to the stage. It was only a short step to inviting her home for a few days. That was all, except—oh, yes: Mrs. Caldwell had said she was born in Johannesburg, South Africa, and she had an aunt in Toronto.

and Astronomy in the Jesuit University, Dublin, and Who Also Invented the "Ortho Clock."

The First of the New Clocks to be Completed. It Is Now in America.

THE most extraordinary clock the world has ever known—introducing an entirely new principle in timepiece construction—has just been brought to America by Father William O'Leary, Jesuit priest, professor of science and astronomy in the Jesuit University at Dublin.

It is "regulated" once every minute by a free-swinging pendulum, entirely detached from the clock-works.

That is the vital principle—basically simple, like all great inventions. The details are explained later in this article, and you will find them fascinating even if you haven't a mechanical turn of mind.

While the distinguished inventor con-finer his claims to the statement that he has "reduced error to a minimum," enthusiastic scientists who have seen the mechanism in actual operation have called it "the clock that can't go wrong."

You may think your own clock keeps "correct" time—or that you can depend absolutely on the standardized clocks you see everywhere in public places.

For ordinary practical purposes—yes. But for scientific accuracy—no. The best clock you have probably ever seen—unless you have been in an astronomical observatory—has a "minimum error" of at least eight seconds a week. Unless it were corrected from time to time it would "go wrong" at least 416 seconds in a year.

Father O'Leary refuses to state the "minimum error" of his clock. He wants other disinterested scientists to form their own opinions. But it is understood to less than nine seconds a year! Perhaps less than six!

That being true, this "Ortho Clock," as Father O'Leary calls it, is by far the most accurate time-keeper ever devised by the human hand.

How the scientist-priest came to invent it is an interesting story. In connection with his work as professor of science in the Collegium Maximum, which is the head university of the Jesuits, he wanted a seismograph (an instrument to record earthquakes) of greater accuracy than any then in use.

So he invented a seismograph for himself. And for this seismograph he needed a clock more accurate than any in existence. So he set about inventing that, too.

His first natural step was to look about for something (not a clock) that he could take as an absolutely accurate measure of time. He found only two things—and so far as science now knows there are only two—the movement of the heavenly bodies in the sky (as, for instance, the revolution of the earth), and the oscillations of a free swinging pendulum.

It was Galileo who first found out that a pendulum "kept time." He made the discovery in the Cathedral at Pisa, Italy, five hundred years ago, one evening at twilight when the lamps were lit. There was a lamp hung like a long pendulum from the roof—the same great bronze lamp that hangs there to this very day. The verger pulled it toward him to light it, and then let it swing back. Galileo thought that as the swinging died down the oscillations would become faster or slower. To his amazement all the swings, although their distance kept getting gradually shorter, were made in exactly the same time.

Father O'Leary couldn't "hook up" the sun and moon and stars as regulators for a mechanical clock—so that left him nothing but the pendulum. He used it, and why his pendulum is totally different from the pendulum on all other clocks he tells in his own words:

"Our standard clock is the earth. The most careful observation has not revealed the pendulum is really our practical time measurer.

"But we must treat it with very great respect indeed if it is to live up to its reputation. 'Evil associations corrupt good manners,' and the aberration from rectitude in the component of the associated clockwork will corrupt the pendulum. Every little tick of the clock means that the pendulum has unlocked a tooth and received a little appreciative pat on the back

Clock, Showing, Above, the Peculiarly in return. Now although it is true that 'fair exchange is no robbery,' still in this case there is rarely an equal exchange. It is impossible to construct clockwork so accurately that these exchanges balance correctly. At one instant there is overpayment, at another there is a deficit. The result of this is that the deficiency of the clockwork imposes itself at each tick on the pendulum. Clockmakers have devised contact between the pendulum and the clockwork to one 'touch' per minute. Except for that contact, which lasts only one-quarter of a second, the pendulum swings absolutely free, without touching or being connected with or coming in contact with the clock at all.

"If you have even a slight knowledge of mechanics you will get a good general idea of the principle used in the construction from the diagrams which I have drawn. (See drawing at right-top of this page.)

"Figure 1 shows the method by which the impulse is given to the pendulum. A pallet (1) is fixed transversely on the pendulum (2). An impulse lever (3) pushed at (4) has a roller (5) which is to be made to fall every minute on the pallet just a little before the pendulum reaches its meridian or exact minute position.

"In position I the impulse lever has just been released. In transition from position I to II the roller merely rolls on the pallet. In position II the edge of the pallet has reached the roller, and this latter will roll down along it, thus giving an impulse to the pendulum. In position III the roller has fallen free of the pendulum, and will be reset to be ready for the next impulse.

"Now the outstanding perfection of the Ortho is that during the whole minute interval from impulse to impulse the pendulum swings absolutely free—and if we are to count out the time correctly for giving the next impulse just at the right moment we must have some counter that keeps as perfect time as the pendulum. This would seem to be putting the difficulty only one step back. Well, I have managed to get such a counter in a very queer and simple way. My very exact counter is a very ordinary balance wheel clock. In fact, I have one instrument made from the parts of an alarm clock which keeps accurate pace with the costly clock beside it. And it must, for the accurate time-keeping depends wholly on the freedom of the pendulum, and is independent of defects in the clock-works.

"And here is the principle: Though an ordinary time-piece may vary by several seconds in a few hours, its error in a short run like one minute is very small indeed. And hence, if such a clock is corrected at the beginning of each minute, it can never be materially wrong at the end of any minute. I take an ordinary clock and couple to the minute wheel a device for releasing the impulse lever. I run the clock fast so that it gets through its minute run about one-quarter of a second before the minute. That leaves just nice time for the release of the impulse lever, and the impulse is accordingly correctly given.

Meanwhile another little device has stopped the clock at the end of its short minute run, and it remains stopped till the impulse lever, having fallen away from the cam in the clockwork, which resets the impulse lever and starts the clock off again. So you see that the clock is momentarily held up till the exact minute is reached, and thus it always starts the next minute correctly.

"Figure 2 shows diagrammatically the arrangement of the clock work controlling the impulse lever, and Figure 3 illustrates the main features of this clock. Number 1 is a circular releasing wheel mounted on the axle of the minute wheel, Number 8 is the balance wheel, 9 the resetting cam, and Number 10 an intermediate pivoted lever between the clockwork and the impulse lever.

"A pin on the lever (10) rests on the rim of the slotted wheel (7) so that the lever falls over when the slot moves under the pin. This is arranged to happen about one-quarter of a second before the exact minute. At the same time tripping pawls on the end of the lever engage transverse pins set in the balance wheel (8), and stop the clock, and at the same time the impulse lever is released. It falls on the pendulum pallet, gives the impulse at the exact minute, and falls away. In falling away it releases the cam (9) which revolves rapidly, resetting the balance wheel (8) and (10), and freeing the balance wheel. The clock, which was held up, is thus started correctly at the beginning of the next minute, and after 59½ seconds the same operations will take place. This gives the main idea of the working, but there are many little refinements in detail which insure reliability of functioning and elimination of variable friction.

Father O'Leary's clock, like many other scientific inventions of the Jesuits, is the property of the Church. Any financial profit which may accrue from it will go directly back to the Society of Jesus to be used in the pursuit of other scientific work.

the Wheels Go Around."

many beautiful movements to diminish the error, but some error there always is. An absolutely swinging pendulum would be ideal. But in order to keep it going it must get some help. Let us reduce the help to the minimum.

"In the Ortho Clock I have limited the contact between the pendulum and the clockwork to one 'touch' per minute. Except for that contact, which lasts only one-quarter of a second, the pendulum swings absolutely free, without touching or being connected with or coming in contact with the clock at all.

THE WHITE DESERT

"Both?" They stared at him. Thayer nodded, still looking at the floor, his tongue flicking suddenly to his lips.

CHAPTER XXI
It was staggering in its unexpectedness. A grasp came from the lips of Barry Houston. He whirled excitedly and grasped the nearest on-looker.

"Go get Madame Robinette. Hurry! Tell her that I have found the proof. She'll understand."
Then, struggling to reassure himself, he turned again to the prisoner. Two hours later, in the last glint of day, the door opened, and a woman came to his side, where he was finishing the last of many closely written sheets of paper. He looked up at her, boyishly, happily. Without a word, she went back to her room, and then, as he grasped her hand, and then, as he turned to her to hear her, he turned to the worn-faced man, now slumped dejectedly in his chair.

"You understand, Thayer, that this is your written confession?"
The man nodded.
"And you are willing to sign it?"
"I'd want to know what I was signing."

"Certainly. I intend to read it to you—so that all witnesses may hear it. It is then to be filed with the district attorney."
A pause. At last:
"My name is Fred Thayer. Until a year ago, I had been employed by the Empire Lake Mill and Lumber Company as superintendent, beginning with it when it was first started by Mr. Houston of Boston."

"I tried two or three times to get him to sell out to me, but we couldn't get together. On the terms. He always wanted cash, and I couldn't furnish it. About this time a nephew of his named Thomas Langdon came out here, under the name of John Corbin. He had been a black sheep and was now wandering about the country."
"Then, a woman came out here, an Agnes Jerdon, a stenographer, on her vacation. I met her and learned that she was from Boston." A slight pressure exerted itself on Houston's arm. He glanced down to see Madame Robinette's hand, clasped tight. "She spent nearly the whole summer here, and I made love to her. I asked her to marry me, and she told me that she would. I wanted to use her—to get her in Houston's office. I wanted to find out what was going on, so that I would know in advance. At the end of her vacation, she went back to Boston and got a job with Houston, as office clerk. Almost the first thing that she wrote me was that the old man was thinking about selling out to some concern back East."

"It made me desperate. Then I thought of Batiste Renaud."

"Ah!" The word was accompanied by a sharp intake of breath as the big French-Canadian moved closer to hear again the story of a murder. But the sheriff motioned him back. The emotions of the old trapper were not to be trusted. The recital went on:

"Certainly. I intend to read it to you—so that all witnesses may hear it."

"Everybody around this country had always talked about how rich he was. There was a saying that he didn't believe in banks and that he kept more than a hundred thousand dollars in his little cabin. At this time, both he and his son were away at war, and I thought I could steal this money. place it in other hands, and then work things so that if I did get hold of the mill, people around here would merely think I had borrowed the money and bought the mill with it. By this time, a cousin of Miss Jerdon's, a fellow named Jenkins, had gotten a job with her and of course I was hearing everything that went on. It looked like the deal was going thru, and it forced me to action. One night I watched Mrs. Renaud and saw her leave the house. I thought she was going to town. Instead, after I'd gotten into the cabin, she came back, surprising me. I killed her, with a revolver."

"Diab!"

"Easy, Batiste. That's the way you gave it to me, isn't it, Thayer?"

"Yes."

Again the door of the tiny lobby opened, and closed, and a form edged forward—Blackburn, summoned from his mill.

"When I found the deed box, there was only ten thousand dollars in it instead of the fortune that I had supposed was there. I was about to take it out and stuff it into my pocket, when I heard a noise outside the window. I pushed the box under my coat and ran out the back door. The next day, Corbin—or Langdon—came to me, and demanded his share of what I had stolen. He said that he had seen me at the deed box after I killed the woman. He threatened me again—and then, suddenly, one day disappeared. I learned he had left for Boston. I knew what was up then; he was going back to tell Old Man Houston and try to step into my shoes when I was arrested. But I beat him there by going over the range in an automobile, and taking an earlier train for Boston. I picked him up when he arrived and trained him to young Houston's office. After that I saw them go to a cafe, and from there to a prize fight. I had my gun with me—I had made up my mind to kill them both. I thought Langdon had told. After the fight, they started out, myself in the rear. Young Houston had gotten a mallet from the time-keeper. Then they got in a quarrel, and my chance came. Houston ran. When he was well out of sight I crept up behind Langdon and clubbed my revolver, hitting him on the head with it. He fell—dead—and I knew I was safe, that Houston would be accused."

Barry looked earnestly at the man before him.

"That's all true, isn't it, Thayer?"

"I haven't made any objection, have I?" came surlily.

"I merely wanted to be sure. But to go on: Then I thought of a way to get what I wanted from Miss Jerdon. Anyway, it ended with her testifying at the trial in a sort of negative way. I didn't care about that—it was something else I wanted. I wanted her to switch some papers on young Mr. Houston for me, and she bucked against it. Then I told her that she had done worse things, that she had perjured herself. She got her cousin to help her in the transfer of the papers; it was a lease and stumpege contract. The thing was 'illegitimate' of course. Shortly after that, young Houston came out here again, and I got her to come, too."

"I had dodged marrying her, promising that I would do it when the mill was mine. In the meantime, I had hooked up with this man Blackburn, and he had started a mill for me."

"I guess Miss Jerdon had gotten to thinking a little of Houston, after all, because when I forced her to the final thing of telling some lies about him to a young woman, she did it. But went away mad at me and threatening never to see me again. Our relations, while she had been at the Houston camp, hadn't been exactly what they should have been. Miss Jerdon was dead—she had stayed in a little cabin in the woods. I had lived with her there. About ten days ago, the baby died, while I was laid up at camp with a sprained hip. Today I went there to find her dead, and while I was there, Renaud and young Houston caught me."

This is all I know. I make this statement of my own free will, without coercion, and I swear it to be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me God."

The little lobby milled and buzzed, drowning the scratching of the pen as a trembling man signed the confession, page by page. Then came the clink of handcuffs. Houston straightened, to find a short, bulky form beside him, Henry Blackburn.

"Well?" questioned that person. "I guess it's up to me. I—I haven't got much chance against that."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply this," and the bulky Blackburn drew a nervous, sweating hand across his brow. "I ain't above dealing with crooks. I'll admit that. But I kind of draw the line at murder. I'm in your hands, Houston. I've got a mill up there and it ain't worth the powder to blow it up—to me, anyway. But with you, it's different. If you want to make me a fair offer, say the word, and I'll go more than halfway. What say?"

"Is tomorrow time enough?"

"Tomorrow—or the next day. Suits me."

Then he went on, leaving only three figures in the lobby—the bent, silent form of Batiste Renaud, grave, but rewarded at last in his faithful search; the radiant-eyed Houston, free with a freedom that he hardly believed could exist; and a girl who walked to the window and stood looking out a moment before she turned to him. Then impetuously she faced him, her eyes searching his, her hands tight clasped, her whole being one of supplication.

"I'm sorry," she begged. "Can you—will you forgive me?"

Boyishly Barry Houston reached forward and drew away a strand of hair that had strayed from place, a spirit of venture in his manner, a buoyant tone in his voice.

"Say it again, I like it!"

"But I am—don't you believe me?"

"Of course. But then—I—Then he caught her hands. 'Will you go with me while I telegraph?' he asked in sudden earnestness. 'I want to wire—to the papers back in Boston and tell them that I've been vindicated. Will you—?'"

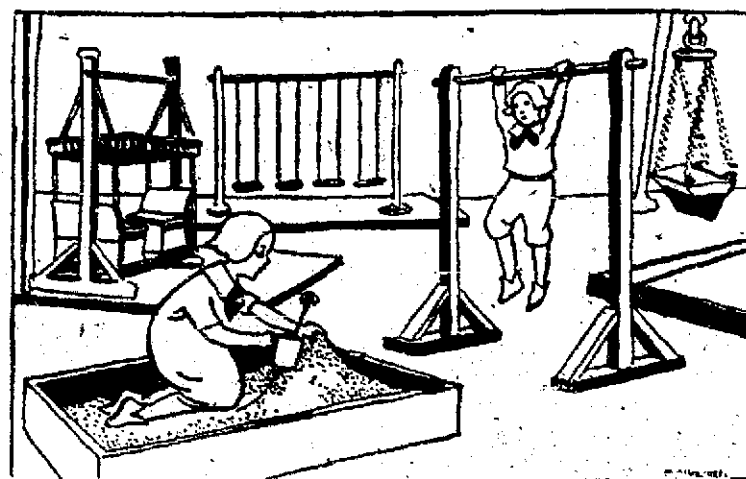

"I'll be glad to."

They went out the door together. Houston beaming, happily downward, the girl close beside him, her arm in his. And it was then that the features of Batiste Renaud lost their gravity and sorrow. He looked after them, his eyes soft and contented. Then his big hands parted slowly. His lip broke into a smile of radiant happiness, and while I was there, Renaud and young Houston caught me."

PLAYGROUND VALLEY

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The fifth one of the Seven Valleys was called Playground Valley.

When Nancy and Nick and the dove came to the top of the steep hill that led down into it, the dove said, "I know how it is going to be here. You'll want to try every swing and sliding board in the place, so there's no use of me staying. I'll fly ahead and wait for you patiently on the other side."

"But we don't have to stop, even if we'd like to," said Nancy. "We can shut our eyes and go straight ahead."

"No," said the dove sadly. "You think you will but you won't. These things are all magic and will attract you against your will. It's like the Five-and-ten-cent-store Mountain and the Valley of puppy-dogs. Goodbye now. All the advice I can give you is to watch that you don't lose your Green Shoes and that you will try to come as soon as you can."

Away he flew, but the magic had already begun to work and Nick was so interested in the things he saw around him, he scarcely heard what his little white guide said. If I were to tell you all the things that the Twins did in Playground Valley it would fill so much space that there wouldn't be room for anything else on this page. But I can tell you part of it.

To begin with, there were swings,—rope swings with board seats, boat swings on chains, nice bench swings with roofs over the top, six swings, big swings, little swings, high swings, low swings, swings that squeaked and swings that were quiet, double swings, single swings, red swings, blue swings, and all sorts of swings.

Then there were sliding boards. Some were steep, some were flat, some were high, some were low and each one a barrel of fun.

And there were bars to swing on (Nick liked them,) and sandpiles to dig in (Nancy liked that,) and saws, the best ever. There were kites to fly and tops to spin, skates to skate on and wheels to ride.

"Oh, my!" said Nancy suddenly. "We've been an awful long time. We'd better hurry on, Nick. I hear the dove calling."
